Russia Fights Religion.
Baltimore 200 Years Old.
Cheaper Cars Coming?
Mussolini Preparing.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

RUSSIA'S government, seeking to eliminate religion, is pleased with a murder trial proceeding in Kieff.

The Archdeacon Ivladye Zekhune of the important Kievo-Petcher-Skala monastery, formerly a monk of the Greek church, is on trial for killing a 28-year-old nun, Barichnikova, described as "one of his mistresses."

Her body was cut up and thrown into a sewer.

On trial with the former monk is the former Mother Superior Varonkova, described as another of his mistresses, accused of instigating the younger woman's murder through jealousy.

The monk will probably be executed. Three thousand Soviet workers sit in court, that they may tell their fellows about "the scarlet woman of Russia," bolshevism's name for the church.

A monk of the Greek church may murder a nun, a banker may murder his cashier. But such occasional murders will not put an end to banking or religion.

Baltimore, planning to be the country's greatest airplane city, is celebrating its 200th birthday, with flags, speeches and warships, on water and in the air.

One hundred and fifteen years ago yesterday, the guns of Fort McHenry kept the British fleet from descending on Baltimore. The "Star Spangled Banner" was written to celebrate that event.

Baltimore, 200 years old, is younger and more energetic than ever.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, tells stockholders he bought "a substantial interest" in the Opel, great German automobile concern, to develop German manufacture of automobiles rather than supersede it with organization and methods entirely American.

This country depends largely on export of manufactured articles. It is therefore interesting to hear from Mr. Sloan that in Europe his company in 1928, in dollars and number of units, sold more automobiles than any European concern manufactured.

Mr. Sloan plans for Europeans the kind of car they want at a price they can afford. Not as rich as we, they do not demand so much luxury.

Mr. Sloan, Mr. Ford and others in this country may need to produce here a cheaper car than any now offered.

Gen. Wood, head of Sears Roebuck, plans a car for $200. Henry Ford years ago showed the writer a small, powerful engine made for a car to sell at $250. He probably has kept the plans for that product.

In his government, Mussolini held eight posts, minister of foreign affairs, marine, colonies, war, aviation, etc.

Now, the powerful Italian resigns seven of his cabinet offices, remaining premier and minister of the interior only.

The King announces the change by royal decree. Mussolini told him what to announce.

The years are passing; Mussolini knows it, and seeks to build a government machine that will survive.

The Italian question is, "After Mussolini, What?"

Lord Rothermere, in a signed article, asks Britain to give up the mandate and withdraw from Jerusalem. He thinks Jews would prefer "a national home in the United States to patriarchal poverty in Palestine."

A majority of Jews do prefer such a home. There are only 2000 American Jews among 150,000 in Palestine.

But for a minority there is a passionate desire to restore Jerusalem. It may not be understood by a Scotchman not interested in returning to Edinburgh. But a Frenchman who never loses the memory of Paris understands it.

Using his powerful newspapers trying to make Britain drop the mandate for Palestine and Iraq as "dangerous," Lord Rothermere says the Balfour declaration involves no moral responsibility and was only, as a war measure, "to appeal to Zionist Jews, who were particularly strong in Germany and Austria."

He refers to the "common sense which made the Government of the United States flatly refuse a mandate for Armenia."

It is easy to become mixed in foreign affairs, not so easy to get out.

In Panama parents and government thought there was truth in anti-vaccination propaganda. Why vaccinate when there is no smallpox, they asked.

Panama is vaccinating now. Its government appropriates $30,000 to check the spread of smallpox, now totaling 92 cases.

It must interest anti-vaccinationists to observe how frequently smallpox accompanies the notion that vaccination is "not necessary" or "barbarous."

3 CAMBRIDGE PASSENGERS ARE AMONG VICTIMS

Machine From Boston for New York Skids and Hits a Tree; Driver Arrested

Stamford, Ct., Sept. 13 (AP)—One woman was injured seriously and nine other passengers of a New England Transportation Co. bus were hurt here today when it skidded into a telegraph pole.

The bus was bound from Boston to New York.

The injured are:

MISS ANNIE ARSENEAULT, South st., Newark, N. J.; probable fractured clavicle; fractured thigh and lacerations.

PHOEBE LeBLANC, 2 Winter st., Ansebury, Mass.; fractured thigh and lacerations.

MRS. CORRINE PERSON, West 22nd st., New York; lacerations.

HARRY LIPMITZ, Prescott Hotel, New York; abrasions.

HARRY TOLKOV of Grand st., Brooklyn; possible fracture of the leg.

They were held at the Stamford hospital for treatment.

Other injured passengers were treated by a doctor near the scene of the accident and went onto New York in another bus. They are:

Ruth Derr, North Washington st., New York.

Francis X. Burk, 122 Cambridge st., Cambridge, Mass.

Joseph Murray, 1219 Cambridge st., Cambridge, Mass.

William J. Boyle, 25 Vassar lane, Cambridge, Mass.

Roy Moore, North Edgecomb, Me.

William L. Steele, of Tenth ave., Brooklyn, driver of the bus, escaped without injury. Steele was arrested by Stamford police on a technical charge of reckless driving, pending the result of the injuries of Miss Arseneault. He was released in $2500.

YOUTH LOST OFF COAST OF MAINE

Disappears While on Trip in Sloop; Cutter Sent to Aid in Sea Quest

Hancock, Me., Sept. 13 (AP)—An airplane and 150 boats spread over a large area of Frenchman's Bay and adjoining waters today in search of William Reed, 19, son of Prof. and Mrs. Edward Bliss Reed, of Yale University, who has been missing for three days in a 19-foot sloop.

The youth was last seen Tuesday noon when he left Little Gotts Island, where he had been visiting, for Hancock point.

Fisheran expressed the opinion that the little craft might have been carried out to sea by the strong winds, although it was said it might have foundered or been cast up on one of the many small islands that lie off the coast here.

A reward of $1000 for the finding of young Reed, either dead or alive, has been offered by the father, who is personally directing the hunt.

One hundred and fifty lobster boats, spurred on by the reward, took up the search today, while lighthouses and coast guard and life saving stations kept a sharp lookout.

Delay in sounding the alarm until yesterday, two days after Reed left Little Gotts island, forced the searchers to cover a large area.

Prof. Reed was informed that a coast guard boat would be sent to aid in the search as well as the cutter that patrols this section of the coast.

'Tiger' Jack Goes on an 18-Day Diet

New York, Sept. 13—Jack Dempsey is on the Hollywood diet, eating grapefruit and the like, the 18-day stuff. His mirror, showing a double chin, caused him to act. His avordupois has dropped from 215 to 206 pounds and continues to descend.

DEMOCRAT HITS TARIFF 'FRAUD'

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—The pending Republican tariff bill was described as a masterpiece of discrimination and hypocrisy from beginning to end" in the Senate today by Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi.

Resuming the minority opposition, Harrison, a member of the tariff framing finance committee, added that the "forked tongue of hypocrisy hisses through every paragraph."

Reading the title of the measure which says it is to provide revenue, regulate commerce with foreign countries, encourage domestic industries and protect American Labor, Harrison said if this were "truly expressed" it would read:

"An act to destroy revenue, to stifle commerce with foreign countries, to discourage industries of the United States, to flim flam American labor and to fleece the American farmer."

"Only one-tenth of our population is engaged in manufacturing and mechanical industries and of that one-tenth, only a very small percentage receive any benefits from the protective tariff. What a false cry that protection protects American labor," he said.

"Increased burdens proposed in this legislation fall heaviest upon the army of men and women engaged in labor."

CHELSEA GETS TAYLOR OUT IN FRAUD CASE

Brown Conducts the Hearing After a Protest to Allen; Widens Scope of Inquiry

While the public today awaited definite announcement on whether or not the new automobile insurance rates were to be promulgated tomorrow, Insurance Commissioner Merton L. Brown continued his inquiry into alleged fraudulent accident settlements.

The insurance commissioner halted proceedings long enough to confer with Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner, pursuant to a suggestion by Governor Allen, but on resuming the hearing made no statement.

The hearing was resumed with several moral victories to the credit of representatives of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, at whose request it was instituted.

Chief among the victories were elimination from the hearing of Harold J. Taylor, counsel for the insurance department, and assumption of the duties of presiding officer by Commissioner Merton L. Brown.

Taylor was dropped from the hearing after Hyman Kaplan, secretary of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, made an impassioned denunciation of his tactics, declaring he was devoting himself to the protection of insurance companies.

Kaplan's criticism was delivered at the close of yesterday's session and was followed today by a protest to the Governor made through his secretary, John D. Wright.

The Governor had also conferred with the insurance commissioner and when the hearing was resumed today Brown took charge, superseding Thomas H. O'Connell, one of his examiners, who presided yesterday. O'Connell had been included in Kaplan's protest.

Commissioner Brown then granted

BRITAIN, FRANCE MOVE TO HALT TARIFF BOOST

Resolution Would Bind All Nations Not to Change the Duties for Two Years

Geneva, Sept. 13 (AP)—Great Britain and France today took a joint step to bring about a world conference on lowering tariff barriers, in the spirit of the comments by European statesmen while discussing Premier Briand's project for a "United States of Europe."

The delegations of the two nations recommended in the economic committee of the League of Nations that negotiations be begun between members of the league and non-members, to provide a meeting at the earliest possible date.

WANT 2-YEAR TRUCE

The purpose of the meeting would be to frame "the first collective agreement for diminishing tariffs to trade, and developing and facilitating economic relations by all practicable means."

The resolution of England and France also called on the states of the world not to increase their protective tariffs above present levels for a period of two years, or not to impose new protective tariffs above present impediments to trade during this period.

Pending convening of the world conference on economic questions, other nations were requested to hold down their tariffs.

It is proposed to hold a conference not only of technical experts, but of political representatives of governments. M. Loucher of France presented the proposal and was strongly supported by Dr. Hugh Dalton of the British labor government.

In the words of the French spokesman, the conference might

Representatives of the school department will answer questions concerning the new additional to the Oak street school. The meeting will be open to the public.

Garrett to Attend Bridgewater Fair

Among those scheduled to be present at the Plymouth County Agricultural Society Fair in Bridgewater today was Fairchan Oliver B. Garrett, now on sick-leave from his new duties as Joy st. station.

Garrett said he would not drive in the races or act as judge. The injuries he received while driving at the Marshfield Fair recently will prevent him risking a recurrence of the mishap this season, he said.

Condemned Man Gets 2000 Volts; Talks

Eddyville, Ky., Sept. 13 (INS)—A condemned murderer, whose body leaped forward in the electric chair of the state penitentiary here today with more than 2000 volts surging through him, sighed when the current was shut off and said rather wearily: "Boys, I'm not dead yet."

A few seconds later the current was reapplied and the murderer, Carl Hord, 21, of Louisville, Ky., was killed.

HOT BOX TIES TUNNEL LINE

Hundreds of commuters were alarmed today when a smoldering hot box on a Cambridge-bound tunnel train filled the Washington st.-under station with thick, biting smoke.

The five-car train, well-filled, had just pulled up to the platform to discharge and load passengers, when clouds of smoke arose from the second from the last car.

The heat short-circuited the motor, with the result the train was unable to move, and the passengers tumbled hurriedly to the platform.

The smoke spread throughout the station and penetrated the Washington and Vinter st. stations of the tunnel, being noticeable as far away as South station.

In the meantime other trains pulled in behind the stalled cars, their passengers being held inside until Elevated employes had cleared the line.

The delay lasted more than 15 minutes and many passengers finished their journeys on foot.

Dentist Is Threatened With Coat of Tar

Hinsdale, Sept. 13—Three separate threats that he would be tarred and feathered and hung to a pole, caused Dr. Archie L. Boudreau, a Pittsfield dentist, to appeal to the police for protection today.

The threat letters sent to Dr. Boudreau have been turned over to the police.

In making his complaint, Dr. Boudreau warned the officers he had armed himself with a revolver and would shoot to kill any one who might make an attempt to harm him.

He told police he could not account for the threats for he knew of no enemy who would carry out such revenge.

Last spring Dr. Boudreau figured prominently in a controversy over school banking accounts. At that time he was town auditor of Hinsdale.

R. I. MAN HELD AS SWINDLER

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Frederick W. Bell, who formerly operated a bathing pavilion at Narragansett Pier, today was brought to New York from Monroe, La., charged with having four years ago swindled servants of wealthy families at the fashionable Rhode Island resort out of $150,000 in the stock market.

For a time, after persuading servants to let him invest their money for them, according to police, Bell paid them interest. Then the interest payments stopped and he disappeared. He was penniless, they said, when they found him in the Louisiana town a few days ago.

Auto Kills Girl, 8, on Way From School

Lowell, Sept. 13 (AP)—Death overtook eight-year-old Margaret Dempsey today as she hurried home from school for lunch. An automobile struck her as she crossed the street.

The driver, William J. Barry, said she ran directly before his machine and that he had no chance to stop. He was held in $2000 on a technical manslaughter charge.

Operation May Save Jeanne Eagles' Sight

New York, Sept. 13 (INS)—Hope was expressed today that an operation will save the sight of Jeanne Eagles, famous actress. Miss Eagles, suspended by Equity in 1926 for failure to appear in "Her Cardboard Lover," was reinstated Sept. 1. She was taken to the hospital yesterday.

4 GIRLS FIGHT OFF ATTACKERS

Plymouth, Sept. 13—A battle in the woods in which four Rockland girls early today fought three youths, resulted in the arrest of two Brockton young men.

Three of the girls beat off their attackers and summoned farmers, who fired several shots at the youths after the fourth girl had been hurled unconscious from an automobile.

The two Brockton young men are alleged to have sped away in their car, only to be arrested in their homes, while their companion was believed to be wandering in the woods, possibly wounded.

The two who are to be arraigned today were Thomas Riordan and Harold Andrews, both 19, and both residents of Newbury st.

Their victims were listed by the police as Dorothy Arkell, 19, and Florence Burns, 23, both of Lyman st.; Ellen Morris, 19, of Market st., and Geraldine Feliz of Liberty st., all of Rockland.

The third youth, Joseph Hunt of Brockton, was being sought by the authorities when it was

DuPonts to Build Big Plant in Leominster

Leominster, Sept. 13 (AP)—Announcement was made today by C. E. Buckley, that the DuPont Viscoloid Co. will begin construction within the next few weeks of an addition to its Leominster plant costing approximately $1,000,000.

The addition will be for the manufacture of transparent pyralin sheeting for use in safety glass.

D'Annunzio Hides as Italy Celebrates

Garbone, Italy, Sept. 13 (AP)—Gabriel d'Annunzio held himself aloof today while all Italy celebrated the 70th anniversary of his march on Ronchi, an event which led to his capture of Fiume. Despite a barrage of telegrams from government ministers, civic officials, ex-legionnaires of Fiume and war veterans and Fascists generally, he remained at work on his newest literary project. The countryside about his residence was resplendent with festooned lights and flags.

'Bull' Montana, Mat Star, Plans to Wed

Los Angeles, Sept. 13 (AP)—Louis "Bull" Montana, former wrestler and now a film heavy, and Mary Poulson, 23, have filed intentions to wed.

Montana said the wedding would take place "next week, maybe." Last year Jackie La Verne, a dancer, who claimed she was Montana's wife, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by the actor. He refused to prosecute her.

Captured After Hospital Escape

Shoots Himself in Grief for Marshall

New York, Sept. 13 (INS)—Alphonse Frank, well-known insurance broker, was in a critical condition today as the result of a bullet wound, alleged to have been self-inflicted in a fit of despondency over the death of his lifelong friend, Louis Marshall, in Zurich.

CHELSEA GETS ATTORNEY TAYLOR REMOVED IN FRAUD HEARING

Governor Moves to Halt the Increase in Rates; Scope of Inquiry Widened

ed Clarence Richmond, Chelsea city solicitor, permission to sit in as counsel for Kaplan and the City of Chelsea, a right which was denied him yesterday by O'Connell.

At Solicitor Richmond's suggestion, the insurance commissioner then agreed to broaden the scope of the inquiry, declaring he was ready to receive suggestions.

In the meantime Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles, issued a statement declaring it is not necessary for the attorney-general to deliver an opinion on the legality of postponing beyond tomorrow the promulgation of the new automobile insurance rates.

COULD CUT RATES.

According to Goodwin the law permits the insurance commissioner to continue the present rates in force for another year, and he added that if any changes were made they should be reductions.

Prior to the opening of the hearing Commissioner Brown, when asked what action he intended to take on Kaplan's criticism of Taylor, stated the insurance department's counsel would not attend the hearings further.

The commissioner opened the hearing with O'Connell sitting beside him, and at once granted City Solicitor Richmond permission to take part.

Secretary Kaplan made the following statement:

"Mr. Commissioner: Our entire story is built on the claim cards given you by the insurance companies and the information contained in them is supposed to be correct.

"Neither I nor your department—I believe—had direct access to the files in these cases. The information has been sidetracked and we have found cards containing information which is decidedly incorrect. Furthermore, our examiner engineered statements which went into the records for the benefit of the insurance companies only.

SHOULD GET FACTS.

"We have found one card in your files by which it was stated that the man injured was taken to the City Hospital and later the case was settled for $300 without a suit.

"The City Hospital has no record of ever treating this man."

City Solicitor Richmond then said:

"Mr. Kaplan was charged yesterday by your examiner with making direct accusations against the insurance companies. Your examiner repeatedly sought to bring this out. Mr. Kaplan made no statement of fraud. His theory is that according to the records furnished the commissioner by the insurance companies there appeared to be sufficient grounds for further examination.

"It is very hard for a layman to understand the information on these cards. This commission is sitting as a sort of grand jury and every effort should be made to assist Mr. Kaplan in bringing out the facts.

"Yesterday he was put on the grill and placed apparently in the position of a defendant. He is 100 per cent sincere in this matter. If you, Mr. Commissioner, had been here yesterday the proceedings would have been different.

"We know you are 100 per cent fair. I know you would have allowed me to sit in. I think the hearing should be broadened so as to include lawyers and doctors.

FEARED USE OF FORCE

"I didn't get into any debate yesterday when I was refused permission to sit in, because I was afraid I would get thrown out of of the room.

"There has been much talk about 'phony' insurance cases, so-called. If doctors and lawyers are in collusion, as has been charged in various quarters, a broader investigation should be held.

"It fraudulent means have been used to obtain money from the insurance companies, that reflects on the tax rate and that is what the people are interested in."

Commissioner Brown assured Richmond every effort would be made to obtain all the facts and asked for suggestions.

Kaplan said: "We are getting somewhere by having the insurance companies give us information from their records directly. Yesterday we found by comparing their files and these cards which are your records they had not given you all the information your office is entitled to receive.

"We have discovered that companies have built up injuries on your cards to show why excessive amounts were paid. In other cases they gave as reasons for settlements 'good business,' 'economy,' 'fear of jury decisions' rather than liability.

Goodwin in his statement said: "All this talk as to whether the insurance commissioner must ask the opinion of the attorney-general as to whether he can postpone announced rates after Sept. 15 is pure bunk. The law says the commissioner shall annually on or before September 15, after due hearing and investigation, fix and establish a fair and reasonable classification of risks and adequate, just and non-discriminating charges.

"It does not require any attorney-general's opinion to determine that the statute means what it says. Those rates must be made on or before Sept. 15 if any are to be made.

"I went to the governor's office and told his secretary that the insurance commissioner was not justified in increasing these rates and I offered to appear before the governor with Mr. Brown and any insurance people to prove by figures of business done in 1928 that if any changes were to be made, the rates ought to be reduced.

"The thing for the commissioner to do is to fail to make any changes in the 1929 rates. This is especially so in view of all the turmoil and the fact that a special commission is investigating the subject."

Several witnesses told of accidents in which children and adults were involved where payments they considered exorbitant were made by the insurance companies.

In each case representatives of the insurance companies said the victims were incapacitated, and they considered it good business to make small settlements.

DRUNK OR INJURED?

Amusement was caused by the replies of Anna Warner of Chelsea to questions by City Solicitor Richmond. Warner was struck in 1928 by a car operated by Samuel Lewis of Chelsea and was taken to a hospital.

There he gave his name as Tim Kelley, and after being examined by hospital doctors was declared to be uninjured but drunk. Later he was treated by a physician at his home for a fractured bone in one foot and the insurance company paid him $75 as he was laid up 22 days.

Asked if he was a drinking man Warner replied: "Only on Saturday nights and Sundays."

Questioned whether he had been drinking he replied he worked until 7 o'clock and the accident happened at 7:12. "How could I get a drink in twelve minutes in that neighborhood?" he asked Richmond reproachfully. "Drinks are all respectable."

He eventually admitted the accident might have occurred on Saturday night and that he might have had a few drinks.

Typos to Demand 5-Day Work Week

Seattle, Wash., Sept 13 (AP)—Immediate steps designed to bring about a five-day week for union printers were taken by the International Typographical Union today after going on record at its annual convention in favor of the shorter working period.

The convention voted to lay before the American Newspaper Publishers Association a proposal for a five-day week and also a communication setting forth that "journeymen and apprentices have a just claim upon the management with respect to the introduction of policies that will lighten the burdens of those employed in our industry."

Naval Accord Near Is Washington's View

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—The belief that Great Britain and the United States are on the verge of complete accord upon naval disarmament was regarded today as strengthened by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's decision to visit America for conferences with President Hoover.

MacDonald will leave England Sept. 28 on the Berengaria, arriving in New York Oct. 4. His visit will be possibly a week, most of which will be spent in conference with President Hoover in Washington.

Secretary of State Stimson is of opinion that the latest note to the London government could have led Premier MacDonald to believe an agreement would be reached.

Meanwhile, contents of the note are zealously guarded secrets.

Great Britain is believed to have agreed to reduce its planned cruiser strength from 70 to 50 ships and it is understood President Hoover has relinquished to some extent his reduction policy he had been hopeful of effecting for the United States. As matters now stand, it is thought, the American navy would have to be built up to reach the limitation that might be agreed upon.

If the conferences between Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Hoover result in complete accord, the next step would be a general disarmament conference attended by representatives of Great Britain, the United States, Japan, France and Italy.

learned he had not returned to Brockton.

According to the police, the three young men met the girls in Rockland and agreed to take them to a dance, but instead drove them to the woods off the Plymouth highway.

A struggle began, which lasted for some time, but eventually three of the girls got away and ran a mile to a farmhouse, where they aroused two men. The five hurried back to tthe scene, where they claim to have found the fourth girl in the car, unconscious.

The farmers produced weapons and commanded the young men to get out of the machine. Then they them leaped to the ground and fled into the woods.

The others threw out the unconscious girl and dashed away in their car, followed by a hail of bullets, it is alleged.

The registration number of the car was reported and the police arrested Riordan and Andrews.

In Plymouth District Court Judge Elmer Bridges held them in $5000 for trial on Sept. 25. Both were charged with attempted attack.

Three Slain in N. Y. Slot Machine War

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—War in the slot machine "racket" was seen by police today as a motive for three gang slayings on the upper East Side.

The third victim was found with a bullet in his abdomen in a parked automobile in East 101st st., only a few blocks from whe nother victim had been found 24 hours earlier. He was identified as Thomas Ahern, 34, ostensibly a chauffeur, but said by police to be a speakeasy owner.

The consensus of the committee supported the proposal for the two or three-year tariff truce.

Millions Lost in Storm in France

Marseilles, Sept. 13 (AP)—A storm raging over Southern France during the night probably did damage aggregating several million dollars. Damage to buildings, vines and the olive crop in the Toulon district alone was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Lower parts of Toulon and other towns were flooded. Railroad communication between Marseilles and Nice were interrupted for hours and many roads were impassable.

JEWS BATTLE WITH POLICE

New York, Sept. 13 (INS)—Scores of persons were nursing cuts and bruises today as the result of a serious riot in a densely populated Hebrew section of Brooklyn, resulting from the remarks of an uninvited speaker concerning the situation in Palestine.

Three hundred policemen, firemen and members of the radical squad fought a mob of 2000 for more than an hour before order was restored.

Traffic was halted nearly two hours and merchants in the neighborhood were forced to close their stores when hundreds of rioters attempted to fortify themselves within the shops. Stones, bottles, broken furniture and other missiles were hurled freely.

The riot broke out in the course of a Communist meeting when, according to the police report, Harold Williams, a so-called "Communist organizer," mounted a soap box and denounced the Jewish listeners for their attitude in the Palestine situation.

After a number of remarks, some of them derogatory to Jews, someone cried: "He's an Arab!" and the next moment Williams was dragged from the box, the center of a wild melee. He was in danger of being beaten to death when police rescued him.

Numerous heads were struck with police clubs. Twelve rioters were arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

Fear New Arab Raids on Jews in Palestine

Jerusalem, Sept. 13 (AP)—Palestine authorities, fearing outbreaks here today on the occasion of the Moslem Sabbath, doubled guards on posts in the city and at its approaches.

The Jewish newspaper, Doar Hayam, was suppressed. No reason was given.

A secret meeting of Palestine and Transjordon Bedouins was said to have taken place with the authorities posting troops along the Jordan to prevent any incursions.

The Jewish telegraph agency said the colony of Nishmar Hayardon in northern Galilee has been raided three times and stoned. Two Jews were said to have been wounded at Mahnayin, but it was not known if an Arab attack was responsible for their hurts.

Examination of bodies of the Hebron riot victims exhumed to determine if they were mutilated by the Arab attackers has been discontinued. It was said further examination was impractical.

Funeral services were conducted today at Kings Chapel for Harris Livermore, Boston passenger on transcontinental air liner, City of San Francisco, wrecked near Alburquerque, N. M.

Obsequies were simple but impressive, the usual Kings Chapel ritual being read by the Rev. John Carol Perkins, D. D., rector. There were no pall bearers.

Long before the hour for the services had arrived the church auditorium was filled with relatives and friends.

Delegations were in attendance from the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Boston banking institutions and from all local steamship offices.

COUNTESS ELSA

Stockholm, Sept. 13—The wedding of Countess Elsa Bernadotte, niece of King Gustaf of Sweden, and sister-in-law to the former Miss Estelle Manville of New York, to Hugo Cedergren, secretary of the Swedish Y. M. C. A., will take place on September 18.

It is stated that Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus and Crown Princess Louise of Sweden will be guests at the wedding which will be held in the rural church of Groedinge, in the central province of Soedermanland, the summer residence of Countess Bernadotte's parents, Prince and Princess Oscar Bernadotte.

Many Compete for 'Best Yankee' Title

Worcester, Sept. 13—Officials at Worcester Polytechnic Institute are receiving some interesting and amusing applications from high school graduates who hope to win the "Yankee Ingenuity" scholarship at the institution this fall.

Twenty-one high school graduates have already filed their applications, and to show his ingenuity one presents a device for burning water, while another presents the age-old problem of perpetual motion.

The formal name of the scholarship to which they are applying is the Henry Fuller matriculation scholarship which yields its holder $600 for his freshman year at school.

City to Pay Bills in Face of Mayor's Edict

Fall River, Sept. 13—Despite Mayor Edmond P. Talbot's edict that there are to be no junkets for city officials during his administration because of his "economy policy," it was known today that superintendent of Schools Hector L. Belisle and his assistant superintendent, Miss Mary A. S. Hogan, will be reimbursed by the city for their expenses incurred in attending the convention at Cleveland in February and March.

Hoover Will Make 2 Speeches on Trip

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—President Hoover will make at least two speeches on his visit to Cincinnati, Louisville and Detroit, late next month.

One of the addresses will be made either at Cincinnati or Louisville and will deal with the development of inland waterways. His visit to those cities will be occasioned by the opening of the last link in the canalization of the Ohio river.

Spellacy Resigns Democratic Post

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 13 (AP)—Thomas J. Spellacy, Democratic National committeeman from Connecticut, today offered his resignation to State Chairman James J. Walsh. His action is due to personal reasons arising out of illness which followed his exertions in the last presidential organization.

52 Autoists Fined $250

Fifty-two motorists arrested in a drive by metropolitan police in Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth paid fines totalling $250 when arraigned before Judges Avery and Nash in Quincy District Court on charges of speeding or other violations of the automobile laws.

SOVIET TROOPS HELD READY TO CRUSH CHINESE

Russia Denies Any Major Encounters Have as Yet Occurred on the Border

Moscow, Sept. 13 (AP)—Soviet authorities insisted today no engagements of a major sort had occurred on the Manchurian frontier, Northeastern Asia, where large Chinese and Russian armies have faced each other for several weeks.

It was said there would be no major activity unless the Chinese saw fit to launch a general offensive, a contingency regarded as extremely unlikely.

It was claimed here there was no disposition on the part of the Soviet Union to enter into anything like real warfare, but that in the event such did materialize the Red army could annihilate the Chinese overnight if allowed a free hand by Japan and other powers.

There were some reports here of renewed fighting. A dispatch from Vladivostok said Chinese troops at Pogranichnaya opened a furious attack on Soviet border detachments. The Chinese were said to have been forced to retreat after a 20-minute battle.

A Chita dispatch to Tass, official Russian agency in the United States, said the Chinese had opened both artillery and rifle fire on Soviet frontier guards near Dalainor and Station 88, five miles west of Manchuli station. A Vladivostok dispatch reported a similar raid as having taken place 35 miles southwest of Pogranichnaya, where a large band of white Russians crossed the border and terrified the local population.

LAUDS WOMAN THIEF CATCHER

Miss Anna Healy, stenographer for the Milton police department, today received a letter from Kenneth Johnson, chairman of the Milton Board of Selectmen, commending her for having effected the capture of an alleged housebreaker.

Miss Healy, answering a telephone call from Mrs. William P. Joy of 460 Central Ave., was told she had surprised a burglar in her home, saw a man answering the description passing the police station.

On her orders Patrolman Michael Murphy arrested the suspect, who proved to be Cornelius Regan, 65, with a long criminal record. In Dedham court Wednesday Regan was held in $10,000 for the superior court.

2 Dead, 7 Injured in Oregon Forest Fires

Portland, Ore., Sept. 13 (AP)—Forest fires continued to spread in western Oregon after they had directly or indirectly claimed two deaths and caused injury to seven others in the state.

J. H. McCubbins of Eugene, was killed and four others were injured when a tree fell upon them while fighting flames near Mable. James W. Fowler, a forest ranger of the Eastern and Western Lumber Company here, died from heart disease said to have been aggravated by a tour of the fire lines near his company's mill at Molalla. Mrs. Audrey Frank, who suffered burns the same day when flames swept her farm home near Mount Angel, was said to be in a critical condition.

Two Sailors Face Charges of 2 Girls

Providence, Sept. 13—A writ of habeas corpus ordering the delivery in Providence County Superior Court of Albert Gagnon of Framingham and Arthur Desmarais of Texas, two sailors, was issued by Judge J. Frederick Frost today. The sailors were arrested on charges brought by two girls, Rose Lamoreaux of Lowell and Dorothy Bourget of Woonsocket.

Undertaker Fined for Stabbing Tires

Chicopee, Sept. 13 (AP)—John A. McAuley, undertaker, arrested some time ago on a charge of slashing personal property by using an embalming needle on auto tires, paid a fine of $50 today after being found guilty.

His arrest followed an epidemic of flat tires and discovery that he was driving about in an expensive car, stopping alongside parked cars to operate on the tires.

PREDICTS BRITAIN WILL JOIN U. S. TO STAMP OUT DRUG EVIL

IMMUNITY HIT BY GENEVA DELEGATE

Mrs. E. M. Swanwick Would Put Teeth in Law for Dope Violators

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.,
Universal Service Special Cable.

Geneva, Sept. 13—More effective co-operation on the part of the British empire in the international campaign to stamp out the narcotic evil is foreseen here today following a talk before the League of Nation's fifth commission, by Mrs. E. M. Swanwick, on behalf of the British delegation.

Mrs. Swanwick devoted special attention to criticising the so-called capitulatory agreements by which foreigners residing in such nations as Egypt and China enjoyed immunity from prosecution in native courts.

QUOTES KITCHENER

Quoting such authorities as Lord Kitchener, Lord Milner and Lord Cromer, Britain's woman spokesman forecast that with its greater freedom restored by the program of Britain's new government, Egypt may be expected to join vigorously in the anti-narcotic campaign.

Those who have felt that the British Empire has been somewhat overcautious in joining movements for most effective measures in dealing with the narcotics' evil believe that the new MacDonald regime will show a greater willingness to co-operate along the lines advocated by the United States, Italy and other nations.

Mrs. Swanwick's remarks concerning Egypt were received with especial interest by the Chinese delegation. It has long been the Chinese view that foreign pressure is largely responsible for the continuance of the opium evil.

CREATES INJUSTICE

Mrs. Swanwick asserted that the capitulatory system in Egypt had encouraged the traffic in women as well as the narcotic trade. It was difficult, she said, to exaggerate the injustice and misery which came with the system.

The capitulatory practice, she pointed out, opposed a solid barrier to all progress in stamping out public immorality such as the nacotic traffic which has become a practical monopoly in the hands of unscrupulous foreigners out of the reach of Egyptian courts.

Under the new program made possible by the latest British effort, Mrs. Swanwick asserted she felt confident Egypt would be able to take vigorous action in conjunction with other nations in dealing with the questions of traffic in women and narcotics.

FRIDAY, 13TH, HIS LUCKY DAY

Just as it looked as though there would be no Friday the 13th story, Lt. Frank C. Crowley, air mail pilot, came to the rescue.

Last night he lost a wristlet, bearing the number 13 on it Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers gave it to him last year at the Lowell air meet.

He refused to take off from the Newark airport with the mail the day until it was found. After it was found he took off, but landed at Framingham because the weather looked doubtous. Informed by the Boston Airport that he had 700 feet altitude and a mile visibility at the field, he started again, following the railroad.

Landing at the airport, he explained that 13 had always been a dominant figure in his life.

Lieut. Crowley was born on the 13 of the month. He learned to fly in a ship numbered 13. He soloed on the 13th. His present ship bears the numbers six and seven, totaling 13.

The Friday the 13 story is in.

Lynn Man Arrested in Theft of Auto

When Clarence Richards of Liberty st., Lynn, returned home from his vacation today he was arrested for the alleged larceny of a motor car. He was held in $1000 bonds for his appearance in court next Friday.

Richards, it is said, hired a motor car from a Lynn auto renting company, ostensibly to tour to Nova Scotia. He burned the car in Moncton, N. B., according to authorities in that place, and sold the remains for junk.

Women Fliers Plan to Stage Refueling Endurance Flights

Los Angeles, Sept. 13 (AP)—Two refueling endurance flights with women pilots at the controls, are scheduled to start here in the near future.

Bobbie Trout, plans to fly a biplane in one of the attempts and is surveying the available field of women fliers for a partner.

Peggy Paxson, 17, and her 19-year-old flying partner, Lucille Wallingford, have announced that plans are almost complete for their attempt in a light plane. They hope to stay aloft 150 hours. Later they plan a heavy plane endurance flight.

The record for endurance refueling flights for men is 420 hours 34 minutes 30 seconds.

Greatest Land Plane in Debut, 12 Aboard

Fokker Field, N. Y., Sept. 13 (INS)—The new 32-passenger Fokker plane, prima donna of the air, made its debut today and flew like an angel.

Lieut. Harry Johnson piloted the plane. For 25 minutes he flew at a height of 600 feet for a score of miles. It was like riding a bicycle.

The 11½-ton machine took off as easily as a baby carriage.

The pilot shut off two of the Hornet engines and the new heavyweight champion of the air banked and climbed on half its power with remarkable ease.

The 10 passengers, on comfortable chairs, enjoyed the flight.

This is the largest land plane in the world. Its gross weight is 22,500 pounds.

Besides Lieut. Johnson, who is chief of the army engineering test branch at Wright Field, Dayton, O., co-pilot James P. King of the Western air express was aboard.

Briand's Union Plan Approved by Cabinet

Rambguillet, France, Sept. 13—Premier Briand's idea of a "United States of Europe" was approved by the French cabinet at its first meeting since The Hague reparations conference began, August 3.

Premier Briand in a three-hour session reviewed for his colleagues everything he had done at Geneva, including his conversation on the European confederation, and his actions were fully approved.

The date for the reassembling of Parliament was fixed for October 22, when the question of approving the Young plan will come up.

MAINE HAS BIG POTATO CROP

Aroostook county, Maine, potato growers look forward to the best season since the famous harvest of 1924 which brought most of them unheard of wealth.

The New England Crop reporting service today predicts an unexpected total of 52,234,000 bushels in New England this year. This compares with 48,092,000 bushels in 1928.

Maine is expected to contribute 42,900,000 bushels. This will be 9 per cent more than harvested last year and 16 per cent of the five-year average 1923-1927.

There also will be a heavy crop of commercial apples.

The New England estimate is rated about 1,800,000 barrels compared with 1,479,000 barrels harvested a year ago.

This outlook is based on reports from Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The situation in Connecticut is rather discouraging, the crop reporting service announced, with the estimate from that state is nearly 50 per cent less than harvested last year.

Fisherman Drowns When Boat Upsets

Plymouth, N. H., Sept. 13—Bradley Wallace, who lived near Squaw Cove, Asquam Lake, Holderness, was drowned while on a horn-pout fishing trip with two other companions.

The party was fishing in Squaw Cove when they undertook to pull up the anchor. The boat capsized, throwing the three of them into the water. With Wallace were Henry Bruce and Malcolm Eastman, both of Ashland. When the boat upset Wallace being an excellent swimmer started for shore. Eastman could not swim a stroke but Bruce could.

Opera Singer Weds the Same Man Twice

Reno, Sept. 13 (AP)—Loranis Carrington Cross Welsh, former opera singer, has been married twice to the same man. She obtained a Reno divorce from Osgood Welsh and in August was married to Roland Malcolm Scott of Hollywood's moviedom in Tijuana, Mexico. She insisted on another marriage in this country. So there was a wedding in a hospital. She is recovering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

Flag Champions Are Greeted in Prague

By FLOYD E. WILLIAMSON
Escort of the American Flag Champions Going Around the World as Guests of the Hearst Newspapers.
Special Cable Dispatch.

Prague, Sept. 13—America's youthful flag champions, winners of the recent contest held by the United States Flag Association and sponsored by the Hearst newspapers, arrived here after a busy 24 hours of entertainment on their last day in Austria, which included a reception by President Milkas and a luncheon at the palace of American Ambassador Washburn.

Their arrival here anticipated even more Central European hospitality. Only the lateness of the hour prevented a demonstration by Czech students, but that lack was made up by a special entertainment by the famous Sakula singers, who, it will be remembered, made a tour of the United States two years ago.

The program was arranged by Prague's Minister of Education, Emil Praus. Thousands of Czech boys and girls waved greetings to the American youths and extended friendly ovations.

The champions were met at the station by John Sterett Gitting, of the American embassy in the absence of Minister Einstein. Mrs. Gitting held a delightful reception in the garden of her home, which has long been known as one of the show places of Prague.

Following Mrs. Gitting's tea, the champions, accompanied by delegation students, visited the many historic and picturesque spots that have made this place famous. These included the museum, the Cathedral Saint Vitus and the royal palace.

Before leaving for Berlin today, the young Americans were to place wreaths at the tomb of Czecho Slovakia's unknown soldier and the statue of Woodrow Wilson.

AUSTRIA FEARS CIVIL WAR

Vienna, Sept. 13 (INS)—The Austrian republic, which was previously regarded as the most peaceful and democratic among the small states of Central Europe, is upon the verge of civil war today.

Strenuous efforts are being made by the Government to avert bloodshed between the extreme factions and a possible coup d'etat by adherents of a military dictatorship. One of the most serious struggles is between the Fascists and the Socialists. Austrian newspaper dispatches tell of clashes between armed organizations of Fascists and Social Democrats. These told of fighting between "heimwehr troops and "socialist schutzbund troops," with heavy losses at some points.

Confesses Unsolved Murder of Dentist

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The mysterious murder almost two years ago of Dr. Jacob Gross, Columbus Circle dentist, has been solved, police announced today.

Hyman Hirsch of Brooklyn, today signed, according to police, a written confession that he shot the dentist in his office on October 28, 1927, while attempting to rob him.

In his confession, according to the police, Hirsch said he and two other men whose names he does not know, attempted to hold up Dr. Gross.

Flier Lost 18 Days in Woods Is Rescued

The Pas, Man., Sept. 13—Lost for 18 days in the wilds of Northern Manitoba after his plane was forced down by lack of fuel, C. F. Mews, youthful airman, is resting safely in Thicket Portage.

He was rescued about 30 miles west of Oxford House by V. Partridge, a fellow-aviator, who sighted him from the air.

His clothes in tatters, due to making his way through thick brush, he had lived principally on berries and was thin and haggard.

Germany Bans All Foreign Sound Films

Stuttgart, Sept. 13 (AP)—Another step in the war on American sound films was taken here when a boycott on foreign produced tone films was unanimously voted at a crowded meeting of the German National Assn. of moving picture theater owners. A further resolution advocated a strong national government censorship, but urged reduction of the censorship age for children from 16 to 18.

G. A. R. VETS GO SIGHT SEEING IN PORTLAND

Choice of New Officers and Cincinnati for Next Year Ends Encampment

Portland, Me., Sept. 13—New officers and the place for the 1930 encampment having been chosen, veterans attending the 63rd National reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic today turned their attention to sight-seeing and recounting old tales.

Edwin J. Foster, of Worcester, one of the youngest comrades of the Civil War, today was the new commander-in-chief, having been chosen on the third ballot. Commander Foster is 78.

Cincinnati, Ohio, was designated as the location for next year's encampment.

Another major decision, made by the aged veterans, "disapproved" the proposal for the G. A. R. to hold joint sessions with the united confederate veterans.

National officers elected besides Commander Foster are: Senior vice commander, Charles E. Nason, of Gray, Me.; junior vice-commander, James W. Shields, of Boise, Idaho; surgeon-general, Dr. Edward H. Carson, of Crawfordsville, Ind., and chaplain, the Rev. J. King Gibson of Dayton, O., re-elected.

The National Women's Relief Corps elected Mrs. Margaret Bennet, of Pittsburgh, Pa., president.

Theodore C. Sazeau, of Rochester, N. Y., was elected national commander of the Sons of Union Veterans.

TWO JAILED IN STOCK FRAUD

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The first convictions in the United States attorney's drive against fake stock sales and financial bucket shops were made in Federal court today.

Charles F. Rideal, 75, and Richard W. Wood fall, 65, both English men, were found guilty on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of Universal Utilities stock.

Judge K. T. Ervin sentenced Rideal to four years and Woodfall for whom the jury had recommended mercy, to a year and a day in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia.

The Universal Utilities Co. was organized to promote the manufacture and sale of an ink invented by Rideal.

Part of the evidence against Rideal consisted of letters he sent to friends in England, in one of which he called Americans, "as silly a set of geese as were ever plucked by human hands."

Carnival Man Slain by Rivals; All Escape

Chicago, Sept. 13—Rival carnival racketeers caused the death of Charles S. Brown, who was "taken for a ride," police believed.

Brown, known as a minor politician and street carnival hanger-on, was shot to death in a speeding automobile and his body tossed out in the outskirts of Chicago.

MUSSOLINI OUT FOR UNION OF ALL PARTIES

Relinquishes Cabinet Posts in the Plan for Coalition With Clericals

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI
Universal Service Special Cable
Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.

Rome, Sept. 13 — The eventual dissolution of the Fascist power and coalition of Fascism with the Catholic party is seen today as the policy behind Premier Benito Mussolini's surprising Cabinet shifts.

The program of this vast movement initiated by Mussolini yesterday, in which he relinquished seven of the nine cabinet portfolios he held, appointing nine new ministers, and naming twelve men under-secretaries, is said to mean:

1—That Mussolini plans eventually to dissolve the Fascist party.

2—That he intends to change completely the present system of administration.

3—That, by the change he hopes to bring the government, the nation and the Fascist organization into unity.

Authoritative statements point to a "third period of the Fascist party," the rejuvenation of Italy under Fascist direction in all forms of industry, banking, politics, national spirit, education, agriculture, and army and navy, by working in conjunction with the religious elements.

TO DEVELOP INDUSTRY

Mussolini's known program for the future is to devote his own powerful energies to the development of industry, business and agriculture in Italy, and throughout its colonies. By this means, Il Duce hopes to create a firmer basis upon which to build up the liberal feeling of unified governmental will human endeavor that will lead to more open acceptance of progress throughout the nation.

MARCH ON ROME

Mussolini's campaign to bring Italy out of the depth of a despondency which buried national accomplishments after the World War, began with the famous march on Rome seven years ago.

The "third period of Fascism" which now looms on tomorrow's horizon can almost be called a second renaissance for the nation. Industries are humming with the buzz of producing developed by Il Duce's progressive tactics. Art, science, banking, agriculture, military and marine accomplishments are again fostered in a country that for almost a decade had slipped into the background of international endeavor. Mussolini has succeeded, by Fascism, in rehabilitating the nation and now, by yesterday's act, offers the Fascist power to the nation for future national development.

JUDGE IRATE IN RED MOB CASE

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 13—Acting on his own initiative, as he did in instituting an investigation of the mob violence of Monday night, Judge Thomas J. Shaw today ordered Sheriff Irwin to place definite charges against C. M. Lell and C. D. Saylor, arrested during the night with six other Communists, or to free them.

Lell and Saylor, who were kidnaped by a mob Monday night, appeared before the judge yesterday in his investigation of mob activities. Today the judge was advised that Lell and Saylor were in jail. He ordered them into court.

When they appeared the judge asked what the charges against them were. Lell and Saylor replied that they did not know.

The judge then ordered Sheriff Irwin brought into court. The sheriff told the judge that no charges had been made against the men.

"I am not going to permit the State's witnesses to be interfered with," Judge Shaw told the sheriff. "If they have violated the law they must be punished but if they haven't they will be released."

Several State's witnesses were not in court and Judge Shaw set the hearing for the fourteen Gastonia mill men and policemen arrested on charges of kidnaping, conspiracy to kidnap, false imprisonment and false arrest, over until 2:30 p. m. today.

The other six men under arrest were still held on a "held for investigation" booking at the county jail. Officials said they had not determined what charges would be preferred.

It was stated at the International Labor Defense office that of the eight men arrested overnight on charges of having firearms, only George Saul is affiliated with the Communist party.

Propose Free Golf Course in Weymouth

The Weymouth Chamber of Commerce announced that it will submit proposals for a free public golf course for this town at a special town meeting to be held Monday night. The advisability of such a course and means of financing it will be considered at the meeting. Plans call for a nine-hole course, to be located on a 44-acre tract of vacant land on Essex st., near the town infirmary.

BULLET HOLES IN 'TIN BUBBLE' MYSTIFY CREW

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 13—The world's first successful all-metal dirigible, Tin Bubble, with bullet holes in her metal bag, is resting in the naval air hangar here alongside the Los Angeles and two baby blimps.

The new arrival, ZMC-2, was flown from Detroit to undergo a series of test flights before being formally accepted by the navy for use in training student fliers.

The Tin Bubble's 550-mile flight in charge of Capt. William Kepner of the United States army, was so uneventful that its crew of three was unaware of two bullet holes in the ship's huge metal gas chamber that were allowing the precious helium to escape.

Members of the ground crew that brought the ship to earth discovered the bullet holes as they were walking the craft into the hangar. From the angle at which the bullet entered the other side, Capt. Kepner expressed the belief that the shot had been fired while the ZMC-2 was passing low over a mountain, probably somewhere in Pennsylvania.

The craft averaged slightly more than 40 miles an hour on its flight, despite the fact that it bucked strong headwinds most of the way.

Nearly the same length as the Navy blimps, the all-metal ship is unique in its girth. Much larger around, its sheath of thin aluminum alloy makes a single huge compartment that the helium lifting gas is pumped directly into, differing from the many gas cells of the fabric dirigibles.

Many officers inspected the new all-metal sky prowler, silently appraising the equipment in its enclosed cabins. They were noncommital as to what they think about the future for this tinsmith's fantasy.

MRS. PANTAGES SOBER, SAY 6 WITNESSES

Los Angeles, Sept. 13 (AP)—Defence guns were trained today on evidence which the state, during six and a half days, marshalled against Mrs. Lois Pantages, charged with second degree murder.

The state has contended the wife of Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, was intoxicated when her automobile collided with a car driven by Juro Rokkurnoto, a Japanese, who died several days after the accident. The defence has indicated its chief point would be that an intervening operation might have caused the death of the Japanese. Physicians, appearing as state witnesses, testified the operation was not an emergency one.

Max Steuer of New York and W. I. Gilbert and Joseph Ford of Los Angeles, defence counsel, placed their first four major witnesses on the stand.

Mrs. Bertha Jacobs, defence witness, said to the best of her knowledge the defendant was sober 15 minutes before the collision. She had ridden into Los Angeles with Mrs. Pantages and had left the car just before the accident.

John Conterno, owner of a service station at the scene of the crash, related that Mrs. Pantages' automobile was forced to the left of the street by a touring car. Conterno said Mrs. Pantages was "just out cold" after the accident and that he saw no signs of intoxication.

Mrs. Edna Taylor and Dr. C. A. MacDonald, who treated her, testified they found no evidence of intoxication.

Spray Dump in War on Newton Rodents

Heeding pleas of residents of the Roland st. section, Newton Highlands, for relief from rats and other pests that have overrun their homes from a nearby dump, the Newton Board of Health is directing an experiment in an effort to abate the nuisance. Large quantities of crude oil are being sprayed over the dump by a contractor.

Two Slayers Go to the Electric Chair

Eddyville, Ky., Sept. 13 (AP)—Carl Hord, 21, of Louisville, and Ivan Hutsell, 27, Oldham county, convicted of murder, were executed today in the electric chair at the Kentucky state penitentiary.

Hoard was convicted of the holdup slaying in 1926 of Marion George, a grocer. Hutsell was convicted of the murder of John Ditchler, 38, and Mrs. Rose Ditchler, who had testified against him at a felony trial in Indiana.

GIRL INVOLVES WOMAN IN BIG BANK COUP

Denver, Col., Sept. 13 (AP)—E. B. Averill, special operative of a Denver investigating service, said today Miss Frances Carlson, 18, stenographer in the Bank of Telluride, told him she "unwittingly" sent from Denver two of the six faked telegrams by which C. D. Waggoner sought to defraud six New York banks of $500,000.

Miss Carlson is one of the persons subpoenaed by a federal grand jury in New York as witnesses. She told the detective she had sent the telegrams from Denver at the request of a woman she did not know and who told her it was a bit of work for Waggoner.

In addition to a signed statement from Miss Carlson, Averill said he had in his possession a "practice sheet" on which the young woman had copied the faked telegrams dictated by Waggoner. The detective said the "practice sheet" bore the names of the six Denver banks which were signed to the telegrams that resulted in building up the $500,000 credit in New York.

On this sheet, the detective reported, Miss Carlson wrote the messages dictated by Waggoner and, when she had completed them without mistake, typed each separately. These were placed in sealed envelopes in the banker's desk.

Waggoner asked her to accompany him to Denver, and they were met here by Mrs. Waggoner.

Miss Carlson said that on August 30, a woman unkown to her, told her Waggoner wanted her to file two messages, contained in a sealed envelope at a telegraph office. She said she filed the messages without reading them and then returned the envelope to the woman. Miss Carlson said she had not seen the woman before or since and had not learned her name.

Morgan and Young Pick Bank Delegates

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The New York Times says today Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York, and Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, have been appointed as American representatives on the sub-committee created to draft statutes of the Bank of International Settlements.

They were named by Owen D. Young, author of the reparation plan, of which the International Bank is an important factor, and J. P. Morgan, delegate to the Paris Experts Commission, which adopted the Young plan.

Big German Colony Is Planned in Mexico

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 13 (AP)—A plan for settlement of 15,000 German immigrants on 350,000 acres of land near Acapulco, on the West Coast of Mexico, was announced today by Charles M. Thomsen, Seattle capitalist, president of the German-Mexican Company, owner of the land.

The company, incorporated under Washington laws, is planned as a $12,500,000 concern. Thomsen said about 800 families, or 3000 persons, already have advised the company of their intention to migrate from Germany to the company's holdings.

SHARP TARIFF ISSUE BETWEEN TWO PARTIES

Washington, Sept. 13 (INS)—"Protective tariff versus competitive tariff."

This was the issue drawn in the Senate today between the Republican organization and the Democratic-Insurgent coalition in their warfare over the administration's new tariff bill. The Republicans fought for tariff rates high enough to "protect" American industry and agriculture against cheap foreign importations.

The coalition battled for rates only high enough to match the difference in cost of production at home and abroad. This issue was laid down in the opening statements of opposing leaders.

NEW DEMOCRATIC POLICY

Senator Simmons (D.) of North Carolina, minority tariff leader, declared his party had changed its tariff stand since the days of Cleveland and Bryan and that now the doctrine of a "competitive tariff" was the "law of the party."

This pronouncement was pounced on by Republican leaders, who were prompt to charge the Democrats with a change of heart and said a "competitive tariff" was worthless in the modern industrial and economic world.

The sponsors of the administration's new bill came under fire from two directions, even as the Democrats embraced the tariff doctrine.

INDUSTRY COMPLAINS.

First, a group of industrialists, headed by William Grundy of Pennsylvania, called upon the Republican tariff leaders with a complaint that the Senate industrial rates were far too low. The industrialists demanded restoration of many House rates.

Sharpshooters from the Democratic-insurgent coalition simultaneously assailed the "protection" given agriculture in the new bill. After Senator Smoot (R.) of Utah admitted that some of the farm product duties were "useless paper rates," Senator George (D) of Georgia charged the bill would damage agriculture by increasing the cost of living to farmers while giving them no additional benefits.

Senator Blaine (R.) of Wisconsin also assailed the new bill as certain to raise the cost of living to farmers.

Woman Saved From Death by Boy Scout

Portland, Me., Sept. 13 (AP)—A 16-year-old Boy Scout today saved an unidentified woman from being run over by a train in Union Station, as members of the G. A. R. and affiliated organizations entrained.

Lester Berry of Westbrook, the Scout, was on duty at the station. The woman, witnesses said, who tried to board a train which was in motion, lost her balance and fell off the platform. Berry jumped to her aid and dragged her to safety.

Merger of Breck Concerns Announced

Two of the oldest companies doing business in New England, the Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation, of Boston, and the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co. of Lexington, have merged under the firm name of Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation, it was announced.

Bandits Lock Victim in Closet; Phone Aid

Chicago, Sept. 13 (INS)—Two considerate young bandits who robbed the apartment of Harry Ex several hundred dolars in valuables, locked Mr. and Mrs. Ex in a closet, fled and then telephoned neighbors to release the couple. Thye were sought by police today.

King Walks to Church Again

Student Badly Scalded in Vat

Providence, R. I., Sept. 13—Lawrence Harrington, 22, of Riverside, senior at Boston University and widely known in amateur athletics, died at St. Joseph's Hospital of burns suffered when he fell into a vat of scalding water at the East Providence refinery of the Standard Oil Co. Harrington, employed at the plant during the summer vacation, was working over the vat on an angle beam when he lost his footing.

FINED IN FIGHT OVER HUB GIRL

Springfield, Sept. 13—A stone and fist fight, in which a Boston girl was badly beaten, resulted in the arrest of the chief transgressor, a Warwick (R. I.) young man.

The fight is said to have started in a roadhouse near the state line when Arthur M. Brown, 24, of Warwick spoke to Miss Marion King of Boston.

Miss King's escort resented a remark and free-for-all hostilities followed.

A state trooper found Brown's party and Miss King's party in the mixup. Several members of both groups were trying to pull Brown away from Miss King, whom he was pummeling with his fists.

England Lets Kenny's Barber in for 4 Days

London, Sept. 13 (AP)—The New York barber of William F. Kenny, millionaire contractor, detained by immigration authorities at Southampton when he arrived on the Leviathan today, has been given permission to land in England.

Louis Arico, for whose services Mr. Kenny telephoned when he decided European barbers were not equal to clipping his rather scanty locks, was so delighted with the chance of coming to Europe, that he sailed from New York without his passports.

Permission to land has been given on the understanding that Louis will return to New York when the Leviathan sails next Tuesday, as he had originally intended.

Meanwhile, since Mr. Kenny has been adequately trimmed by a London tonsorial artist, Louis will spend his time sightseeing.

He was asked if he had brought his barber's tools, and he replied. "Yes, I always carry them with me to trim and shave myself. But I certainly do not intend to do any work now during the four days I will be in England.

"Mr Kenny invited me over to have a real holiday."

Drawn as Jurors

Haverhill, Sept. 13—John A. Busfield, Arthur J. Littlefield, William J. Law and Harrison R. Cole have been drawn by the city council as petit jurors to report for duty in the Superior Court at Salem Monday, October 7.

Appeals Sentence for Drunken Driving

Found guilty of five complaints in connection with tipsy driving, William E. Davis, Sudan st., Dorchester, appealed a fine of $60 and sentence of four months imposed by the municipal court.

Coolidge Sees 'Party Spirit' on the Wane

By CALVIN COOLIDGE.
Article No. 3

IN determining upon all his actions, the President has to remember that he is dealing with two different minds.

One is the mind of the country, largely intent upon its own personal affairs and, while not greatly interested in the government, yet desirous of seeing it conducted in orderly and dignified manner for the advancement of the public welfare.

Those who compose this mind wish to have the country prosperous and are opposed to unjust taxation and public extravagance.

At the same time they have a patriotic pride which moves them with so great a desire to see things well done that they are willing to pay for it. They gladly contribute their money to place the United States in the lead. In general, they represent the public opinion of the land.

But they are unorganized, formless, and inarticulate. Against a compact and well-drilled minority they do not appear to be very effective. They are nevertheless the great power in our government. I have constantly appealed to them and have seldom failed in enlisting their support. They are the court of last resort and their decisions are final.

Political Mind

They are, however, the indirect rather than the direct power. The immediate authority with which the President has to deal is vested in the political mind. In order to get things done, he has to work through that agency.

Some of our Presidents have appeared to lack comprehension of the political mind. Although I have been associated with it for many years I always found difficulty in understanding it. It is a strange mixture of vanity and timidity, of an obsequious attitude at one time and a delusion of grandeur at another time, of the most selfish preferment combined with the most sacrificing patriotism.

The political mind is the product of men in public life who have been twice spoiled. They have been spoiled with praise and they have been spoiled with abuse.

With them nothing is natural, everything is artificial. A few rare souls escape these influences and maintain a vision and a judgment that is unimpaired.

Get Publicity

It is because in their hours of timidity the Congress becomes subservient to the importunities of organized minorities that the President comes more and more to stand as the champion of the rights of the whole country.

Organizing such minorities has come to be a well-recognized industry at Washington. They are oftentimes led by persons of great ability, who display much skill in bringing their influences to bear on Congress.

They have ways of securing newspaper publicity, deluging senators and representatives with petitions, and overwhelming them with imprecations that are oftentimes decisive in securing the passage of bills.

While much of this legislation is not entirely bad, almost all of it is excessively expensive. If it were not for the rules of the House and the veto power of the President, within two years these activities would double the cost of the government.

Under our system the President is not only the head of the government, but he is the head of his party. The last 20 years have witnessed a decline in party spirit and a distinct weakening in party loyalty.

While an independent attitude on the part of the citizen is not without a certain public advantage, yet it is necessary under our form of government to have political parties. Unless someone is a partisan, no one can be an independent.

Many occasions arise in the Congress when party lines are very properly disregarded, but if there is to be a responsible government proceeding in accordance with the express mandate of the people, and not merely at the whim of those who happen to be victorious at the polls, on all the larger and important issues there must be party solidarity.

It is the business of the President as party leader to do the best he can to see that the declared party platform purposes are translated into legislative and administrative action.

Oftentimes I secured support from those without my party and had opposition from those within my party in attempting to keep my platform pledges.

Such a condition is entirely anomalous. It leaves the President as the sole repository of party responsibility.

But it is one of the reasons had the presidential office has grown in popular estimation and favor while the Congress has declined. The country feels that the President is willing to assume responsibility, while his party in Congress is not.

I never felt it was my duty to attempt to coerce senators or representatives, or to take reprisals. The people sent them to Washington. I felt I had discharged my duty when I had done the best I could with them. In this way I avoided almost entirely a personal opposition, which I think was of more value to the country than to attempt to prevail through arousing personal fear.

People's Champion

It is natural for man to seek power. It was because of this trait of human nature that the founders of our institutions provided a system of checks and balances.

They placed all their public officers under constitutional limitations. They had little fear of the courts and were inclined to regard legislative bodies as the natural champions of their liberties.

They were very apprehensive that the executive might seek to exercise arbitrary powers. Under our Constitution such fears have seldom been well founded.

The President has tended to become the champion of the people because he is held solely responsible for his acts, while in the Congress, where responsibility is divided, it has developed that there is much greater danger of arbitrary action.

It has therefore become increasingly imperative that the President should resist any encroachment upon his constitutional powers.

One of the most important of these is the power of appointment. The Constitution provides that he shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint.

A constant pressure is exerted by the Senators to make their own nominations, and the Congress is constantly proposing laws which undertake to deprive the President of the appointive power. Different departments and bureaus are frequently supporting measures that would make of them self-perpetuating bodies to which no appointments could be made that they did not originate.

Trials of Post

WHILE I have always sought co-operation and advice, I have likewise resisted these efforts, sometimes by refusing to adopt recommendations and sometimes by the exercise of the veto power. One of the farm relief bills, and later a public health measure, had these clearly unconstitutional limitations on the power of appointment.

In the defense of the rights and liberties of the people, it is necessary for the President to resist all encroachments upon his lawful authority.

All of these trials and encouragements come to each President. It is impossible to explain them.

Even after passing through this presidential office, I find it still remains a mystery. Why one person is selected for it and others are rejected cannot be told. Why people respond as they do to its influence seems to be beyond inquiry. Any man who has been placed in the White House cannot feel that it is the result of his own exertions or his own merit. Some power outside and beyond him becomes manifest through him.

As he contemplates the workings of his office, he comes to realize with an increasing sense of humility that he is but an instrument in the hands of God.

St. Stanislaus Memorial

Plans were discussed at the last meeting of the St. Stanislaus Benevolent Association of Chelsea relative to the memorial exercises, October 12, in honor of the late Casmir Pulaski. Many other Polish societies have signified their intention of joining in the exercises.

"O'd Timers" to Meet

The Highland District Old-Timers Club of Chelsea will meet next Tuesday night in Spanish War Veterans hall on Broadway, Chelsea to make plans for their annual reunion and dance. President Henry Quinn will preside at the meeting.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

THE game sensation that has swept America. The rules are simple. You are given, for instance, the word "tear" to unscramble with the letter "h." The Anagramble is "heart." Similarly, to unscramble the word "link" with "s" the Anagramble is "slink."

Remember, you cannot make an Anagramble with a plural—"links" would be wrong. You have to change the complete meaning of the word—"slink" is therefore correct. Nor can you make a different tense of word. For instance, to unscramble "read" with "s" you cannot make it "reads."

You must change the complete meaning. The Anagramble, therefore, is "deare." Now try your hand at these Anagrambles.

(1) THEIR—Unscramble it with a Z.
(2) RELIC—Unscramble it with an O.
(3) SPARE—Unscramble it with a T.
(4) FLIER—Unscramble it with an R.
(5) FATES—Unscramble it with a Y.

Yesterday's Answers: 1—Stored with W is Worsted. 2—Trove with X is Vortex. 3—Taxes with R is Extras. 4—Throb with E is Bother. 5—Sworn with D is Drowns.

SATURDAY in WHITE'S THRIFT BASEMENT

Mothers: Tomorrow you will find not only an unusually large selection of boys' and girls' clothes at savings typical of White's Thrift Basement,—you will find enlarged space, more salespeople, and counters rearranged so that you may shop from one to another quickly, see everything in the least time, and match up the different details of your children's outfits with a saving of time and steps and money.

$5 for boys' herringbone 4 piece knicker suits

4-Piece suits, consisting of coats, vests and 2 pairs of knickers, in herringbone weave —gray, brown, or tan mixtures—for $5. The vest may be either the Tattersall that is shown on the sketch, or the plain regulation kind. Fully lined coats, fully lined knickers, sizes 6 to 16.

$8.95 for boys' 2 long trouser suits

Conservatively styled single breasted suits in gray and tan mixtures. The kind the growing boy likes because they make him feel older. And mothers need not worry about boys outgrowing these suits, when they're only $8.95—sizes 13 to 18.

$1.23 for boys' golf knickers

Durable mixtures in gray, brown, or tan—well made and fully lined—sizes 8 to 16. These knickers, worn with one of our 69c sweaters (below), or with a reversible suede cloth jacket ($2.95) make a real boy's outfit.

55c for boys' shirts or blouses

Novelty printed cotton broadcloths, plain white broadcloths, solid color end-to-end effects—made with long pointed collars and round button cuffs. Blouses are sizes 8 to 15, shirts in sizes 12½ to 14 neckband. These are duplicates of the shirts and blouses that sold on sight on the Thrift Basement's Opening Day — and thrifty mothers will buy them by the half-dozen Saturday.

55c for boys' caps

Mixtures in gray, brown, tan, to go with fall suits. Full lined, leather sweat band, flexible visor.

69c for boys' slipover sweaters

Heather effect mixtures in brown, blue and tan. Mostly plain colors, some trimmed with contrasting colors. V necks—sizes 28 to 36. Many boys will want these to wear under their jackets instead of vests.

55c for boys' ties

Novelty patterns in rayon for the boy who likes either light or dark patterns.

35c a pair for boys' golf stockings (3 pairs $1)

The fancy patterns and colors in these golf stockings were selected to go with the tan, brown, and gray suits which are so popular among boys this fall, so you may select colors and patterns with other clothes in mind.

$1.95 for girls' and boys' school shoes

For girls, patent leather straps, ties, or oxfords—or brown or black leather oxfords that enable them to enjoy their own idea of neatness and newness without losing sight of thrift; sizes 8½ to 2, $1.95.

For boys, black or tan oxfords with wing tips—and wing tips are very swagger and sporting, as boys want to be. Sizes 10 to 13½, $1.95.

$2.77 for girls' raincoat and hat sets

Bright colored glossy waterproof surface with cotton flannelette inside, with two big pockets sewed on. The bonnet style hat to match is included, sizes 7 to 14, $2.77.

29c for girls' stockings (irregulars)

These long stockings for girls are rayon plaited over lisle—the cotton gives them strength and the rayon gives them a touch of gloss. Wide ribbed knit, and various colors, 29c.

$1.94 for girls' "Mother Goose" hats

Adaptions of grown-up styles, yet kept girlish. Mother Goose hats for girls are sold exclusively at White's Thrift Basement in Boston.

Tax Refund Allowed Ludlow, Vt., Concern

Washington, Sept. 13—A refund of $102,659 to the Black Woolen Co., Ludlow, Vt., for over-assessment of income tax in 1917 and 1918, was announced by the internal revenue bureau.

The over-assessments represented deficiencies collected after the expiration of the statutory period and refunded under decisions of the United States Supreme Court.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Shows Diamonds Made From Ordinary Sugar

Minneapolis, Sept. 13—Prediction that large and beautiful real diamonds can be made by man was made to the American Chemical Society by Prof. J. Willard Hershey of McPherson College, McPherson, Kan.

He laid on a glass slide a tiny crystal, the size of a grain of sand. He said it was a real diamond, produced in his laboratory at McPherson. It was made from ordinary pure table sugar, subjected to pressure estimated at 10 tons to the square inch.

He said further that it was the largest man-made diamond in the world, and cited tests to show the audience of chemists that the diamond was real.

It was a clear, transparent crystal, somewhat irregular, with evidence of reflecting light here and there from its uncut, unpolished surface.

Find Ship Wreckage

Helsingfors, Finland, Sept. 13—Several pieces of wreckage found on the Baltic coast were believed to have belonged to the Soviet warships Trotsky and Vojkof, reported lost with all hands during a recent storm on the Baltic.

SAYS MILK MEN PREYED ON

New York, Sept 13—Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, city health commissioner, charged that more than $500,000 has been extorted from New York milk dealers during the past year by a "Protective Association."

Investigations reveal, Dr. Wynne stated, that the association has been "extorting from two to five cents on each 40-quart can of milk handled by the dealers forced to join its membership."

These levies, he said, are called "dues" and when the organization was formed an "assessment" of $1.50 a can was made.

Not Bleached

Children—Invalids

Ceresota Flour is a wonderful health flour because it is ground from the finest wheat obtainable. This is proved by the fact that it is not bleached. Ceresota is especially recommended for the diet of children and invalids.

Fewer Beggars on Streets, Why?

Editor Boston American:

Begging is getting to be quite a business in large cities. There is no direct way of finding out how much beggars in Boston draw from the public daily. Over 4000 beggars in New York City solicit daily about $125,000 from people living in that city and visitors. This is the report of Mendicant Officer John Geoffrey of New York City recently made.

So responsive have people been in the Boston business section to beggars that two legless mendicants have retired from Boston streets and are tired of the business. This information was imparted to me by a worker in Social Welfare. I noticed lately that there are fewer beggars on the streets and would like to know the reason for this.

Roxbury. U. T. 1.

Are Rural Towns Going Backward

Editor Boston American:

Is fetish of local self-government outworn? Are our small towns to be swallowed up by the great Commonwealth?

The question is—is it good or bad? Some, no doubt, will view the prospect with alarm, they will deplore the "ruthless materialism" of a soulless age. But who does not realize that we have with us the problem of the "backward community?"

Recently Dr. Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, shocked us here in Massachusetts with the statement that public health work is much better organized in the supposedly backward South than in many of the small towns in New England, particularly rural New England. Our public officials and the "defenders" of New England at once rushed to the breastworks to hurl back the charge. Yet they admitted that adoption of measures for the protection of the health of the entire state must wait upon the voluntary acceptance of local communities. Thus, the milk supply of an entire section may be polluted because of a breakdown in local health work or resistance to "interference" from outside, out of a stubborn pride in independence.

Bankers' Present of "Ship" Admired

Editor Boston American:

A large model of a clipper ship, given to the Sailor's Haven, Water st., Charlestown, by Lee, Higginson & Co., is very much admired by the old "Salts." It adorns the billiard room of the Haven and one like it would certainly look well in another place in the same room.

A Visitor at the Haven.

The Real Talkies Are In Barber Shops

Editor Boston American:

The greatest place to hear real "talkies" is in the average barber shop of the South, West and North ends of Boston. I am a salesman and my territory is in these districts. Just as soon as I scramble into the barber's chair politics begins to spin. "Who's going to be the next mayor of Boston?" That is one of the questions. It is asked of you at all places.

But if you want to hear gossip and rich stories don't look for them in a book, but just get acquainted in barber shops, sell shaving soap and you will get a hat full daily. It's the greatest center for solving the international and national questions of the day. Nothing like it for humor at times.

Four Injured in Cycle-Auto Crash

Concord, N. H., Sept. 13—Four were slightly hurt when a motorcycle driven by Henry L. Noyes of Tilton and having as a side-car passenger Percy Jeffries, also of Tilton, was in collision at Suncook Pond with an automobile operated by Ralph C. Ellis of Windsor, Vt. In the latter's car Melvin Shando of Windsor was a passenger.

Morrill May Run in N. H.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 13—Friends of Arthur F. Morrill of this city, former executive councilor, said that formal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor was expected soon.

NO TRUMP TAKE-OUT WITH SIMILAR SUITER

SALIENT POINTS OF BIDDING

Auction: South holding a semi-two-suiter, Spades and Clubs, and a singleton Heart, quite correctly takes out his partner's Third Hand No Trump bid with his four-card Major suit. North holding but two Spades and apparently two stoppers in the three other suits, bids two No Trumps. South now bids three Clubs to show his partner the two-suited or semi-two-suited character of his holding; leaving his partner to decide as to the best bid for game between the combined hands. North's decision perforce is that there exists a strong probability of game at Clubs, so he leaves the bid in.

Contract—Following North's bid, the subsequent procedure would be the same as in Auction, except that after South's bid of three Clubs, North must make the game bid of five.

The whole strategy of the bidding from first to last was clearly directed toward arriving at the best bid for game. For example, had North bid two No Trumps originally, South would not have embarked upon showing the semi-two-suited character of his hand, but would have bid three No Trumps. Also, had North jumped to three No Trumps following South's take-out, South would in all probability have allowed the bid to stand. The fact that three No Trumps cannot be made against perfect defense should be obvious, whereas five odd in Clubs was easily made.

THE PLAY

West opens with a trump, leading the Ace followed by a small Club, because a trump opening usually offers the best defense against a two-suited hand when the partner of the two-suit bidder has denied one suit and accepted the other, the manifest purpose of this opening being to prevent if possible the establishment by the two-suit bidder of the denied suit by means of the trumps in Dummy.

Declarer, winning the second trick with Dummy's eight of Clubs, enters his own Hand with a Spade and takes the Heart finesse, though holding but one Heart, on the assumption that the Ace must lie with East, since West who has already shown the Ace of Clubs, would probably have made an original bid had he also held the Ace of Hearts.

East in with the Ace of Hearts leads a Spade which Declarer wins with Dummy's King. Declarer discards a Diamond on Dummy's King of Hearts, takes Dummy's two good Diamond tricks and then completely cross-ruffs the hand, winning the rest of the tricks.

ARE YOU BETWEEN 17 AND 35?

For YOUNG WOMEN

Wanted: The Girl of My Dreams

By Rudy Vallée

He tells you of his experiences, his ideals, and paints a picture of the kind of girl he adores. The life story of a man whose voice and personality have charmed ten million women.

A Different Magazine with but ONE AIM . . . to help you get the MOST out of LIFE!

MARGARET SANGSTER the Editor

"Proud of my job," says Margaret Sangster, famous poet, novelist and short story writer. "I am editing Smart Set because I know and admire American girls, and consider them the greatest group of modern, progressive, charming women in the world."

How to develop your personality.
How to find your vocation.
How to get ahead socially.
How to win friends—and hold them
How to make the best of your job.
How to cultivate your natural charm.
How to understand and attract men.
How to dress smartly on a small income.

HAVE you read it yet?—this new, utterly different and fascinating magazine that in six months has leaped into the hearts of half a million young American women?

Everywhere you see it in the hands of smart, clever, charming, get-ahead girls. You see young women of all ages and classes crowding at the newsstands to get the latest copy. In homes you find back numbers still being saved—too valuable to be thrown away.

Why is this? Simply because modern women find in the new Smart Set entertainment, help, common sense, and useful information that no other magazine in America, to-day, can give.

Smart Set is a gay, lively, human magazine that helps you get the most out of life. That tells you how to be the kind of a girl you've always wanted to be; and how to do the things you've always wanted to do.

Smart Set doesn't preach. Its editors are brilliant, fearless and successful young women who have been in the thick of the fight and are in it still. They know life. They know women.

They give you a magazine that is simply pulsing with live, up-to-the-minute, interesting material, dealing with your life, your problems, your interests.

What other magazine but Smart Set shows you how to dress smartly on the average young woman's income?

What other magazine but Smart Set seeks renowned beauties and beauty experts and get them to tell you the secret of their charm, that you may be more charming?

What other magazine but Smart Set engages great business women to tell you how to make the most of your job?

What other magazine but Smart Set tells you how to keep beautiful—how to win friends—how to develop your personality—how to decorate your room yourself—how to hold your own in any group of men and women—how to be successful in life and career—how to make the most out of marriage—how to choose the vocation for which you are best fitted, and every month tells the story of women who have won financial independence through their own efforts.

and the most stirring fiction that money can buy

See what you get in the October issue

In fiction for example, go over any magazine you know and see if you find a story to equal "YOU CAN GET AWAY WITH ANYTHING." How much can a girl get away with, anyhow if she's pretty and clever? F. E. Baily has written a story that will make you cry, and make you laugh, and make you think.

Or, "A GAMBLE IN FUTURES" by Porter Emerson Browne and Joseph Hilton Smyth. A tale of what happens when two attractive and reckless young people fall in love with each other. After all isn't marriage a gamble? What can you foretell of the life you will lead with the man you marry.

Or, "MURDER YET TO COME," by Isobel Briggs Meyers. Where will you find a better mystery story? This one won Smart Set's mystery story contest.

Articles no girl should miss

Below are just a few of the many articles of the type that have won American girls to Smart Set by the tens of thousands.

Last minute ideas from Paris

More than fifty suggestions for making yourself chic and smart—cabled to us from Paris just as we went to press by our expert, Dora Loues Miller.

Fall Fashions are Ladylike—

So says Georgia Mason, famous style authority in her brilliant review of the new fall models. The newest styles beautifully illustrated with photographs—and every model shown in Smart Set may be purchased in your home town shops. Look for them.

Who has the Inside Track—Wife or Secretary?

Allison Bryan asks some pretty pointed questions in this searching article. After you read it you will understand why so many men marry their secretaries.

Don't Grow Old. Don't Get Fat.

You ought to paste these directions for keeping fit over the head of your bed. Don't miss "Taking Out the Kinks" by Mary Lee.

Make your room charming—

Ethel Lewis, the well-known interior decorator tells you how to add smart touches here and there that cost little but make any room gay and inviting.

How to make Your Party a "Wow"—

Two great articles, one by Mabel Clair who outlines simple refreshments any girl can prepare, the other by Edward Longstreth telling you novel parlor games that keep guests interested.

ALL SCORE IN BASEBALL TALKIE

Photoplay ..... "Fast Company"
Type ..... Comedy
Stars .....
Jack Oakie and Evelyn Brent
Theater ..... Metropolitan

By HARLEIGH SHLTZ

THE greatest indoor baseball game you ever enjoyed—that is what you will find in "Fast Company," now at the Metropolitan. Permit us to refer to it as "indoor baseball" because it is played on the silver sheet. But it is big league stuff, with a snap and a zip and a roar that is mighty apt to make you expect to hear somebody cry out back of you, "All up, boys, it's the lucky seventh!" Or some such grandstand exclamation. For here are the crowd, the noise, the cheering, the kick of the real diamond article; and here are, too, samples of acting and talkie excellence that make for first class entertainment. You don't have to love baseball to drink this up, every drop, therefore gladly jot the items down in our book scoring by Jack Oakie and "skeets" Gallagher, and excellent assists credited to Evelyn Brent, Gwen Lee and Sam Hardy.

Jack Oakie

WE shouldn't forget to score ons for Paramount, too. They have taken the stage play, originally "Hurry Kane," then named "Elmer, the Great," and lastly the title the photoplay bears, and has given it added pep and vigor. They make it live. Ring Lardner should get a lot of pleasure out of this handling of his story. Verily, the producers have done well, thanks to Director A. Edward Sutherland and the staff workers.

AT a number of points the motivation is superbly achieved ... dially. You will note, too, that the photography is fine. Baseball on the screen is hardrum, so often seen in the past, that one wouldn't look for anything quite as exciting as this showing. Somehow, a magic touch is given to the scenes here, and baseball just breathes, and has life being, even if only shadowland stuff. Observe, also, the cleverness with which certain of the big points are driven home, especially that passage in the semi-darkness where Oakie, unseen, "faces" Gallagher, wrapped up in bedclothing, on the issue of who wrote the love letters.

GALLAGHER, making good in "Fast Company," also makes good in the big company of filmdom. He will probably learn he can stay in the movies as long as he desires.

ON stage are the "Isle of Melody," a novelty revue. Alex Keese and his band; and Dave Rubinoff leading the big orchestra in an "Operatic Bouquet."

Rogers to Sing in Talkie

Will Rogers is to sing a song in his first talking picture, "They Had To See Paris," now being made by Fox.

Jolson's Little Pals

MARION NIXON and DAVY LEE

MASTER LEE is getting plenty of attention in this scene from "Say It With Songs," Al Jolson's melodious starring vehicle, which opens today at the Tremont and Washington St. Olympia.

PARK OPENS TOMORROW

THE screen version of the stage success, "Broadway," will open the season at the Park Theater tomorrow. It is an elaborate talking, singing, dancing and musical picture with a tense drama of the underworld.

The Park, which has been illustrious in the theatrical history of Boston, having housed in its times the most famous stars of both this country and Europe, now has a new black marble entrance and marquee, while the outer foyer carries a new color scheme which matches decoratively with the inner lobby and the theater itself.

Throughout, the new decorative scheme is in gold crafter, robin egg blue and crimson tones, with new electric light fixtures, side draperies in soft rose tints, new seating, and thorough re-carpeting.

"Ladies of the Jury"

Mrs. Fiske's New Play

Mrs. Fiske's new play, originally announced by A. L. Erlanger and George C. Tyler under the title of "Mixed Jury," will be presented under the new title of "Ladies of the Jury." The play is the work of Fred Ballard.

"Ladies of the Jury" is a comedy satirizing the jury system. Harrison Grey Fiske is staging the play. Mrs. Fiske is surrounded with a company of actors of high merit. The cast includes Wilton Lackaye, who makes his first appearance after an illness of three years, Dudley Hawley, George Farren, Germaine Giroux, George Tawde, Hallie Manning, Eunice Osborn, Marie Hunt, and Claire Grenville.

Ushering Led 'Jarnegan' Players to Stage

Ushering in theaters led to the adoption of the stage as a career by two of the players with Richard Bennett in "Jarnegan" at the Wilbur. Fred Irving Lewis so functioned at the Grand Opera House and Olympic Theater in Chicago before he got a job with a touring company.

Assigned to Story

Enid P. Hibbard has been assigned to write treatment, continuity and dialogue of E. H. Doherty's story, "Murder on the Roof," for Columbia.

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

AN interesting Shubert item concerns the formation of a company known as the New Bostonians to revive Victor Herbert operettas up in Boston this fall and winter concurrently with the same revivals at the Jolson here. Milton Aborn will be director of both companies, which ought to keep Milt tolerably busy for some time to come.

Having put this theatrical business to the test so successfully last season with "Brothers," John Henry Mears has been so favorably impressed with the possibilities that he hurled another play into rehearsal. And certainly he had a fine day for it.

The latest one is called "Fires of Spring" and its author is—ynasty, it is, too!—our old friend, Bob McLaughlin, the Cleveland impresario, whose neglect of the local stage these last few years has been nothing short of appalling. Moreover, Bob, ever with a thrifty eye on the box office of his home bailiwick, has induced John to open the piece in Cleveland on the night of September 23. By a strange managerial coincidence, Mears also would have us believe "Fires of Spring" will replace his other production, "The Nut Farm," in Cleveland that same evening. By then "The Nut Farm" will have concluded a run out there of 22 weeks, and "Fires of Spring" and "The Nut Farm" are coming to Broadway later in the fall.

STAR STATES NEW FILM IS HER BEST

DOLORES DEL RIO declares that in filming "Evangeline" for United Artists she has attained the highest development in her screen career. The photoplay will be screened next week at the Loew's State.

"Peculier though it may seem, to some, I am both happy and sad that the filming of 'Evangeline' to me is but a memory," says Miss Del Rio. "I am no different than anyone else—the carpenter building a house, the composer developing his song, the engineer building a gigantic dam, or any one of hundreds of others, but after wanting to finish my character so that the public might see it and embrace over it as I have, visualizing scenes ahead, now that the work of making the picture—and it was mighty hard work, too—is completed

"I loved to play Evangeline and my affection for the character of this brave and loyal girl of years gone by is deeply rooted in my heart.

"To me, Evangeline was like Joan of Arc. But, instead of being a leader in war, she was a leader in peace and love and her loyalty was shown in her untiring search for love; her patient, persistent devotion to her vows. The counterpart of Longfellow's Evangeline really lived. Evangeline is not a mythical character and this fact made me want to make my interpretation of the role human, accurate and courageous."

Marie Prevost Chosen

Marie Prevost has been selected for the starring role in R-K-O's "The Night Parade." Hugh Trevor and Dorothy Gulliver already have been cast for this all-talker, which Mal St. Clair will direct. It is adapted from the play "Ringside" by Hy Daab, Ted Paramore and George Abbott.

In 'Great Day'

LAURA LEE

MISS LEE is one of the beauties gracing the cast of "Great Day" coming to the Colonial.

"Golden Dawn"

Edward Martindel has been added to the cast of "Golden Dawn" at the Warner studio, where the lineup of players is now complete for this Vitaphone operetta which is being co-directed by Ray Enright and Larry Ceballos. It is an adaptation of the musical show by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein 2nd. Walter Anthony has written the adaptation and the principal roles are enacted by Walter Woolf, Vivienne Segal, Alice Gentle, Nina Quartaro and Lupino Lane.

"Madonna of Avenue A" Opening Tomorrow

"Madonna of Avenue A," latest Vitaphone all talking feature, starring Dolores Costello, with Grant Withers and Louise Costello in important roles, has its first Boston showing in five Publix Theaters—Scollay Square, Fenway, Allston, Central Square, Cambridge; and Strand, Dorchester, starting tomorrow except at the Allston where it opens on Sunday. The Scollay will have its customary vaudeville bill and there will be added sound features and specialties at the other theaters.

Christie Short

Christie has cast Taylor Holmes in "He Did His Best," two reel comedy play by Wilson Collinson. A. Leslie Pearce is directing.

LUPE TO TALK SPANISH IN IRISH FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13—How we can Lupe Velez go Irish? Having heard her talk in her best Spanish accent you know as well as I do that she just couldn't speak with a brogue. That's why I listened so intently when someone told me that George Fitzmaurice was going to direct Lupe Velez in "Blind Raftery," a Celtic romance written by Donn Byrne. But hark a moment. Even though United artists, John Considine, Jr., included, are strong on the Irish stuff, we happen to know that Lupe plays the Spanish wife of a blind, wandering bard. The romance is in Ireland and what Fitz, who is Irish and proud of it, will do to that story is nobody's business.

Louella Parsons

Lest we forget, Donald Novis, a new film personality, will play opposite Lupe. Gary Cooper'd better park himself right on the lot because they tell me Mr. Novis has "it" personified, though Lupe hasn't given any sign of caring for anyone but Gary.

Fitz ought to be well acquainted with the Spanish temperament by now. He seems to crave it, for he is also strongly in favor as the director of Dolores Del Rio in "The Bad One." He will probably direct Senorita Del Rio and later Senorita Velez. Lots of Mexican temperament for one director. Am I right?

FRANK FAY is in Hollywood to stay. Just what Broadway will do without its famous cafe playboy no one has stopped to consider, for Mr. Fay has gone movie with a vengeance. He has just signed a new long term contract with Warner Brothers and will make three pictures this year and one next year. So you see the contract really is more than a passing piece of paper. At the moment they are considering a story by Fay himself, and who better than Frank Fay would know how to write such a number. I wonder if that means Barbara Stanwyck will stay here. So far she hasn't made many pictures, but there is always a chance for girls with a good speaking voice.

HERE girls is where your heart will give an extra beat. Big Boy Williams is to be the hero in "Troopers Three," an original story by Arthur Guy Empey. This picture, according to John M. Stahl, is a cavalry story and it presents Big Boy as Spud Murphy, a corporal, hard-boiled but human. In fact, we are promised he won't be a villain. We just can't bear to have Big Boy pictured in a bad light. Breezy Eason will direct this film, which goes into production almost immediately.

BENNY RUBIN said when he introduced Cliff Edwards and Lawrence Gray at the Roosevelt Hotel Monday night that he was so used to acting with the two boys he felt conspicuous alone. Benny, Cliff and Larry certainly make a fascinating trio and what with the songs of "Marianne" just now being sung over the radio and in all the cafes what could be sweeter than to have the three of them together in another picture. That is what Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is doing. "Only," lament all three in one breath, "we'd like to have Marianne herself," but alas, Marion herself has other engagements.

YOU may take comfort in the thought that Tiffany-Stahl is not going to add any movified touches to "Journey's End." At least, that is the promise, and with James Whale, who directed the stage production, in full charge of the movie, I think we can feel confident that "Journey's End" will be a credit to the talkies. Mr. Whale, who served as a lieutenant in the Worcestershire regiment of the British army, directed and acted in plays produced in prison camps. On his return to England after the war he was a cartoonist for the Bystander, and his first claim to fame was in "Journey's End," which was one of New York's most remarkable stage successes. There will be no woman in the screen version, that we are promised.

whose novel, "Red Likker," which began in March Cosmopolitan, is now a best seller. Read Cobb's story of his visit to South America, now running in Cosmopolitan.

THEODORE DREISER
whose novel of an artist's love life began in February Cosmopolitan. More of this distinguished writer's work in Cosmopolitan next year.

FANNIE HURST
whose novel, "5 and 10," began in April Cosmopolitan. Read her extraordinary short story, "Carousel"—in an early issue.

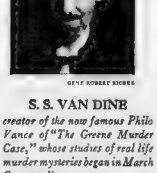
SINCLAIR LEWIS whose first short stories in ten years began in Cosmopolitan. And a new novel by this author in Cosmopolitan next year.

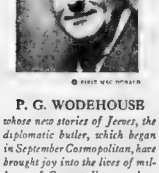
RUPERT HUGHES
whose novel, "Ladies' Man," began in August Cosmopolitan and is setting a new high standard in mystery fiction scaring. Rupert Hughes' serial novels appear only in Cosmopolitan.



S. S. VAN DINE
creator of the now famous Philo Vance of "The Greene Murder Case," whose studies of real life murder mysteries began in March Cosmopolitan.

CYNTHIA STOCKLEY
whose novel of love and loneliness in the African veld began in July Cosmopolitan and has proved more exciting than her famous "Ponjola."

ROYAL BROWN
whose stories of Tommy Jones began in July Cosmopolitan. More of the work of America's favorite writer of young love stories in Cosmopolitan next year.



P. G. WODEHOUSE
whose new stories of Jeeves, the diplomatic butler, which began in September Cosmopolitan, have brought joy into the lives of millions of Cosmopolitan readers.

GOUVERNEUR MORRIS
whose novel, "Driftwood," began in June Cosmopolitan. Look for some new short stories from the pen of this brilliant writer.

SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS
whose novel, "Flagrant Years," began in January Cosmopolitan and started the year with a bang.

WHEN Calvin Coolidge broke a lifetime silence to tell his own story—
When Emil Ludwig wrote his "Life of Lincoln," the book by which he hopes to be remembered—

When the Prince of Wales cast off the bonds of royal tradition and spoke directly to the American people in an authorized interview with Frazier Hunt—

When Irvin Cobb put into his novel, "Red Likker," all his love and understanding of his Kentucky home—

When Theodore Dreiser wrote "This Madness," a novel as frank as Cellini's autobiography—

When Sinclair Lewis again turned his brilliant pen to short stories; when P. G. Wodehouse revived Jeeves, the perfect gentleman's gentleman; when Rupert Hughes wrote "Ladies' Man," which he considers the best novel of his career—

Each author knew that what he had written could command in the publishing market almost any price he wished to put upon it. But to each one of them there was an element of greater importance than money. Each wanted to reach the audience which would understand and appreciate what he said.

Each of them chose Cosmopolitan.

Cosmopolitan publishes month after month more reading matter essential in the life of the person who would be well informed than any other two magazines in America. This includes the weeklies which have 52 issues as against Cosmopolitan's 12.

This may sound boastful. It isn't. Check the features listed under the photographs at the top of this page. They all appeared in the first nine issues of Cosmopolitan in 1929. And remember that even these are less than one-twelfth of the total of features, all almost equally important, which appeared in those first nine issues of Cosmopolitan for 1929.

you will begin a searching new novel of young women and men in business.

By Faith Baldwin
"The Office Wife"

Here is more than mere fiction. Like all Cosmopolitan stories, it is a novel with an Idea, a novel that reflects life as only a trained writer can do it. Miss Baldwin's story will start controversy in business offices as well as in homes. No young woman in business, no wife at home, should miss it. Also in October begins the first of a group of new stories by

Author of
"Show Girl"

Read "Heart Throb," the life and letters of Denny Kerrigan, go-getter salesman of sentimental greeting cards.

And We Will Keep On Doing It!

Here are just a few of the things you can look forward to in early issues of Cosmopolitan:

A new novel by JOSEPH HERGESHEIMER, "The Party Dress," in which the distinguished author of "Cytherea" answers the question, "What chance has a woman after forty?"

And of course it remained for Cosmopolitan to introduce to American magazine readers a breath-taking mystery serial by the man whose books sell in England by the millions. EDGAR WALLACE is his name and his story is called "White Face."

A new novel by ROBERT HICHENS, a story of love and mystery in London's Mayfair, different from anything yet written by the author of "The Garden of Allah."

A new novel by LOUIS BROMFIELD, the finest so far by this most brilliant of young writers, author of "The Green Bay Tree" and "The Strange Case of Miss Annie Spragg."

And that is only a hint of our plans—only a hint!

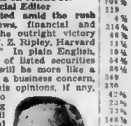
HARVARD IDEA WINS PLACE IN WALL ST.

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Almost unnoticed amid the rush of general news, financial and otherwise, is the outright victory won by Prof. W. Z. Ripley, Harvard common stock.

In plain English, the purchasers of listed securities in the future will be buying a real partner in a business concern, able to voice his opinions, if any, authority.



Prof. W. Z. Ripley

erated a big stir in Wall Street several months ago with his declaration that non-voting common stocks should not be listed. President E. H. H. Simmons comes out with a definite announcement that the Stock Exchange "has taken a position not to list non-voting stock at the meetings of stockholders.

As an emblem of the still very important Massachusetts fishing industry, the "Sacred Cod" comes in for a good deal of attention. When it appeared on the registration plates of our automobiles under Registrar Frank A. Goodwin, it was the representation of a codfish that provoked to a minimum, etc. The cod on our commercial vehicles this year, under Capt. George A. Parker, registrar, is finned and has attracted scant comment.

The "Sacred Cod" as the emblem of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, however, has in turn been attacked as to accuracy of design. State Inspector of Fish Arthur L. Millett, now back from Gloucester, the home of the caught cod, defends the Tercentenary emblem, saying: "I think it is the best I have seen transferred from a line cut to paper, considering the circumscribed space you give it."

The cod, ranging the broad Atlantic, does not take kindly to circumscribed space." Inspector Millett, who for years represented the Boston Evening American in Gloucester, speaks, of course, with a special authority on "line cuts" and other things having to do with the press.

The Gorton Pew Fishers Co., Ltd., has just declared another regular dividend, showing that the cod still fills finny coffers with profit. In Boston the development of the industry represented by the cod is a great many mergers.

President A. K. Tapper of the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange has been invited to be present at the inauguration of securities trading on the Board of Trade of the city of Chicago September 16. President Tapper will be accompanied by the board of directors of the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange and the Boston Curb Exchange. The Boston exchange is the oldest in America. It was the first to undertake the trading in curities on its floor, followed by the New York Produce Exchange.

New York discovery that all the transactions are not recorded on the stock exchange is of value only in that it reveals the fact that large amounts of investment trusts have turned over large blocks at prices above the current market. Even in these days of smaller volume to handle, it has not been claimed that all transactions in stocks have necessarily been recorded on the tape.

Russell H. Leonard, treasurer of the Pepperell Mfg. Co., speaks with authority on the textile, especially as representative of a company which in the fiscal year ended June 30, last, succeeded in earning more than in the previous year. All the mills, you know, have by no means been idle in 1930. Note that Mr Leonard says the industry as a whole still suffers from overproduction.

Mr. Leonard declares: "The Cotton Textile Institute, Inc., has labored hard to educate its members to adopt sound economic principles of production and distribution. Like adult education generally, it is proving difficult and trying to patience and to nothing barely perceptible results; this in spite of the splendid leadership of Walker D. Hines, its president. Under existing anti-trust laws no other method except those being pursued by the Institute have as yet been devised to adjust production and prices so as to yield an adequate return on the producers' investment.

"On the other hand, in common with other cotton textile manufacturers, we are watching with some concern the continued growth and increase in power of the large groups which by practically controlling buying of cotton goods. The manufacturers are in danger of being caught between legal restrictions which prevent their entering agreements among themselves to control production or to fix the price at which they will sell their goods, and the ownership of cotton by groups, large and powerful enough to fix the price at which they will buy these goods if they choose. It is unlikely that an industry thus hampered can for long pay adequate wages and dividends.

"A pertinent query would seem to be: Should not existing laws be amended so as to permit agreements as to production and, perhaps as to price in an industry which for a period of time is in a position where its products are selling at or below cost?"

Cousins Studies Simmons Views on Stocks' Rise

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, Sept. 13—An excess of usable capital rather than a reckless use of credit supplies is responsible for the rise in American security prices, and, if our security markets are suffering from inflation, the cause is the rapidity with which we are generating new capital rather than an undue straining of credit.

This is the view of President E. H. Simmons of the New York Stock Exchange, an economist of unusual ability and one of the most progressive leaders who has ever guided the affairs of the world's greatest security mart. Mr. Simmons told the bankers of Indiana the call loan market, far from being a detriment to the American independent banking system, was a convenience and facility to it, and occasionally an essential factor to its development.

The banks and the security exchanges, according to Mr. Simmons constituted the most important agencies for the distribution of high grade securities among investors and for the maintenance of stable markets for these securities.

"We have all noticed that in all years when brokers' loans were expanding, there has been a parallel expansion in the new security offerings of American investment banks," Simmons declared. In evidence of this fact he pointed out that at the beginning of 1925 there were 433,000,000 shares of stock of all corporations listed on the New York Stock Exchange, compared with 3,000,000,000 shares today.

Thus in five years the listing of stock has more than doubled the amount of shares which had taken more than a century to accumulate. In other markets, such as the London Curb, Chicago Stock Exchange and Los Angeles Stock Exchange, the increase has been in larger proportion.

Mr. Simmons calls attention to the growth in the organization and expansion of American business corporations, and the purchase of foreign securities, has provided an avenue of employment for an increasing volume of American capital, the savings of the working man and the vast accumulations of rich individuals and investing institutions.

He raises an important question, which time alone will answer, as to whether the "grouping and merging of business organizations represents only a desire to exercise control over business properties, without bringing to the situation those improved methods which make these combinations desirable."

In other words he sees a danger of the unwitting use of the security markets for the placing of power over industry in the hands of those who might not have the best interests of the country at heart.

BOND MARKET IS EASIER

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The bond market offered feeble resistance to selling orders today and representative investment issues were moderately lower.

With time money clinging persistently to quotations of 6% to 9 per cent for all maturities, the rates that have prevailed for about a month, prospects for an easement in the credit situation are regarded as discouraging and few ueasee are hazarded as to when the change for time funds will relax.

It was a poor day for the convertibles. After an irregular opening the stock feature issues were swept downward as a fairly active movement in stocks got under way and a number of large losses were recorded. American Telephone 4½s and International Telephone 4½s suffered severely, closing around 4 points each.

Stock Exchange Is Advised of "Rights"

Boston Stock Exchange is advised that holders of common shares of United Electric Corp. and American Founders Corp. of record at close of business September 16 will have right to subscribe for common shares of United States Electric for each five shares, and for one share on basis of one share of United States Electric for each 2¼ shares of American Founders. Payment for the stock must be made on or before October 15th. Inasmuch as the record date for these rights falls upon a Saturday both stocks will sell ex-rights today.

Capacity Operation Assured for DeVry

Q. R. S. DeVry Corporation's sales in August were 50 per cent larger than in August a year ago, T. M. Pletcher, president, announced today. Unfilled orders on the books will keep the company's music and Neon Light divisions operating at capacity for the next 60 days.

Q. R. S DeVry Corporation manufactures musical products, still and motion picture cameras and projectors for both amateur and professional use, Neon tubing and products. C. F. Miller, Brussels, is the Department of Commerce agent in the province. Nine some 20 planes have been sold to private individuals for sport flying.

Radio-Television Orders Are Large

Don M Compton, vice-president and general manager of the Radio & Television Corporation, today announced that the company is prosperous and has orders on its books for approximately $3,500,000 of new equipment from distributors and dealers.

Government Aids Airplane Buyers

Members of flying clubs in Belgium are assisted in the purchase of airplanes for training purposes, the government contributing 60,000 Belgian francs (about $5600), or one-half the price of the two-passenger 100 h p Belgian airplane, according to a report from Commercial Attache R. C. Miller, Brussels, to the Department of Commerce. Up to the present time some 20 planes have been sold to private individuals for sport flying.

North Shore Set Out Tonight For Cabaret Dinner Dance at Magnolia

THIS EVENING'S CABARET dinner dance at Del Monte's in Magnolia will undoubtedly eclipse all previous benefit affairs of the season on the North Shore for brilliance and financial returns. Society has not only reserved every available table in the place but is putting on the show for the Beverly Hospital endowment fund. George Vaughan and Miss Judith Kelley of Wenham are to give a tango interpretation, Mrs. Robert Steinert and Mrs. John Clunis a group of songs in costume, Joseph Seabury a comic skit, and Francis Hart will be heard in his original piano compositions. Miss Louise Fessenden will sing and novelty dances will be given by Miss Betty Pope, Clarence Moore and Jack Royce. Frank Dunn of the Ruby Newman Orchestra is contributing a specialty also.

NUMEROUS DINNER AND house parties add to the gaiety of the occasion. Staying at the John Clunis home over the weekend will be Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Winslow, Mrs. Corinna Walker and Elmer Mitchell, all of whom will attend the very large dinner party arranged by the committee in charge. At this table also will be Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seabury of Dedham as guests of Mr and Mrs. Lyon Weyburn, Mrs. William J. Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Steinert, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Steinert, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. John Perrin. Miss Marie Frothingham will be a guest at this party, also Everett Morss, Mrs. John Waller, George Vaughan, Mrs Wright Martin, Mr. and Mrs Alfred McIntyre and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin T. P. Moseley.

AMONG THE ATTRACTIVE debutantes and young matrons who will sell cigarettes during the evening are Miss Betty Barrell, daughter of Mrs. Augustus Goodwin; Miss Frances Goodwin, Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Jr. (Esther Lowell Cunningham), Misses Nancy and Catherine Olney, Miss Phyllis Ellsworth Miss Constance Perceval and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr. The committee in charge has left nothing undone which might contribute to the success of this event and the whole social world will gather for this final brilliant evening before the colony breaks up for the season.

Miss Barbara Backus is one of the clever wielders of the tennis racquet at the Essex County Club tournament. The 170 entrants in this event have dwindled to a score playing for places in the finals tomorrow. (Staff photo.)

A FALL WEDDING WILL unite Miss Hetty Ivins Ratshesky and Donald Kaffenburgh, whose engagement has just been announced by her mother, Mrs. Theresa Ratshesky of Boston and Swampscott. Miss Ratshesky is a graduate of Miss May's school and a member of the Junior League. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Kaffenburgh of Boston.

MISS VIRGINIA AYRES AND John Bishop, whose wedding will be a social event of tomorrow at Cohasset, are being honored with a large dinner dance this evening at Deer Hill given by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft. Fifty guests will be entertained at this party, which is to be held in the new tea house adjoining the swimming pool at the beautiful Bancroft estate. Miss Rachel Jackson, who gave a luncheon for Miss Ayres earlier in the week, is to serve as a bridesmaid in place of Mrs. William Byrd, Jr., of Short Hills, N J. Mrs. William C. Cox (Jessie Bancroft) is to be the matron of honor, and another member of the family, Mrs. Sherwin C. Badger (Mary Bancroft), will be one of the four bridesmaids.

MISS HELEN THOMAS IS A member of the interesting colony of Bostonians who spent the summer at the seashore and have now gone to mountain resorts for the autumn gaieties. Miss Thomas, who is at the Mountain View House in Whitefield, N. H., was hostess at a house party at the quaint little Lafayette farmhouse at Franconia, where she entertained Miss Priscilla Reddy, Miss Helen Smith and Mrs. Arthur Hall Smith, among others. Miss Thomas is the only woman member of the exclusive Parmachenee Club, fish and game club in the almost inaccessible wilds of Maine, near the Canadian border, where she will go to occupy her camp on Oct. 1 for the hunting season.

OTHERS WHO HAVE ARrived at Whitefield from the shore resorts are Mrs. William L. Allen and Miss Charlotte Allen of Chestnut Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Cutler, Miss Frances and Edward Cutler, Jr., of Milton, Mrs. Henry S. Potter and Miss Peggy Potter of Brookline, and Mrs. W. H. Rothwell, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guild of Dedham, Mrs. George Young and Miss H. A. Thayer, who arrived from Bar Harbor for the autumn season at the Mountain View House. Dr. W. R. MacAusland came from the North Shore to join Mrs. MacAusland and Miss Dorothy MacAusland and Miss Margaret Brayton at the Mount Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cabot, the Misses Nancy and Helen Cabot and Samuel Cabot, Jr., have taken a cottage at Peckett's on Sugar Hill for a fortnight and Miss Elizabeth Peabody of Groton was there this week in company with Miss Kathleen Denegre.

MAE BUSCH IS DIVORCED

Milwaukee, Sept. 13 (AP)—Mae Busch, movie actress, was divorced by John E. Cassell, a salesman, here. Cassell filed suit against the actress last June, charging she deserted him three months after their marriage at Riverside, Cal., in 1926.

The divorce was granted by default, as Miss Busch failed to appear in court and made no defense.

Cassell is the son of Frank T. Cassell, Pasadena (Cal.) oil engineer.

Strikers Fail in Try to Bomb Street Car

New Orleans, Sept. 13 (AP)—Police and deputy marshals were increasing their vigilance against carmen's strike disorders today after a second attempt to dynamite another street car. A car was blown from the tracks Wednesday night a few hours following rejection of a strike settlement plan by the carmen's union.

A package of five sticks of dynamite was hurled from a speeding automobile upon the platform of an Esplanade belt street car, but did not explode.

Funeral Services for F. B. Appleget

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 13—Funeral services were held here for Fred B. Appleget, assistant editor of exchanges of the Hearst newspapers, who died Sunday in New York. Only relatives and close friends gathered at the Hightstown Presbyterian Church, where Dr. Thomas Tyrach, the pastor, and Dr. Roger W. Swetland, headmaster of the Peddie school, from which Mr. Appleget was graduated in 1883, conducted the service. Burial took place in the family plot in the churchyard.

(Registered) (The Only One in New England)

the easiest, fairest and most economical payment arrangement ever known!

Thousands of New England women, with an eye to thrift, are taking advantage of the three ways of buying a Scott dependable fur coat, cloth coat or fur scarf.

You may pay cash, open an extended charge account, or make a small deposit to join the Scott Unique Fur Club, and while you are wearing your fur coat you may make arrangements for further payments, with no tax and no extra or carrying charges.

Each transaction is completed quickly without delay, investigation or inconvenience. You may wear your Scott coat long before you have paid in full for it, and you may pay for it at your convenience and not necessarily within any specified period.

No compulsory amounts are required and if unforeseen circumstances arise and you are unable to make your payments, we are pleased to wait until you CAN pay, because you are not obliged to make payments at any definite periods.

You may mail or bring in your payments; in fact, no Scott customer ever has a collector calling at the home or place of business.

Each transaction is treated strictly confidentially, and furthermore, we positively do not refer to anyone when you open an account.

DESTROYER IN RACE WITH DEATH SAVES MAN

Run for Mayor? 'Merely a Rumor,' Says Coakley

By FRED TOYE

A SIDELIGHT to the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary plans for 1930 which will undoubtedly arouse a considerable amount of public interest is the project of Quincy's local tercentenary committee to induce the State to acquire the spot of land which gave Massachusetts its name. A vast amount of historical research has been made by various members of the committee assembled by Mayor Thomas F. McGrath. This search has brought to light many absorbing and thrilling stories of the contacts of the earliest settlers with the local tribes of redskins.

THE SPOT which, according to accounts, gave its name to the Bay State is a small promontory off Wollaston, near the Dennison airport. In early days it was an island surrounded by swamp lands, affording admirable protection for the headquarters of the great Chief Chickatawbat. The spot bore the name Mos-wes-tu-sett. Chief Chickatawbat bore the title of sachem or sagamor, which was a great honor within the bestowal of the local Indian tribes. His relations with the white settlers were most cordial. It is related that under his rule, there was not a single affray with the settlers. One of his sub-chiefs, however, stole a pig from the whites, and in consequence was severely disciplined. This was the most formidable outrage perpetrated during his chieftainship. Chickatawbat ruled all the tribes in this section of the land as far south as the domains of Chief Massasoit. It is reported that he used his influence with Massasoit to keep the latter friendly with the newcomers.

THE EMINENT SCULPTOR, Cyrus Dallin, has made a three-foot model of a proposed heroic-sized bronze group, representing Chickatawbat and Governor Winthrop negotiating a treaty. The Quincy Committee hopes to erect this monument upon a 20-foot rise on the Mos-wes-tu-set site during the Tercentenary year. This will, if accepted, be a sort of counterpart to the Massasoit statue in Plymouth, which is also by Dallin.

IT IS RELATED of Chickatawbat that his zeal and energy were helpful in organizing 14 tribes under Passaconway to fight off the Iroquois. The campaign was completely successful, and undoubtedly safeguarded the fragile new settlements of the Puritans.

PASSACONWAY, who held forth on an island in the Merrimac River below what is now Lawrence, was greatly upset over the arrival of the first whites at Plymouth. It is reported that he lurked in the adjoining marshes, watching the strangers and conjuring his gods to bring disaster upon them. After three days of exorcising his most potent magic, he gave up and made peaceful advances. He notified his braves that they must never oppose the white people, since their gods were more powerful than those of the redskins.

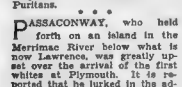
A MEMBER of the Quincy committee has unearthed a number of ancient maps of the Massachusetts Bay region which offer interesting study. One, which is possibly the earliest in our history, is entitled, "The South Part of New England as it is Planted this Yeare 1634."



It shows the eastern part of Massachusetts, including the Merrimac Valley, Cape Cod, and Rhode Island. The headquarters of the various tribes are indicated by triangles, representing tepees, and bearing the name of the ruling chief such as Sagamor John, Sagamor Passaconwa, Sagamor John Sagamor Passaconwa, Sagamor Mattachemen, etc. Settlements such as Dorchester, Plymouth, Charles Towne and others are indicated by the symbol for a church—a circle topped with a cross.

EARLY MAPS, such as that of 1634, and one dated 1630, "by mol. John Gond," indicate the headquarters of the Wollaston chief as "Massachusetts." The section of the colony from Boston to the southward, and extending inland about 50 miles bears the name "Massachusetts Bay." Much of the remaining territory to the north is called "Bay Field."

IT IS PROBABLE that the swampy waters which protected the friendly Chickatawbat and his people from hostile invasion, were destined to bring disaster in the end. We are told that the Indians suffered greatly from the plague.

TAKES INJURED FISHERMAN TO HOSPITAL

Is Called to Georges Bank When His Left Leg Is Torn Off by Winch

A race with death was won early today when the coast guard destroyer Fanning, which took an injured member of the crew of the trawler Heron, on the George's Banks, arrived at the Marine Hospital in Vineyard Haven in time to save the fast-ebbing life of the fisherman.

The injured seaman, Frank Lowe, was caught in a wire rope, which was being pulled by a winch, and his left leg was torn off. The Heron flashed word to the owners, the Portland Trawling Co., at Groton.

The Coast Guard station at new London ordered the Fanning to meet the Heron and take Lowe to the nearest marine hospital. Speeding at 30 knots an hour the Fanning reached the Heron late yesterday, turned about and began the final dash to Vineyard Haven.

[illegible] Boynkin, assistant officer at the hospital, remarked today that Lowe, who lives in Cambridge, will recover.

North Baptists Plan Association Meeting

The Boston North Baptist Association will meet at the First Baptist church, Watertown, next Wednesday. The association comprises the churches of Cambridge, Belmont, Arlington, Somerville, Waltham, Weston, Watertown, Tremont Temple, and the First Baptist church of Boston.

Dr. Howard M. Freas, widely known medical missionary, and Miss Ethel L. Ryan, who has performed missionary work among Indians, will speak at the afternoon session. In the evening, Rev. Ambrose M. Bailey, D.D., of Lowell, will give an address.

Pleads Not Guilty to Kidnap Charge

George T. Sexton, charged with kidnaping and attempting to rob Joseph Sherman on August 15, was arraigned before Judge Nelson P. Brown in the Superior Criminal Court at Dedham. He pleaded not guilty to both charges and was held in bail of $10,000.

John J. Roche of Dorchester is also awaiting trial in connection with the same case. Police alleged that Sherman, a well known sporting man, was kidnaped in Revere and taken to a house in Weymouth, where he was placed under guard.

Probe Death of Woman in Hospital

An inquest was held by Judge Murray in central municipal court in the matter of the death of Mrs. Rachel Watson of Stanley st., Dorchester, from oxalic acid poisoning at City Hospital, August 29, and the court's report is to be forwarded to Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley.

SEEK RELEASE OF MARSINO IN BANK THEFT

Counsel Plans Move to Free the Warren Bank Wrecker From Extra Jail Term

A plea for the release from state prison and the cancelation of a two years' jail sentence, is to be filed at the office of Gov. Frank G. Allen on behalf of Joseph Marsino, Warren National Bank wrecker.

The plea will be filed by Peter V. Maggio, his counsel.

Marsino is a prison barber at state prison, serving a five year sentence following his conviction on a charge of embezzlement from the First National Bank of Warren, in 1923.

When this sentence is completed Marsino will be transferred to the Worcester Hose of Correction where he must serve two years on a charge of conspiracy to embezzle money from the bank. He has already completed a four-year sentence in Atlanta for the same [illegible]

[illegible] Marsino was already served on term, is now serving another sentence and has a third sentence to complete for one crime.

The petition alleges that Marsino's constitutional rights have been violated and that the State erred in trying him on charges on which he had [illegible] convicted and sentenced in the Federal court

LETS IT STAND THAT WAY FOR THE PRESENT

Hadn't Thought Much About Subject Until Asked, He Asserts

If Daniel H. Coakley is going to oppose his old rival, James M. Curley, in the mayoralty contest, he isn't admitting it—yet.

Coakley, who finished fourth in the 1925 contest, today refused to deny he would run for mayor; neither would he affirm it. He is willing the matter should remain "up in the air" for the present.

When asked whether he was going to take out nomination papers, his reply was:

"I would have to if I were going to run for mayor. That is the usual procedure."

"Well, Mr. Coakley, are you going to run for mayor?" he was next asked.

"I don't care to say anything about it just now. Let it stand as it appears; merely a rumor. As a matter of fact, I had not thought much about it until the present moment. I can only say it is a gloomy and rainy day."

BACK BAY GOES WATERLESS AS RESULT OF LEAK IN MAIN STREET CAVES IN UNDER BIG COAL TRUCK

Driver Escapes Injury in Mishap; Traffic Delayed on Stuart St.

The water supply of the Copley sq. hotel and several Large Back Bay office buildings was shut off for an hour today while city engineers repaired a leaking main which undermined Stuart st., near Huntington ave., causing a five-ton coal truck to crash down through the collapsed paving.

The heavy traffic through the thoroughfare had to be diverted by police while engineering experts investigated the reason for the accident. Because the extent of the subterranean washout was not known, emergency gangs fated to drive a derrick truck to the rescue of the half sunken coal carrier.

The wrecked machine was one of the truck fleet of the Burton Furber Coal Co. Its driver was uninjured.

City experts declared the washout was probably caused by seepage from the water main coming into the city from the Brookline reservoir.

BIG CATCH OF MACKEREL

Vessels coming in from Race Point off Provincetown and Boothbay Harbor, Me., reported good mackerel fishing — both grounds, at Boston Fish pier today.

Other good catches were made at Georges Banks and the South Channel.

The Inca brought in 50,000 pounds of tinker mackerel from outside Boothbay Harbor. The James Burke landed 30,000 pounds of tinker mackerel at Provincetown last night.

The steamer Ocean from Georges Banks came in with 90,000 pounds of haddock and 18,000 of cod, besides 17,000 of mixed fish. Her nearest rival from the banks was the steamer Georgetown with 90,000 pounds of haddock and 14,000 of cod.

The Morning Star, from the South channel brought in 72,000 pounds of haddock, 23,000 of cod and 3000 of pollock. The Dawn, from the same grounds, carried 55,000 pounds of haddock, 15,000 of cod and 7500 of pollock.

Large codfish were running five to six cents per pound. Haddock brought three to three and a half cents a pound; hake was a cent and a half; rusk were two cents. Swordfish were bringing 20 cents a pound, large mackerel 29 cents and bulls eye mackerel $3.75 a barrel.

Gloucester arrivals reported mostly codfish and hake from the grounds. The schooner Mary brought in 50,000 pounds of tinker mackerel. The Grand Marshal cleared Gloucester for the halibut fishing grounds.

About 15,000 pounds of tinker mackerel were run into Portland by schooners reporting today.

EAST BOSTON IN OIL PROTEST

A protest against the granting of a permit for an "oil farm" where tanks for the storage of 90,000,000 gallons of gasoline and oil would be erected was voiced by East Boston citizens at a mass meeting in the Blackington school, Orient Heights.

The site of the proposed tanks is on land between Boardman, Saratoga and Addison sts., a section, speakers told the gathering, of the residential district. Those who spoke at the meeting included Congressman John J. Douglass, Timothy F. Donovan, president of the City Council, and Representatives James S. Coffey and William Barnes.

Alexander Sullivan, chairman of the meeting, urged residents of the district to be present at the hearing before the board of street commissioners, set for next Wednesday.

GIRLS ON DUTY AT AIRPORT

"The voice with the smile" will now greet prospective sky-riders who telephone the Curtis Flying Service or Skyway, Inc., at the Boston Airport making arrangements for a "hop."

Boston concerns have moved into their new hangars and immediately installed switchboards. Miss Dorothy Bean of Hampton ave., Lynn, is operating the board for Skyways and Miss S. C. Granger of Collins st., Lynn, is doing the same for Curtiss. They are the first telephone girls at the airport.

Miss Granger has been employed at the airport since 1927, but has just assumed the duties of telephone operator for the Curtiss company. She was the first woman to be employed at the field.

The Curious Quizzer

Persons at Granary Burying Ground Answer His Question and Pose for Pictures

THE QUESTION

Do you support Park Commissioner Long in his move to drive the squirrels from the Granary Burying Ground?

MISS LENA OSTROM, Hill ave., Somerville—The spry little gray squirrels have made their home so long in this old place that it seems a shame to evict them. They have become so friendly with everybody visiting the historic grounds that to deprive them of food from the grateful public would be an act of cruelty. What does it matter if the squirrels burrow a few holes to hide their food supply which people find such a pleasure in offering them. I believe that the park commissioner should not molest the harmless little creatures by denying them food which will result in their dying of starvation.

MICHAEL J. DOLAN, Warren st., Charlestown — Commissioner Long should not be criticized in wanting to rid the burying ground of animals which destroy the grass and shrubbery. Because of the great number of squirrels, they have become very troublesome here by their digging of holes. There is no doubt that such digging destroys the roots of the grass and if that can be prevented by forcing the squirrels to move somewhere else, I believe it should be done.

FRANCIS PATRIQUIN, Center st., Jamaica Plain—I see no reason why the squirrels should be bothered by the park commissioner. They have lived here on the old site for generations as pets for men, women and children. To starve them out now, it seems to me, would not be a humane act. People are so accustomed to feeding nuts to the little gray fellows that it would not be right to forbid the practice to people who get so much pleasure in befriending dumb animals. If the feeding of the squirrels is forbidden they will die unless another home is provided for them.

3 YOUTHS FINED $100 EACH IN DEATH CASE

Natick Boy Died Following Fight in Road After Restaurant Row

Fines of $100 each were imposed on three youths who engaged in a free-for-all fight last July in Natick, which caused the death of Joseph Murphy of that town.

They pleaded guilty to simple assault before Judge Frederick W. Fosdick in Middlesex Superior Court. Two others who were present when the fatal brawl occurred were dismissed for lack of evidence.

The youths arraigned in connection with the death of Murphy were Harold W. Langley and James McGrath of Natick, and Edward L. McCue, Cornelius McCormick and Charles G. McCasker of Roxbury. Langley, McCormick and McGrath received the fines, while McCue and McCusker were freed of the charges.

DIED AFTER FIGHT.

According to Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank G. Volpe, who outlined to the court the events leading up to the death of Murphy, the Natick youths with whom Murphy was at the time of the trouble, were the offenders in the brawl that led to Murphy's death and the Roxbury youths simply resented their belligerency.

Murphy was found on the sidewalk following the fight and died shortly afterward from a fractured skull.

According to the assistant district attorney, the three Roxbury youths, accompanied by two women, one the wife of one of the men, drove to a restaurant in Natick on the night of July 14.

After supper they started to leave, when the Natick youths encased them in an argument. The argument did not lead to blows, however, and the Roxbury youths started away in the automobile.

JUDGE'S COMMENT

About a mile along the road the Natick youths suddenly pulled up alongside of the automobile in which the Roxbury men and the women were riding and ordered them to halt. When they did, they started a fist fight in which all six men are said to have engaged.

According to Volpe, Murphy was the aggressor. During the fight Murphy was knocked down and suffered a fractured skull. The arrest of the five men followed shortly afterward.

Gang Is Preying on Revere Contractors

Mother Squirrel Takes Baby on Tight Rope

Persons on Carver st., Cambridge, were treated to an unusual spectacle, a mother squirrel making her way through traffic with a little one clinging to her with all four feet, climbing a tree with her burden, crossing telephone cables, and finally reaching the safety of her nest, atop a tree on Hammond st.

The squirrel was first seen by Patrolman Joseph F. Doherty, on duty at Carver st. The baby had evidently been lost or hurt, and seemed thoroughly frightened. Doherty stopped traffic to allow the pair to pass.

The mother squirrel climbed a tree after reaching the curb, and while a throng watched, threaded her way across the telephone cable, stopping every three or four feet to rest.

About 100 feet across, the baby squirrel relaxed its hold, but hung on desperately until recovered by the mother, and to the great relief of the watchers the squirrel negotiated the trip in safety.

VETERAN CHIEF ASKS TO BE RETIRED

Somerville Fire Fighter Is to Be Pensioned After Nearly 20 Years

Fire Chief Sewall M. Rich, for nearly 20 years head of the Somerville, fire department, today requested Mayor Leon M. Conwell of Somerville for retirement from active duty in the department, to take effect September 30.

Mayor Conwell will forward the petition for retirement on a pension of half-pay to the Somerville Board of Aldermen at their first meeting after the summer vacation this evening for action.

Chief Rich became a member of the fire department on June 1, 1892, and was appointed chief of the department to succeed the late Chief James R. Hopkins, by the late Mayor John M. Woods on January 1, 1910.

During the almost score of years that he has been at the head of the fire department Chief Rich has seen the department completely motorized, the call force abolished and the permanent membership more than double in size. He was born in Provincetown in 1866.

Mayor Conwell is undecided as to whether he will name the new head of the fire department at the meeting this evening. Deputy Chief Joseph A. Cribby and District Chief Wilfred Young, both veteran members of the Somerville fire department, are mentioned as possible successors to Chief Rich.

Mayor Conwell will send the name of Lieut. George W. Patten of Hose 8, who recently headed the Civil Service list, for promotion to the rank of captain in the fire department at tonight's meeting of the aldermen. Lieut. Patten was appointed a call man in the fire department on Sept. 21, 1908, and assigned to Engine 2. He was made a permanent man on May 27, 1909, and promoted to [illegible]ant on March 1, 1918. Practically all of his 22 years of service has been at the quarters of Engine 2, Broadway and Cross st.

CARDINAL IS UPHELD BY HIGH COURT IN ZONING LAW FIGHT

BOARD RULING IS SET ASIDE IN DECISION

Church Leader Appealed Case Based on Blue Hill Ave. Building Permit

The full bench of the Supreme Court today upheld the appeal of Cardinal O'Connell for a review of the action of the zoning board of appeals in ordering the building commissioner to grant a permit amending the zoning laws on Blue Hill ave.

John A. Daley, property owner at 438 to 560 Blue Hill ave., was refused a permit to build stores on the land by the building commission on the grounds that the area is a residential section.

He applied to the board of appeals for a variation in the zoning statutes, which was granted. The building commissioner was ordered to grant Daley a permit.

On receiving Cardinal O'Connell's appeal, the full bench quashed the proceedings of the appeal board because notice of Daley's hearing before that body was not published in a daily newspaper six days beforehand.

Cardinal O'Connell owns property extending from 487 to 543 Blue Hill ave.

The will of Fannie M. Faulkner of Beacon st., Back Bay, filed for probate, contains public bequests of $27,000 and numerous private bequests, including more than $15,000 to household servants.

The Children's Hospital and American Unitarian Association each are given $5000; Children's Mission to the Children of the Destitute, Brooks House Home for Working Girls and Christopher R. Eliot for use of the church and Sunday school he conducts, each $2000; Boston Floating Hospital $2000; Children's Island Sanitarium $3000; Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $1000; Animal Rescue League and Convalescent Home for the Children's Hospital $1000 each.

The following employes receive these gifts: John E. Ryan, $2000; William Strout, $1000; Nora Maher $2000; Mary Sullivan, $2000; Julia Berg, $2000; Margaret Hayes, $2000 and Rosa Cote, $1500.

The residue is left to Helen F Hubbard, sister of the testatrix who is to have one half, and the other half is left in trust to another sister, Anna R. Hayden.

ASK FORFEIT OF RUM VESSEL

Suits asking forfeiture of the schooner Marcellendois, operating under British registry, said to be worth $21,000, and her cargo of foreign liquors, worth $29,000 more, seized by coast guard officials 12 miles off Cape Cod last July, were filed by Miss Ellen L. Buckley, assistant United States attorney, in federal court.

It is claimed by the government that the vessel, notwithstanding her capture outside the so-called 12-mile limit, was within an hour's sailing distance from shore—thus bringing her within the provisions of the British treaty.

Several persons are under indictment in the federal court, including skipper and members of his crew.

Held in Attack on Girls

4 HURT AS AUTO HITS TROLLEY

Four persons, including one woman, were injured today when the automobile of Michael Sawchuck of River st., Arlington, crashed head-on into an Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway car on Everett ave., Chelsea.

Those hurt are Emma Garrett of Winthrop ave., Revere, and F. E. Hawkins of Endicott ave., Chelsea, street car passengers; Sawchuck, operator of the automobile, and Alfonso Petreff of New York City, who was riding with Sawchuck.

All four were cut and bruised, but went home after first aid treatment at a nearby hospital. Police said they would bring a charge of criminal negligence against Sawchuck.

HUNT SPURIOUS BILL PASSER

Malden police are seeking a man who passed a spurious bill raised from $10 to $50 in a local theater, the manager of which turned it in to the First National Bank in Malden as part of the day's receipts. Walter H. Harding, a teller employed in the bank, detected the spurious note.

Figures from old $5 bills had been pasted over the figure one of a new $10 which made it look like a $50 note. The portrait of the note was that of President Jackson instead of President Grant, which led to the discovery that the note was spurious.

The manager of the theater, on whom the note was passed, could only offer a vague description of the spurious note passer.

Templars Elect Wry For a Second Term

W. Arnold Wry of Revere was re-elected for a second term as commander of Pale-tine Commandery, No. 10, Knights Templar, of Chelsea, at their annual meeting and election held in Masonic Hall, Chelsea. All other officers of the commandery were also re-elected.

Plans for a veterans' night on Oct. 9, and the annual inspection on Nov. 13 were discussed.

Seek "Little Mother" Missing in Lynn

Catherine Furey, 16, of 23 Victory st., Lynn, has been missing from home since Monday it was reported to police today.

Since the death of the children's mother, four years ago, Catherine has "mothered" her sister, Helen, 8, and Mary, 6, besides keeping house for two older brothers. The father is dead.

PATRON SAINT OF CHURCH TO BE HONORED

Somerville Feast Day Falls on the 30th Anniversary of Pastor's Ordination

Sunday will have a double significance for parishioners of the Church of St. Catherine of Genoa, Somerville.

Not only will the day mark the feast day of the patron saint of the church, but it will also be the 30th anniversary of the ordination of the pastor, the Rt. Rev. Mgr. John B. Peterson, auxiliary bishop of Boston.

A solemn pontifical mass in honor of the feast day will be celebrated by Bishop Peterson at 11 a. m. The Rev. John M. Manion will be archpriest at the mass. The other offices will be filled by members of St. John's Seminary, Brighton.

This service will bring to a close the novena in honor of St. Catherine of Genoa which started a week ago.

Bishop Peterson was ordained to the priesthood in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Boston, by the late Bishop Brady.

After two years' study at the Catholic University in Paris and in Rome, Bishop Peterson occupied the chair of history at St. John's seminary. In 1911 he became president of the seminary and held that position until he was made pastor of St. Catherine's in 1922.

The church edifice is one of the three finest in the country. There are nearly 8000 parishioners at St. Catherine's.

MILK IS GOING UP ONE CENT

Boston and surrounding cities and towns will pay at least a cent a quart more for its milk, effective October 1, it is understood, if the action of a Vermont dairy concern is confirmed.

The petition of the Vermont Dairies, Inc., to the New England Milk Producers' Association for the right to advance the price to 10 cents a quart, it is said, will affect greater New England, and it is the general opinion of retailers that a new price will be allowed.

The prices of 10 cents a quart is a "new high," except for the prices that prevailed during the war. The increase was recommended in view of the decreased milk flow, due to dry weather and the shrinkage in pasturage.

The numbers of milch cows killed by state order on account of bovine tuberculosis also has been a factor in cutting down the supply.

Seek Third Man in Gloucester Holdup

Lynn and Gloucester police are seeking the third of a trio, alleged to have robbed Arthur Dennis of Gloucester of $565.

John F. Howard was arrested by Lynn police today. The Gloucester authorities suspended Edward Farrell in Haverhill Saturday. Dennis alleges the men posed as prohibition agents and threatened him with arrest unless he could produce $10000. He told police he gave them $565.

Finds Friday, 13th, Her Unlucky Day

Mrs. Helen Hiltz of I st., South Boston, sees no luck in being beaten and robbed, and the thief didn't have much luck as he got only 25 cents and some keys. (Staff photo.)

THUG ROBS AND BEATS WOMAN; GETS 25 CENTS

Police Hunting for Man Who Pummeled the Victim Till She Was Unconscious

Mrs. Helen Hiltz, 37, of I st., South Boston, was beaten and robbed by a thug near her home today. After treatment at the Carney Hospital she was discharged and sent home.

Police of South Boston are searching the peninsular district for the thief, who is described as stocky and about six feet in height. He wore blue sailor trousers and a gray cap.

Mrs. Hiltz was on her way home, she told police, when the stranger approached her from behind a tree. He refused to throw up her hands and turn over her pocketbook. She became hysterical and started to battle the thief.

She was so badly pummeled in the face and head by the thief that she became unconscious. She later was found by passers who took her to the Carney Hospital where she was found to be suffering from lacerations and abrasions of the head and face.

Although Mrs. Hiltz only had some keys and 25 cents in her pocketbook the thief took these and fled. Police described the attack as most brutal.

2 Men Hurt as Poodle Causes Revere Crash

Two men were injured, one seriously, when Ralph G. Hicken of Birch st., Everett, driver of a truck for the Johnson Laundry, East Boston, overturned his machine today in attempting to avoid hitting a tiny white poodle playing in Park av., Revere, near Dale st.

The victim most seriously hurt was Elmer A. King, 36, of East Eagle st., East Boston, who was riding with Hicken. He was pinned under the capsized truck.

Police took him to the Chelsea Memorial hospital. He had a fractured hip and probable internal injuries. Hicken was cut and bruised. Another passenger, John Busby of Pops st., East Boston, escaped uncathed.

Plunge Into Sewer Is Fatal to Horse

A chance step onto the loose cover of a catch basin at the corner of Blue Hill ave. and Arbutus st., Matapan, resulted in the death of a horse attached to a milk wagon today.

The horse plunged into the sewer and was lifted out with a derrick brought to the scene by police officers from a nearby construction job. The horse was so badly injured it had to be shot.

2 Stills, Liquor, Mash Seized in So. Boston

Led by Police Sergt. Jeremiah O'Neil officers from the Athens street station, South Boston, raided a house in Silver st today and seized two stills which were in operation. They are seeking two men alleged to have been the operators.

The haul also included 13 gallons of moonshine and 500 gallons of mash, together with the bottling paraphernalia.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 55

BOSTON in the olden days was indeed proud of its military organizations. Chief among these was the Boston National Lancers, a sterling organization which was frequently called out to aid police in quelling disturbances. This picture, published through the courtesy of the Massachusetts Historical Society, shows the lancers prancing through their formal review on Boston Common. Another one of old Boston will be published tomorrow.

PAIN AFTER EATING

can be quickly eased with ACIDINE, the new discovery, because it eliminates excess acid and digests away foods before they can cause pain. Nearly 9 out of every ten suffer from stomach disturbing failure of an Webster's Dictionary puts it "Dietetic Deficiency."

ONLY IN ACIDINE CAN YOU FIND AN EXTRAORDINARY ANTI-ACID PLUS THE EXTRAORDINARY DIGESTANT "JAPTASE" WHICH DIGESTS 400 TIMES ITS OWN WEIGHT IN STARCHY FOODS.

At the first sign of SOURNESS, ACID, BELCHING, INDIGESTION, BILLOUSNESS, HEARTBURN, GAS OR A FEELING OF FULLNESS, take ACIDINE at once. Immediately your discomforts will be relieved.

ACIDINE prevents starchy foods from fermenting into sour fermenting lumps and at the same time neutralizes excess acid. Potatoes, bread, cereals, in fact all starchy foods are liquified within 30 minutes and pass out of the stomach as liquid dextrin. In addition, ACIDINE contains an anti-acid which remains in the stomach and keeps it sweet for a considerable period of time. ACIDINE is safe, effective, swift, sure, and GUARANTEED UNDER A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. Your druggist has it, or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

DAMON RUNYON Says—

"All Hoss Players Die Broke"
Billy Smith Still Alive
Mellody Claimed Welter Title

"ALL HOSS PLAYERS MUST DIE BROKE"

FOR forty years he'd followed the track,
And played them hosses to helen back,
And they ain't a thing he shouldn't know, that bloke.
So I set to him, "I want advice
On beatin' this dodge at a decent price,
So what have you got to tell to me, old soak"

"Well, son," he sez, "I've bet and won,
And I've bet and lost and when all is done,
I'm sure of one thing—and only one—
All hoss players must die broke."

Sez I, "but I see a-many a chump
With plenty of sugar around this dump,"
Sez I, "what system do they employ or what is the brand they smoke?
You study the form, you study the dope,
And you're going okay—or so I hope,
And I want you to gimme a line or two on how I kin fill my poke."

"Well, son," sez he, "this racket's tough.
And I try to learn as I do my stuff.
And I haven't learned much but I've learned enough—
All hoss players must die broke."

Sez he, "some live to be very old,
'Til their hair turns grey and their blood turns cold,
And some of 'em almost fall apart before they up and croak."
Sez he, "I've seen 'em, these noble men,
Up in the dough and out again,
In fact I've been there a-many a time myself—and that's no joke."

Sez he, "I've seen 'em in limousines,
With rocks on their dukes and dough in their jeans,
But they're all alike when they quit these scenes—
All hoss players must die broke!"

(Explanation—The above was committed by ye scribe years ago, and long since forgotten, and he didn't have a copy of it, never having maintained a scrap-book, but it was dug up out of the archives by E. Phocian Hoocord, the best-dressed journalist in captivity, and reprinted to his sprightly New York Press, so I repeat it here.)

BILLY SMITH STILL ALIVE

YE SCRIBE recently mentioned the fact that "Mysterious" Billy Smith, great old time welterweight, is alive and kicking up in Portland, Oregon, though his death has frequently been reported. I have since received a number of inquiries as to how Smith acquired the moniker "Mysterious," and seeking information on the subject, I got some surprisingly vague replies from old timers who ought to know.

It remains for Al Morris, of Seattle, Wash., to clear up the mystery of the "Mysterious." Morris talked to Smith in Portland not long ago and found him "as tough as ever in his talk, but a good fellow." I always had an idea the "Mysterious" handle had something to do with Smith's style, as in the case of another old timer named George Kerwin, called "The Mystery" because of his peculiar style, but it seems not.

Smith first came into notice through his match with Frank Purcell, a 150 pound boxer of the old days, at the California Athletic Club in San Francisco. The match was a 10-round preliminary, probably the first preliminary they had in those days.

Jack McCann and Charley Kenmuck were to have fought a finish fight, but McCann came in overweight and the bout was called off. The following week another bout was put on and Purcell and Smith went on in the preliminary. Purcell knocked Smith down 29 times, and got the decision but on the strength of his game showing, Smith jumped into the main bout class.

He was matched with Danny Needham, then a great gladiator, and winning this battle made Smith famous. In those days Old Billy Jordan, the Joe Humphreys of the period, always introduced a boxer by his name and town, and he presented Smith as from Boston.

Naturally they had never heard of Billy Smith in Boston and when he jumped into pugilistic fame, the folks in Beanville were asking, "who is this brow?"

Finally Smith made a trip back East, and blew into the old Police News office to talk with Billy Pierce, one of the big boxing scribes of the day. Pierce gave him a nice send-off, and referred to him as "The Mysterious Fellow."

Thereafter Smith became "Mysterious" Smith.

Very simple, hey, what?

CLAIMED TITLE

Speaking of welterweights, Charles F. Mathison, the New York boxing authority, writes that when Honey Mellody outpointed Joe Walcott in 1906, Mellody claimed the welterweight title.

The Dixie Kid won on a foul from Walcott in the twentieth round in 1904, two years before Mellody met Walcott, and it is Mr. Mathison's point that the Kid became champion.

"True," he says, "an attempt was made to minimize the Kid's feat by the assertion that the referee's decision was wrong. What of it? Referee's decisions in those days were, under the rules, to be rendered 'promptly and irrevocably.

"Do not get the impression that the Dixie Kid was a palooka. He went to France in 1911 and stopped the great Carpentier in five rounds. And he gave a good account of himself in hundreds of other bouts."

George O. Weeden, of the Weeden-Schultz Agency, "artists' representatives," who is known to his intimate friends as "Fuzzy," hasn't been really heated up about a fighter since the days he was associated with Young Corbett.

A GOOD "ROCK" ON WHICH TO BUILD NEW RED SOX

WHITE SOX OPEN HERE ON SUNDAY

By JOE CASHMAN

NO baseball in Boston today, which is just as well this being that prize jinx day, Friday the 13th, several players would probably be beaned, several others suffer broken bones and the rest of the gang sustain other more or less serious injuries were the Sox and Tigers to clash this p. m.

It wasn't this thought that the schedule-makers had in mind, however, when they designated today as open date. They were figuring on bringing the two clubs together tomorrow.

The Hub and all the other towns in the circuit have experienced several of these schedule freaks this season, so that the campaign can be extended until Oct. 6 instead of ending before the close of this month, as it should.

If the magnates don't stop trying to schedule as many games as possible on Saturdays and Sundays it shouldn't be long before the clubs will be called upon to play single games in the morning and doubleheaders in the afternoon on those

Segrave Misses Speedboat Mark

Venice, Italy, Sept. 13—Maj. H. O. D. Segrave of England fell three-tenths of a second short of equalling Gar Wood's world's speed boat record, when he sent his Miss England over the rectangular course in the opening run of Crown Prince Humbert's Cup at a speed of 92.8 miles an hour.

His effort, however, to lower the American's record may have proved disastrous for future trials, as the bottom of Miss England was split when she ran through the wake set up by other boats while running at more than 90 miles an hour.

Maj. Segrave said it would be necessary to replace the entire bottom of the boat.

Wetmore's Horse Wins at Kingston

Kingston, R. I., Sept. 13—Ortolan Brook, Heatherbell and Peter Nelson returned the three winners on the second day's card of the Kingston Fair races.

The first two events provided the keenest races, and both winners were driven by Harry Brusie, Dr. Windsor, Ct., veteran. Heatherbell, owned by V. C. B. Wetmore of Boston, captured the three-year-old trotting class for a $1000 purse in straight heats.

Carrigan and Bob Quinn to Attend Twi Game Tonight

ROSLINDALE AND QUINCY RENEW STRUGGLE FOR TWI LEAGUE PENNANT

By DICK McSWEENEY

ON tonight's Twilight League game at Fallon Field, Roslindale, depends much of the success of this championship series and there seems to be evidence enough that it will be a fray well worth coming to see.

Big Ed Mullowney, whose tall form throws fear into the hearts of enemy batsmen, will toil on the rubber for Quincy. Opposed to him will be John Shea or Bill Rose, though it is likely that Shea will draw tonight's heaving assignment.

A group of sporting and political notables, including Bill Carrigan and President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox, Mayor Quinn of Cambridge, ex-Mayor Curley, and Dist. Atty. Foley, are expected to attend tonight's game.

The fact that Bob Quinn of the Sox is to be on hand will make the players hustle. It may mean a tryout with the Hose for some Quincy or Roslindale ball-hawk.

Tomorrow's game will be played at Fore River Field, Quincy, at 2 o'clock. Les Andrews will pitch for the Granite City club while Bill Rose is slated to unfurl his slants for Roslindale.

Norman Sims will pitch for the Douglass team in the Blackstone Valley League on Saturday and probably will not hurl again for Quincy this season, since Sims is due to report at Holy Cross college next week.

John Dixon was Roslindale's original choice for Saturday's melee, but like Sims, Dixon must heed the call of his Alma Mater, which happens to be Boston College.

Roslindale merchants will hold a banquet for the Roslindale Twi team in the Municipal Building on Sept. 26.

Jerry Shanahan was presented with an engraving of himself by an ardent Quincy rooter the other evening. The engraving shows Jerry reaching after a hot grounder in the style which only he who is a Shanahan can reach for and clutch successfully.

ALL HOCKEY AT GARDEN IS PLAN

With the representatives of the Boston Garden and Boston Arena scheduled to meet Monday, indications point to more harmonious relations between the two as regards the ice hockey situation in Boston.

It is known that last winter only the big professional games and the Harvard-Yale contest proved attractive at the Garden, while the Arena, which did not carry such an overhead as the North Station site, showed returns that while good, were far from what had been hoped for.

For some time the leading men of the two ice palaces have been considering some agreement and it would seem as if the Boston Tigers of the Canadian-American Hockey League may play their games at the Garden this year.

As there has been talk of an outdoor league in other cities the conference Monday may result in killing any efforts there may be to have a team of the proposed "independents" in Boston.

Henry G. Lapham, head of the Arena and William Carey, head of the Boston Garden, as well as of Madison Square Garden, have had several conferences.

What will develop from Monday's meeting is not known, but with Carey, H. R. Hardwick and Sheldon Fairbanks of the Garden, Henry G. Lapham, George W. Wightman and George V. Brown participating, something of interest may be looked for.

CLEO WORKING ON OFFENSE

Worcester, Sept. 13—Satisfied with the defense of his football team in most departments, Head Coach Cleo O'Donnell of Holy Cross will now center his efforts on trying to build up an offensive line.

The coaches have made no effort to divide the squad into first or second teams, but have made some changes from last year to increase the speed of the attack. Stan Weis, last year a guard, and George Pyne, a 200-pound guard, have been shifted to tackle in the early scrimmage and signal drills.

Ted Himmelberg, a light, fast lineman, and John Faironus, a sophomore, have been placed in the guard positions.

The players were given light work today as many were stiff from yesterday's scrimmage. Mike Favuli bruised the ligaments of his right elbow seriously enough to remain out of uniform today.

Chicago, Sept. 13 (INS)—Thirty thousand first day applications for seats at the World Series today kept a force of fifty girls busy opening and sorting envelopes.

No sign of a letup in the parade of mailmen and messenger boys toward the Cubs office was seen as the second force of clerks left wearily for home this morning.

The COLONIAL SOLDIER guards the borderland

"The Colonial Soldier is your protection" ever watchful that you secure "an extra quality gasoline at no extra price"

This "borderland" is made daily as the Colonial laboratory to assure its makers that the extra quality of Colonial gas is always maintained.

So-called new and better gasolines are daily announced. Claims and counter claims on all sides. The result is confusion to thousands of motorists. It is a time therefore for truth-telling. So "let's turn on the Beacon Light." Once more ask (and answer) a few fundamental questions that concern gasolines and so-called premium fuels.

1 Basically what is a good gasoline? An ideal gasoline fires instantly, accelerates swiftly, gives maximum mileage, and consumes cleanly to the very last drop. No dilution of crankcase oil. Little or no carbon. Colonial Gas has all these qualities because it is extra-refined from especially selected crudes. Absolutely no taint of borderland or "kerosene" elements so often found in ordinary and inferior gasolines.

2 Does it cost more to produce a gasoline like Colonial? Yes, it does, but the increased sales due to improved quality make it possible to sell Colonial Gasoline at no extra price.

3 Are any of the so-called non-premium gasolines equal in quality and performance to so-called premium gasolines? In at least 80% of cars today, extra-quality Colonial Gasoline will produce results unsurpassed by any other gasoline on the market regardless of price.

4 Why is Colonial Ethyl peculiarly adapted to at least 20% of cars in use today and why is it superior to other premium gasolines? Colonial Gasoline is the base of Colonial Ethyl. Extra-quality to build upon. To this is added tetraethyl lead which eliminates knocks. Colonial Ethyl is made especially for high-compression and carbon-caked motors. About 20% of present-day cars require Colonial Ethyl.

5 Is Colonial Ethyl ever justified in cars other than those described above? Yes. Where a de luxe fuel of almost limitless performance possibilities is desired.

6 What is the guarantee to motorists of Colonial quality? The Beacon Oil Company is a New England institution whose success has been built on the undeviating policy of making only extra-quality products. It uses only the finest selected crudes. It employs real craftsmen. Every one is imbued with the old Yankee tradition—to do better than anybody else in the world whatever he attempts.

Bruins Will Open Hub Hockey Season Nov. 19 at Garden

ROSS WILL CALL TEAM OUT SOON

MANAGER ART ROSS of the Bruins will be in Boston, Monday, and will begin making plans then for the 1929-30 campaign of the world champions.

It is expected that he will order all candidates to report in Boston during the week of October 14 for a week of gymnasium work before the team takes the ice for first practice sessions about October 22.

Tentative schedules prepared by the National Hockey League call for the Bruins to open the National League season on the road as a year ago, with the first game scheduled against the Detroit Cougars at Detroit, November 14, and the second road game against the Toronto Maple Leafs on November 16.

The New York Rangers, Stanley Cup holders and world champions in 1928, probably will be the Bruins opponents in the opening Boston game Tuesday, November 19.

President C. F. Adams of the Bruins has asked for two changes of games scheduled on Tuesday nights. The original schedules called for the Bruins to play in Boston December 24 and December 31, but the Boston owner has asked the league to allow those games to be played on Wednesday nights, December 25 and January 1.

The right to renew season tickets will close automatically on Monday, and the list will be opened to the public on Oct. 1.

President Adams does not feel that the plan should be continued during the hockey season as was done a year ago. He is anxious to have tickets available for a substantial public sale if possible.

B. U. PREPARING FOR ARMY GAME

With the appearance of Hugo Nelson, Jimmie Dincolo, and George Cataldo at camp today a practical certainty, Boston University's full roster of 30 men will be completed and, unless three of last year's veterans are declared ineligible within a week, this will be the squad to carry the Terriers through the 1929 campaign.

With only one more week in which to prepare for the opening clash with West Point, September 28, the B. U. mentors, Brown, Robinson and Mahaney, will have their hands full in organizing an eleven to give the Cadets a battle.

Only four men who started the first game a year ago will be in the starting lineup next week. These are Jimmie Dincolo, right guard; Jack Carnie, left end; Solly Thurman, halfback, and Crab Walker fullback.

Says Huddle Slows Up Grid Game

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Columbia University's football team has decided to abandon the huddle system of calling signals and return to the old method of having the quarterback do that part of the job. Only in emergencies will the huddle be used, Coach Charley Crowley has announced.

Crowley believes the huddle has delayed the game and that it is not as effective as the old method.

Georgetown Eleven Will Know All Rules

Ocean City, N. J., Sept. 12—Whether or not Georgetown produces a football team this fall, it is certain to turn out a group of young men fit to be football officials when they have finished their college athletic careers.

Head Coach Lou Little, the former Pennsylvania line star, has introduced a school on football rules in his Ocean City camp, every one of the 48 candidates being required to study the rule book during leisure hours at night.

Reds Buy Campbell

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 13 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds have purchased Archie Campbell, pitcher of the St. Paul club of the American Association.

Campbell belonged to the New York Yankees, but had been farmed out to the Saints. He is a right hander.

Delmont's Stable Keeping Busy

Al Delmont, the former bantam and feather champion of New England is keeping his boxing stable very busy these days. He has matched Johnny Vacca of Brighton to meet "Irish Hugh Devlin" of Connecticut for the New Bedford A. A. in that city next Monday night in the 10 round main bout.

His big boy, Frank Sailor Flint is slated to box Vic Baldwin of Cherlestown in one of the bouts under the Bushy Graham—Andy Martin fights at the Boston Garden, Sept. 20, while he has an offer to put in Lou Hogash with Jimmy Mendes at New Bedford, Sept. 23, providing the Whaling City promoters can induce Mendes to sign.

Benefit Game for ... Injured Player

A benefit game for Andy Burble, who broke his leg while catching for the St. Patrick's baseball club of East Cambridge this summer, will be held at Thorndike Field, Cambridge, on next Sunday.

The St. Patrick's team will oppose a nine made up of Twi League stars, some of whom are now playing in the Twi championship series.

Mayor Quinn and Timothy Murphy, president of the City Council, have promised to attend the contest, which from the caliber of players participating, should be one of the finest diamond struggles ever seen in the University City.

Many Entries for Dilboy Post Show

Dilboy Post's amateur boxing tournament being held next Wednesday night, Sept. 18, at Dilboy Field, Somerville, is attracting the cream of the present amateur crop of fighters. Many entries have been received to date, indicating another lengthy show.

Six open classes will be competed, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 pounds and light heavyweights. Entries for these classes may be forwarded to Dilboy Post, V. F. W., headquarters, Knights of Columbus Building, Highland ave., Somerville.

RAWSON AND MILLS MEET SEPT. 23

BIG BOY RAWSON, sensational knockout puncher from Dorchester, and Bob Mills, heavyweight champion of New Hampshire, will meet for the third time at the Arena on Monday night, September 23.

The two young giants are scheduled to box 10 rounds, as they were in their previous meetings, but once more it is felt that the battle will end in a knockout. Their first fight went four rounds, with Rawson triumphant.

Those two fights were the most sensational heavyweight contests in the modern history of the Massachusetts ring. In the first fight, Mills was floored four times but got off the floor to flatten Rawson.

In the second fight, he had Rawson draped on the lower strand of ropes at the end of the second round, and only the bell saved the Big Boy, who came back and plastered Mills to defeat.

Their rubber match is bound to result in a free-swinging, hard-hitting battle, for both Rawson and Mills depend on the big punch. In 31 fights, Mills has scored 15 knockouts. In 19 fights, Rawson has scored 18 knockouts, losing only to Mills.

Al Brown Returns Today From Norway

Brown will meet Teddy Baldock, English champion, in the New York Coliseum on October 2.

GRIFFITH IN LINE FOR BIG HEAVY WARS

By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Tuffy Griffith today occupies a spot among the leading contenders for Gene Tunney's vacated heavyweight championship as a result of his four-round knockout of Dr. Ludwig Haymann at the New York Garden.

Griffith scored two knockdowns in the fourth round. He had the German on the verge of a knockout when Referee Jack Dorman stepped in and stopped the mill. Haymann displayed great ruggedness, but little knowledge of the boxing game.

Griffith displayed a world of aggressiveness and fierce punching power. He made the fans forget all about his knockout at the hands of James Braddock at the Garden a year ago.

Sir Thomas Lipton famous English yachtsman, viewed the show from a front row seat. He was the guest of William F. (Call Me Bill) Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corp.

Jack Sharkey, who battles Tommy Loughran at the Yankee Stadium on September 26, also attended the show. He was given the best ovation he has ever received from a New York crowd when introduced. New Yorkers like the new serious Sharkey.

Frank Bruen announced the complete supporting card for the Sharkey-Loughran bout. Jim Maloney will receive $12,500 for battling Armand Emanuel of San Francisco in the 10-round semifinal. Emanuel will pull down $3500.

Tom Heeney of New Zealand, who battled Gene Tunney for the title a year ago, will get $6000 for tackling George Hoffman of New York, in another 10. Hoffman will receive $2000.

President's Cup Regatta Begins

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—The annual running of the President's cup regatta today attracted more than 150 roaring speedboats to the course on the historic Potomac.

One of the twenty-odd coast guard craft assigned to carry officials and guests and to patrol the course, has been assigned to President Hoover and his guests. The chief executive will attend the final races tomorrow.

Graham Training Hard for Battle With Andy Martin

CHAMP IN HUB ON MONDAY FOR BOUT

ANTICIPATING one of the hardest struggles of his ring career, Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., world's bantamweight champion, will arrive here on Monday to finish his training for his 10-round bout with Andy Martin at the Boston Garden, Friday night, September 20.

While Graham has been training strenuously for the past 10 days at his home in Utica, he is anxious to arrive here early for this bout in order that he will be at the top of his form, for the Utica buzz-saw regards Martin as one of the outstanding featherweight contenders in the game.

It is expected that Graham will do all his training in this city at Kelly & Hayes' gymnasium, as Martin has been busy for the past week at Jim Toland's gym, where his daily training sessions are witnessed by big crowds.

Hub fans are backing Martin to continue his winning streak at the expense of the bantam king, for they point out that the Hub boy's victories over Eddie Shea of Chicago and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute are sufficient to stamp him as the logical successor to Andre Routis as featherweight king. Yet Graham, too, has hopes of annexing that featherweight crown, and for this reason is quite keen upon winning the Hub bout.

The 10-round semifinal will provide Eddie "Newsboy" Curley an opportunity it rounds all way into the top ranks when he meets Steve Smith of Bridgeport.

Curley, by the way, is the only fighter who holds a decision over Jake Zeramby, and the latter never would agree to a return.

It is now planned to give Curley a chance to meet the topnotchers.

Grid Gleanings

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 13 (INS)—Cagle, Murrell, O'Keefe and Gilmer, the latter calling signals, seems to be the backfield duo to start the season for Army. This quartet was used yesterday by Coach Jones in going through a series of plays after they had been explained on the blackboard.

Cape May, N. J., Sept. 13 (INS)—Lou Young believes in work. The Penn grid coach will send his hopefuls through another scrimmage today despite a lengthy one yesterday. All of Penn's injured will be ready to resume work Monday.

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 13 (INS)—Cornell football aspirants will continue light conditioning drills until Monday when heavier work will begin it was announced by Gil Dobie today.

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 13 (INS)—Dartmouth's pre-season practice has revealed one thing, if nothing else—that Maxsters has regained his 1927 form. In the "touch drill yesterday Al was stepping trickily and throwing passes with all his old skill Farmingdale, N. Y., Sept. 13 (INS)—Coach Chick Meehan is paying a great deal of attention during the pre-season training of his New York University Violets to passing. Yesterday the aerial game was especially stressed, with Beryl Follett showing great aptitude in tossing the ball swiftly and accurately.

New York, N. Y., Sept. 13 (INS)—Columbia's football team will discard the huddle system this fall, it was announced today by Coach Crowley.

English Wightman Cup Team in Frisco

San Francisco, Sept. 13 (INS)—Members of the British Wightman cup team were preparing today for their matches here tomorrow with California women tennis stars. Another series of matches will be played at Berkeley Sunday.

Lady Skippers Sail at Gloucester

Gloucester, Sept. 13—Two more of the ladies' skipper races were sailed in the sonder and triangle classes at Eastern Point, making one more to go to complete the series in the sonder, and two in the triangles.

Good Time Guy — By Frank Smiley

two days and remain idle the rest of the time.

That wouldn't be much more ridiculous than the present schedule which finds most of the teams playing one day and loafing two for the final five or six weeks of the season.

THE Red Sox will have to win the final game from the Tigers tomorrow to gain the edge in the series. They were hoping that Ed Morris would do that little thing for them in the second game but he failed. Or it might be better to say his mates failed him in their effort to turn in his 15th victory of the season.

He allowed only two runs and with perfect support, only one marker would have been chalked up against him, but his mates could only make one run off Billy "Red" Herring, a recruit, who was hurling his first big league game.

We would have liked to see Big Ed win, but the natives, taken as a whole, didn't deserve to finish in front when they could manufacture only one run off a green hurler.

The Sox still have a great chance to gain the edge, though, for Milton, who has hurled eleven scoreless innings in a row, is primed to pitch on the morrow.

THE crucial series with the Chicago White Sox, which will probably settle the occupancy of the cellar in this campaign, will open with a doubleheader at Braves Field on Sunday.

Only one game is scheduled for that day, but the natives are so anxious that all the games of the series should be played that they will stage Wednesday's game on the Sabbath as well, which will leave an open date to play any of the contests that might be postponed

3D GAME OF N. E. SERIES OFF

The third game of the New England League championship series between Lynn and Manchester, scheduled at Lynn today, was put off until tomorrow because of rain.

Manchester is a big edge now, with two straight victories over their rivals, and this means a whole lot in a seven-game series.

Lynn will be fighting with its back to the wall, but everybody that knows Tom Whelan, manager of the Lynn club, is sure that he will resort to anything in the way of smartness to get back into their winning stride.

Bill Bailey, for Manchester, and either Frank Schmitt or Lefty Douglas, who was knocked out of the box in the first game, will be the choice of the Lynn club.

So far in the series Jack Kahn has been the hero of the two games. The popular right fielder has turned in catch after catch, saving his pitchers many times, just when they were wavering or when Lynn had men on the sacks.

Horween to Drill Team in Laterals

By JOE MOONEY

WALTER R. OKESON'S smoke talk on the changes in football rules for this year left many of his coaching audience still very much in a haze in the matter of passes, muffs, and fumbles.

But the backfield coaches who will come to Cambridge this weekend will have one point clearer than all others in mind. This is in regard to the change in the rule covering the lateral pass

Under the old rule, a lateral pass when fumbled became a dead ball at the point where the fumble was made. Now the rule states that a lateral pass, though fumbled by the receiving side, if legally recovered, may be advanced

As is well known to all the fans who watched Arnie Horween's charges in the Stadium last fall, the lateral pass was the most powerful instrument of attack that the Crimson had in its bag of tricks!

When lined against Stonefield, North Carolina and Lehigh, Harvard was able to score almost at will, and against Dartmouth and Yale the Cantabs were able to give their opponents the merry run around in more senses than one.

The one drawback to the lateral pass in the past has been the all too present chance for a fumble Whether or not the other team figured in the play the ball became dead and no further advancement could be made.

It is safe to say that will, the present ruling Coach Horween and his assistant Eddie Casey will drill the backs harder than ever in this feature in order to develop a fast running game. This should be an easy task for the mentors as they have plenty of varsity carriers who are specialists in this wrinkle

TILDEN-DOEG CLASH IN SEMI-FINAL

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Sept. 13—John H. Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., will sum up the case against "Big Bill" Tilden in the semi-final round of the men's national singles championship in the West Side Stadium this afternoon. Tilden is aspiring to win the national title for the seventh time.

Tilden will go into the match favored to win but will be forced to play at top speed. It has been increasingly evident in this tournament that Tilden has gone back quite a bit. He had an exceedingly difficult time in disposing of Frank Shields on Tuesday and after a somewhat easier contest against Henry M Cully of Cambridge, on Wednesday, he caught another tartar yesterday in the quarter finals when he squeezed through against John Van Ryn, former Princeton captain.

The other semi-final bracket brings Francis T Hunter of New Rochelle finalist last year against Henri Cochet, against Fritz Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa. Hunter has played remarkable tennis to reach this position, having triumphed over such outstanding players as Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore, Wilbur F Coen and R Norris Williams, 2nd

Veteran Michigan Coach to Retire

Ann Arbor Mich., Sept. 13 (AP) —Stephen J Farrell, veteran coach of University of Michigan track teams, will retire next spring, terminating a career of 45 years as an athlete and coach.

Back in the early days Steve Farrell was the world's champion hammer thrower. He could run any race from the hundred to the mile.

Filene's MEN'S STORE

WHO

are the men for whom we established our inexpensive clothing department specializing in men's suits and topcoats at $22.50

The newly-married man buying his home on the co-operative plan—

The young unmarried man who would like a new suit oftener with less paid each time—

The man who lives on a budget and finds it usually totals 100% of his income—

The man who wants a second suit to take the harder knocks—

The man who (frankly) makes up his mind he "just won't pay more."

Filene's never carried $22.50 clothes until it found $22.50 clothes that were worthy of the Filene label. That was accomplished only through mass production and group buying with 13 other stores in 13 different American cities.

Cape Cod Shirt, $6
Super six shoes, $6
Filene hats, $5 up

Buy a $22.50 suit—add the extra trousers at $6—and get a new clothes experience with a cash dividend.

SOVIET ACCEPTS BRITISH OFFER

Moscow, Sept. 13 (AP)—The Russian government officially announced today it had accepted an invitation from the British labor government to send a representative to London for a discussion of procedure in negotiations for renewal of trade and commercial relations and diplomatic services between Russia and England.

Since it was on matters of procedure that the Anglo-Russian negotiations broke down early in August, the first discussions in London will be devoted to clearing up any difficulties of this kind.

The invitation from the British government was transmitted to the Russian government by Norway.

Veteran's Gifts for Gold Star Mothers

Washington, Sept. 13 (INS)—When the pilgrimage of Gold Star mothers to the graves of their sons overseas is conducted by the Federal Government next summer, each mother will carry with her some gift from a chapter of the Disabled American Veterans in her home state, according to plans announced today by William J. Murphy, national commander of the organization.

"We feel that no group of former service men is closer to the devoted mothers of our dead comrades and we propose that each mother shall take with her on her sacred mission a suitcase or some other such gift from our chapters throughout the country," said Murphy.

Plane Hits Radio Tower, Flier Killed

Atlanta, Sept. 13 (AP)—The air mail plane from New York to Atlanta crashed into a radio tower at Ft. McPherson early today in a fog, fatalling injuring the pilot, Sid Molloy, of Columbus, Miss. He died at the Ft. McPherson hospital, where he had been taken by soldiers who pulled him from the wreckage of the plane.

War Lord Fined $150

Otta, Japan, Sept. 13 (AP)—Chang Tsung Chang, former Shantung, China, war lord, was convicted of accidental homicide in district court here today in connection with the death recently of Prince Tsien Kai, a young Manchu, and was fined 300 yen (about $150).

RAP SCHOOL BUS SERVICE

Swansea, Sept. 13—Alleged lack of bus transportation has caused three of a strike of school pupils in the Wood st. and Delmage ave. sections of this town.

Parents of the children say they will keep them from school until the bus route is changed so that the pupils will not have to walk so far to reach the conveyance.

Superintendent Horace F. Bates declares the bus route was changed last year and that there will be no rearrangement now. He further said the parents would be liable to prosecution if they keep the children from school.

What will we Men wear this Fall?

Late "news flashes" from the staff of Bond representatives at leading "fashion fronts" supply the answers!

College men, homeward bound from European vacations, are honoring a new, loosely fitted two-button sack model developed by a fashionable Bond Street tailor. One of the original British patterns was sent to our plant six weeks ago—and full selections are in our store, now.

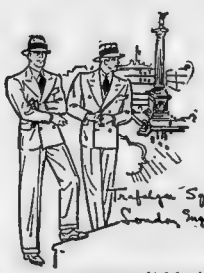
We believe our "style assurance" policy has made more friends for us than anything else—and that's covering a lot of ground!

We never "take a chance" in our selection of new Fashions for Men. We insist on the clean-cut stamp of authenticity, before we sponsor a new style, a new pattern, or a new shade. That's why we maintain a staff of observers, whose duty it is to report—and check—the successful introduction of new style features, just as they've graphically done here.

And what's just as important, that's why we make all the clothes we sell—for only thus, can we perfectly reproduce these accepted styles at thoroughly sensible prices!

We shall enjoy showing you our new selections of correct Fall Fashions for Men.

In the gallery that witnessed "Bobby" Jones' defeat, we saw dozens of the new overplaid pattern designs that are a feature of our Fall stocks. Sudan Brown, Granada Blue and Pilgrim Gray are the smartest colorings.



Lord Nelson, atop his loft column, looks down with approval on the wide-shouldered double-breasteds being worn by carefully groomed Londoners. Exact reproductions are ready for your approval—at Bond's.

The polo fan has always been the "early bird" in disclosing topcoat preferences. Last week, when the Hurricane Four nosed out Roslyn in the final chukker, the Llama Topcoat won by a wide margin (100% pure Llama's are an outstanding feature of our Fall selections).

SCULPTOR DIES 'SUDDENLY'

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The death of Edmond T. Quinn, 60, widely-known American sculptor, was announced by his wife last night.

The announcement gave no details of the death beyond saying it occurred suddenly Monday.

A friend of the family said a body recovered yesterday from New York harbor near Governor's Island had been identified by Mrs. Quinn as that of her husband.

On May 11 Mr. Quinn swallowed a quantity of poison mixed with whiskey in what police said was an attempt to commit suicide. At that time friends said he was suffering from extreme melancholia.

Among his works are the bust of Edgar Allan Poe in Poe Park, here, a statue of Edwin Booth in the character of Hamlet in Gramercy Park, the bust of Professor Franklin W. Hooper in the Brooklyn Museum; the figure of John Howard at Williamsport, Pa., figures on Battle Monument at King's Mountain, S. C., and decorative figures on the Pittsburgh Athletic club.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

More Money Needed for Cancer Research

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—Letters from medical authorities were before the Senate committee today in its investigation of the best means of government aid in the search for a cure for cancer.

Filed with correspondence already accumulated, the letters gave Chairman Jones and his committee a new fund of information for the study it was directed to undertake when the Senate adopted a resolution introduced by Senator Harris, Democrat, Georgia, last spring.

All the letters agreed that more money for existing institutions of research and earlier diagnosis of the disease, were urgently needed.

Dr. J. Sheldon Horsley of Richmond, Va., observed that appropriations for experimental work were "absurdly inadequate," but that the "greatest need" was an early and correct diagnosis.

THIS is Friday the Thirteenth, an ominous combination for Gus and Louis the Shradertown garage men, close friends once, but bitter rivals now. Tonight they race against each other at the County Fair in sweepstakes for cars of pre-war vintage. Louis wants the "grand" to buy furniture and marry the dashing Widow Biddle right away. Gus will stop at nothing to prevent Louis from winning. The battle for honors starts at the rehearsal of the Shradertown band and ends in a thrilling scene at the fair grounds. Tune in on station WEEI at 9:30 and root for your favorite.

WHILE there is nothing in the book concerning the way Robinson Crusoe, his man Friday and the Goat spent Friday, the 13th, Raymond Knight has discovered that all was not well on that day on the little island. Crusoe had many troubles to contend with and not the least of these was Friday and the Goat. Just what happened will be told in the Triadrama, which the Triadors will broadcast through WBZ at 8 o'clock. Jane Rines and the Triadors will supply the musical background and Philip Carlin will act as master of ceremonies.

MARY and Bob of True Story Hour have reached California in their travels and are doing as the natives do, camping in the Muir woods, across the bay from San Francisco. Seated about the campfire at the close of the day, one of the campers tells the story of a man who was too old to secure a position until his youth-loving daughter pointed out to him a beyond-to a secure future. "I Was Ready for the Scrap Heap" is the title dad gives to his story. Mary and Bob will be supported by a notable cast with a fine orchestra and string quartet broadcasting through WNAC at 9 o'clock.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON'S first interview over the radio will be broadcast by Graham McNamee during tonight's program of the Gillette Blades through station WBZ. The yeoman's spadework on one of the greatest sportsmen of all times, will tell why he believes he has a better chance than ever to win America's cup when the Shamrock V races the American defender off Newport next year. Sir Thomas' message to the radio audience will be surrounded by vocal and instrumental music sung by the Five Gay Young Blades and played by the Ten Gallant Blades and the Gillette Orchestra, under Sam Lanin.

Esther Davis, concert soprano, assisted by Margaret B. Richardson, pianist, will be heard in an operatic program which will be broadcast from WLOE this evening at 7 o'clock. Miss Davis is well known in concert circles, having appeared before the Concord Musical Society and other music clubs. She is a pupil of the well known Boston teacher, Mrs. Dudley Hitz. Mrs. Richardson has appeared at Jordan Hall in a number of piano recitals. Hendel's "Care Selve" will be the opening of Miss Davis' program this evening. Other selections to follow include "Sea Shells" by White, McFadden's "If" and "Songs From the Far-Away" by Galbraith.

THE first of a new series in the "An Evening in Paris" broadcasts, sponsored by Bourjois, comes tonight through WEEI and associated NBC stations. Listeners will be taken to the Cafe Figall in Montmartre, where the type of entertainment known as "cabaret" is said to have originated. It opens at midnight and closes only when the last patron has had his fill of gaiety. Two orchestras play without interruption, and songs of Montmartre and of Paris lend their flavor lively dance music. Manon, Peaches, Bill and Jacques, members of the Franco-American quartet, will introduce new Parisian melodies.

"Listen to the Mocking Bird" will be heard as a tenor solo during the Daguerreotypes broadcast from WNAC this evening. This song was in its hey-day during the Civil War and was sung and whistled by nearly everyone through the South. Another song to be heard in this same program, "Father, Dear Father, Come Home to Me Now," tells, in what seems to us a highly ridiculous manner, the tragedies of Some life before the National Prohibition Act made the country more or less temperate.

Here's a story about Alexander Kiroloff, conductor of Troika Bells, heard through the NBC System. Kiroloff recently spent a day in Coney Island and had dinner at a resort where recorded music entertains the diners. A record of Russian music was put on the machine. Kiroloff listened entranced. The music ended and Kiroloff rushed over to the proprietor.

"That music was grand," he said. "The orchestra rivals my own. I must know the name of it!"

The proprietor handed him the record. Kiroloff examined it. He had just listened to a record made by his own band under his own direction.

Hoover to Speak Over CBS Network

President Hoover will speak during the Dedication Program to be broadcast over station WNAC and the Columbia Broadcasting System at 10:30 o'clock, Wednesday night, September 18, it was announced today. The President will speak from his study in the White House, his address being carried by special wire to WMAL, the Columbia station in the nation's capital, and from there distributed to the entire Columbia Broadcasting System from coast to coast.

The program will present, from New York, Washington and other centers, representative stars of radio, and marks the dedication of the Columbia Broadcasting System Building at 485 Madison ave., New York, and the official opening of the studios of WABC at that point, as well as the second anniversary of the C. B. S., which was formally opened September 18th, 1927.

Tommy's Winning Smile

Just before Tommy Loughran left for his training camp at Harvey's Lake to prepare for his coming battle against Jack Sharkey for heavyweight honors, loyal Philadelphia fight fans presented him with the latest in Philco receivers. Tommy is an ardent radio fan and will use the set during his training period.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

THE nails of the toes should be kept short and cut straight across. If toe nails be cut on the sides like the finger nails the toes themselves are more likely to become bruised and the danger of infection increased. They should be cared for as carefully as the fingers, though not exposed to view.

IS HE WORTH WHILE? -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Consider the Man From All Sides, Is Good Advice

Is he worth while?

That is a question a girl may well ask herself when she feels her heart going out to a young man.

And if the answer is in any doubt, she may well hang onto her heart for a while longer. It is not easy, of course, to ask one-self such questions and answers them honestly when under the spell of fascination. But many things are hard which can, nevertheless, be done, and which are essential to success and happiness.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes "Curly." "I am a daily reader of your column, and, seeing how you help others, I thought maybe you would help me in my distress.

"I am completely puzzled about my love affair with a certain boy friend. I will call him George.

"He belongs to a family of very high standing in social life, and is well liked and thought of by every-body. He was a member of this year's graduating class and is nineteen years of age. I am eighteen and will graduate next mid-term.

"We have been going together steadily for the past four months and are deeply in love with each other. You may say this is puppy love, but it was love at first sight. We are together at least four times a week, and he never wants to go any place.

"He treats me nicely, but all he wants to do is mug and pet. He says that he loves me and often speaks of marriage, but his actions toward me are not what I think they ought to be. Tell me frankly, what should I do about this?

"At present he isn't earning much, but I would be willing to start with little. I am afraid, though, his wages will never increase, because he is not very energetic. But, oh, George and I love each other so much! Now please answer this, for I am eagerly awaiting your advice.'

You may be infatuated with George—you may be utterly fascinated But you cannot love him unless you respect and trust him. Do you? Love, includes respect and trust, else it cannot survive.

Can you honestly trust and respect a boy who does not care to work, does not work industriously, yet, depending on his earnings, talks of marriage?

If the bond between you is "mugging and petting," do you think it will carry your love triumphantly through all the hardships of poverty? How long do you think a boy from a family of high social standing will be content with love in a cottage?

Why do you not begin going about again with all your friends? Choose your companions from among young men you know who treat a girl as she should be treated and are dependable and trust-worthy as well as interesting and attractive.

A KISS FOR CORRINA

By MAY CHRISTIE
CHAPTER 16

THE gay evening sounds of Broadway that drifted up to Corinna's little living room no longer seemed to mock her. With Malvey beside her, they were like a tune flung out in joy about her heart. And the small green room was Heaven, because it held everything of happiness she wanted.

Corinna was a born lover—generous to the point of sacrifice. "To love is to suffer," she had been told, proverbs. She had painfully learned the truth of that.

But now there was a pink flush on her usually pale cheeks, a deep glow in those eyes of hers that made her look quite beautiful. With Malvey beside her she was radiant.

He thought—how trivial in comparison to Corinna was the Van Wyck girl! Her posings and her insincerities were almost comical.

Corinna was holding of the violets between herself and him as though they were a safeguard. Their perfume seemed an essence emanating from the lovely soul of her Corinna, telling him sweet things of which he'd vaguely dreamed.

"Corinna, why do you stand so silent? What's going on in your mind? Why do you tantalize me so?"

Her voice trembled as she said:

"I haven't all the airs and graces and the moods and tenses that appeal to men. If I had you'd think a whole lot more of me then!"

Was she referring to the Van Wyck girl? He didn't want to be reminded of that stupid incident He drew Corinna closer to him as he replied, vehemently:

"I wouldn't have you one iota different. You think these silly little artificialities—these tricks that lots of empty-headed women use, are fascinating? You're wrong, Corinna. A man wants naturalness in the girl he loves. You—and the other thing YOU'VE got—I suppose one would call it 'charm'—"

His nearness made her dizzy. It was like coming in on a cold wet night and finding a great, glowing fire. Nay more! Electric thrills were running through her veins, so that she trembled in his arms.

She repeated shakily, a questioning inflection in her voice, the word "charm."

"Just that, Corinna. You've got oodles of it. It seeps out of your ten little fingers and ten little toes!"

"That sounds like an old-fashioned play I once read. It was called 'What Every Woman Knows.'"

It mattered not what she was saying, because her nearness intoxicated him.

"In the play," proceeded Corinna smiling, "there was an awfully nice woman—kind, unselfish and clever—but she ain't got one ounce of charm. At least, not in the beginning. Later on, when she fell very much in love with someone who didn't KNOW she loved him, she developed her attraction."

"What is this charm?" Malvey wanted to kiss Corinna, but he was afraid of a repulse.

"Some one in the play describes charm as 'the bloom on a woman.'"

"That's a first-rate description," he reflected for a moment. He said, sagely: "An awful lot of girls soon have that bloom rubbed off, with their mascaracks and their supposed smartness and the way they soon lose their fascination and their freshness."

"Does he think I'm cheap?" Corinna asked of herself. Although her heart was yearning for him, she tried to move back from Malvey.

Sitting Pretty Trouserettes -:- -:- -:-

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

WHEN Gloriette "wears the trousers" these days the spectacle she makes is not the one that we saw flash through our picture maker years ago. A plain pair of "pants"—what a word!—couldn't look good on ANY lady, no matter how good SHE looked. Even the forgotten Vesta Victoria, even our own pretty, red-thin Elsie Janis, in her black-bird evening duds always looked just like a lady "with men's clothes on." Adam has never been in any real danger of his wife wearing his trousers because the first time she turned in them before the mirror, round and about, with her red lower lip stuck out in contemplation, the danger was over. Eve knew that she looked funny in 'em!

Socrates' wife, Xantippe, threatened seriously to wear 'his: but only figuratively, for, you see, Socrates didn't really own any.

Now Eve, with joy in her soul for any novelty, has found out how to have her cake and eat it, too. Be a perfect lady to her husband, leaving his own scratchy clothing forever alone, and yet walking forth in trousers herself. Well say trouserettes. For she now wears 'em and yet keeps her feminine aspect. And it doesn't worry Adam a speck, because they aren't his.

Sitting pretty, Eve is nowadays. Pajamas by the sea. Pajamas at tea. Pajamas on the front porch. Pajamas in the drawing-room. Pajamas in the garden. Pajamas in the air. Pajamas at the drawing table.

CORRECT MANNERS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—My parents want to announce my engagement at a dinner. How is the best way to do it? We will not have place cards.

2—I have not met my fiance's parents. Should I make an effort to meet them before the announcement of the engagement?

S. A. G.

INSTEAD of place cards I suggest placing at the places card cases, either of white or gold leather, or perhaps some novelty kind that would be in good taste, or, if these are outside of your budget, plain white card envelopes. In these envelopes put the two visiting cards, one of the fiances and one of the fiance. As the guests are opening these, the bride-to-be slips the ring on her finger, and the announcement is thereby made with taste and dignity

2—Yes, although, as a matter of fact and tradition, the parents of your fiance should make the effort to meet you. One of the most definite rules in the world of etiquette is that the parents of the fiance, immediately after he has told them of his engagement, should call on the bride and her parents, and give them welcome into the family. This is a most important call, this call of welcome, and should be made within twenty-four hours after they have been informed of the engagement. If this call has not been made, the engaged girl should talk it over with her fiance, graciously and kindly, and try to see what she can bring about in the way of an introduction. It isn't a nice thing for her to do, but the sensitive-minded girl will find a good way of doing this She can always have her mother invite the parents of her fiance to dinner.

N B—Forks are placed on the left, knife and spoon on right. Napkins are left at side and as informal or form al dinner they are placed in the center of the service plate.

RELIABLE CAKE RULES

WHAT kind of cake do you suppose my mail tells me the novice housewive is most anxious to learn to make? Yes, the chorus is correct! Devil's Food Cake. Probably because a moist, dark, chocolate cake is the average man's idea of heavenly cookery and the old joke about a man's heart and bell line is still good advice.

So we'll start off our cake lesson today with a Devil's Food Cake that's as rich and yummy as the most chocolate-loving man could desire.

DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE
1-3 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2-3 cup milk
3 squares unsweetened chocolate
1½ cups flour
2½ tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1½ tsps. vanilla

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Cook the milk and chocolate, cut in pieces, over a slow fire stirring until thick. Cool. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with the chocolate to the first mixture. Add vanilla and beat thoroughly. Bake in two layer cake pans in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Cool. Spread Marshmallow Frosting between layers and on top. Sprinkle with chopped nuts.

MARSHMALLOW FROSTING
½ lb. marshmallows
1 cup sugar
½ cup water
1 egg white
½ tsp. vanilla
Few grains salt

Cut marshmallows in pieces and melt over hot water. Cook sugar and water together to 240 degrees F. (or until the syrup forms a rather firm ball when tested in cold water). Pour the syrup slowly over the stiffly beaten egg white and beat until stiff. Add melted marshmallows and beat until smooth and thick enough to spread. Add vanilla and salt

For company, the bride will probably take especial pride in a Silver Cake, with perhaps an Orange Frosting (or pistachio if she prefers). So that will be our next experiment in cake making.

SILVER CAKE
½ cup shortening
1¼ cups sugar
1 cup milk
2¾ cups flour
2 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
6 egg whites

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add a little of the milk and beat well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with the remainder of the milk to the first mixture. Beat thoroughly, add vanilla and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites.

Bake in tube pan in moderate oven (325 deg. F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Cover top and sides with Orange Frosting.

ORANGE FROSTING
Juice of ½ orange
Grated rind of ½ orange
4 cups confectioners' sugar

Beat eggs and add orange juice and rind. Add enough confectioners' sugar to make it the right consistency to spread. Beat until smooth.

Faithfully yours,
Martha Lee

Fashion's Fads

Get out your knitting needs, and knit yourself a sport dress with an old fashioned knitting design. These one-piece dresses built along princess lines, and with a flare at the skirt, threaten to become popular for fall. The style of knitting gives it unique charm.

Born to the purple royal, the fall shoe considers purple as one of its smartest shades Running a close second is the smart shade of midnight blue. Green and red shoes are still popular, and of course black and brown are the good old standbys.

Shades of hades, but they do say the lingeries shades for fall run on a brownish and beige note. It seems our outer garments will follow these shades, so the smart young thing must have lingerie repeating the idea. Eggshell and beige edged with a darker shade of lace can turn itself into ravishing creations.

All frills and furbelows are the blouses for Fall, and mostly frills at that. And, strange to say, frills fit in nicely with the Fall tweed suit. One suit of thin brown tweed has a tuck-in white linen blouse, whose collar and front is one succession of these feminine foibles.

WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND.

SOME women have "style-sense"—an unerring premonition of what the next fashion surprise or atrocity will be, months before it appears.

Next to red hair and a retrousse nose, I have always most envied any woman this magic prescience.

I used to think that fashions were just accidental, like colds, or the weather or falling in love. Dispensations of Providence, sent to torment your soul and keep you guessing, worrying and struggling.

Later, I decided that they were the machinations of the Style Experts, invented to entice you or on-tray you or scourge you into throwing away whole closets full of beautiful clothes, and buying new ones, every season. I pictured all "style experts" with horns and hoofs and di olical grins. Monsters and tyrants!

But, now I know better. Every new fashion is an outgrowth of mass psychology. If you keep your ear to the ground, you can predict what is coming, as well as a Parisian couturier. It isn't clairvoyance; it's just common sense.

When a woman rebels she rebels all over- and we have only the police to thank that woman still has a shred of bathing suit left to cover her in the daytime, and a few yards of tulle and chiffon in the evening. You know how it is, when you go berserk, and start throwing things. You don't stop until the last breakable object is smashed.

Well, thank heaven. THATS all over! The violent mood has passed and now the reaction has set in No more flapperism! No more highly painted faces, brazen attitudes, vulgar dances, cheap slang and tawdry gin-and- petting parties. Now, it's veiled illusion, flowing long skirts, demure long hair, delicate make-up, polished manners, drapery, mystery, seductive languor, ultra-feminity! The American woman is going high-hat! Broadway is going Park Avenue! Black velvet and pearls and gentle dignity! Regal stuff! Stateliness! Hauteur! Subtlety!

But don't think it's a mood or an accident or just an imported idea. It's straight psychology. The pajama girl took stock of herself, and found that the "naughty-little-brother" stuff had lost its charm. Her impudence had lost its freshness; her frankness had ceased to startle or stir, or even to attract attention. What to do? What to do?

There was only one thing to do—and she did it. She's gone feminine! And that's the whole psychology of the new fall styles!

Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

BECAUSE the Summer's song filled days
Are all too fleet,
And just beyond the golden haze
And glowing heat,
We glimpses the red Autumnal leaf,
The yellowed grass,
We need not vision joy as brief
Or soon to pass.

No calendar can compass Him
Or measure woe
Eternities are in a kiss;
As dreams, years go.
The hour of greatest heart's delight
May leave at last
Long afterglow of radiant light
When day is past.

Eyes meet, lips touch, the wise soul knows
That no farewell
Can raise its barriers for those Who once loved well

"LITTLE CAESAR"

The Thrilling, Vivid STORY OF A RACKETEER

by W. R. BURNETT

Many in Gangland Thought Rico's Rise a Fluke

What Has Happened Before

In the hold-up of a Chicago night club, Detective Capt. Jim Courtney is shot and killed by Rico, Sam Vettori's gangster lieutenant. Sam is furious, fearing the consequences, but Rico, unafraid, calls Sam a coward and assumes his leadership. The gang gives Rico a banquet. When Tony Passa, losing his nerve, attempts to squeal about the hold-up, he is shot dead by Rico. The latter, broadening his field, forces "Little Arnie" to give up a share of his gambling house profits. He also takes his sweetheart, Bloody Belle. She tells him Arnie is cheating on the split. Rico finds Joe Massara performing as a high-class night club with his girl, Olga Sissasoff. Joe, fearing Tony's fate, is forced to fall in with Rico's underworld plans. Bloody Belle warns him to kill Arnie or get it himself.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER 19

THERE were quite a few wise boys in gangland who thought that Rico's sensational rise was a fluke. The matter was talked about a good deal and he was unfavorably compared with Nig Pepi and Monk DeAngelo, former leaders, and there were even those who considered him inferior to Killer Pepi, Ottavio Vettori, and Joe Sansone.

This confusion arose because Rico was not understood. He had none of the outward signs of greatness. Neither the great strength and hairiness of Pepi, nor the dash and effrontery of Ottavio Vettori, nor the maniacal temper of Joe Sansone. He was small, pale and quiet. In spite of his new finery he wasn't much to look at. He did not swagger, he seldom raised his voice, he never bragged.

In other words, the general run of gangsters could find nothing in him to exaggerate; they could not make a legendary figure of him because the qualities he possessed were qualities they could not comprehend. The only thing that redeemed him in their eyes was his reputation as a killer.

Rico was brave enough, but he did not flaunt his bravery like Kid Bean. Rico was cunning enough, but cunning was not an obsession with him as it was with Sam Vettori. Rico was capable of sudden audacity, but even his audacity had a sort of precision and was entirely without the dash of Ottavio's.

Rico, while he was small and pale, was capable of great endurance, but this endurance of his was nothing compared to Killer Pepi's inhuman vitality. Rico's great strength lay in his single-mindedness, his energy and his self-confidence. The gangsters could not appreciate qualities to abstract.

The men that were considered his rivals were not to be compared with him. Killer Pepi was strong and courageous, but he was crude, stupid and a drug-addict. Ottavio Vettori was daring enough and cool in a fight; also, he could shoot straight and he feared nothing, but he was light-minded, dissipated his energies on all sorts of follies, and ran after every woman that looked at him.

Joe Sansone, though brave enough and dependable when it came to a sudden action, was a periodic drunkard, and, generally speaking, nervous and unreliable.

Sam Vettori, a great man once, had let his congenital lethargy and his congenital love of trickery overcome him; he had become petty and had entirely lost the initiative which, years ago, had put him at the head of the gang.

Now he was not even taken seriously by the men he had once led, and but for Rico's authority, he would have sunken into obscurity.

The case of Sam Vettori was a strange one, without its parallel in gang annals. In gangland there is no such thing as abdication unless it is accompanied by flight.

The ruling leader who is superseded has two alternatives; flight or death. Sam had escaped both. His growing inability to make decisions had lost him his power, but it had also saved his life. Rico did not consider him dangerous. But that was not all. Rico considered him useful. That saved him from flight.

With the proper guidance, Sam Vettori was an asset to the gang. He was wise and he knew the ropes.

Sam was docile; not that his hatred for Rico had abated; but things were breaking good, money was rolling in, and Sam loved money above all things.

The Vettori gang had never known such prosperity before. Sam was quick to see where his advantage lay. Rico could be killed. Scabby, who hated Rico for some fancied slight and who, for this reason, was faithful to Sam, would have done it.

But what would have been the good of that? Sam knew that he was through as a gang leader. With Rico dead, there would be a mad scramble for leadership. Besides, Rico had the devil's own luck, and Scabby was a fool. If he failed, Scabby's life and his own wouldn't be worth a plugged dime.

So Sam Vettori sat back and somewhat old situation philosophically and prospered.

Bloody Belle tolled back in her chair and took her hands on the table. Rico sat opposite her with his hat tilted over his eyes.

"Well," said Bloody Belle, "I guess that's it, ain't it, Rico?"

Rico nodded.

"I told you not to give that bird a chance. He thinks you're soft."

Rico smiled and twisted his diamond ring round and round.

"He raised the split to 50 per cent, but the books were straight."

"Well," said Bloody, "he couldn't stand prosperity. Listen, you're going to kill him, ain't you?"

Bloody hated Little Arnie, but she couldn't sleep at night. She could understand Rico's lenience.

"No," said Rico.

"Hell," said Bloody, "you're getting soft."

"Aw, can that," said Rico; "you want me to get my neck stretched over a dirty double-cross? I ain't worth a good bullet? Listen, I'm gonna run that bird out of town."

Bloody was disgusted. She started to get to her feet, but Rico reached across the table and pushed her back into her chair.

"Sit down," he said, "and cut the funny stuff. If you women aint awful! Use your head, that's what you got it for."

Bloody sulked. Across the room the orchestra started up and couples crowded out into the roped-off dance floor.

"Don't they ever get sick of dancing?" said Bloody, in a bad temper.

Rico got to his feet.

"Listen," he said, "get yourself a cab and bent it. Go home and take some aspirin and hit the hay. If you lay off that bad liquor you wouldn't always be beefing."

Bloody looked at Rico for a moment, then she said:

"Aw, sit down, Rico. I'll snap out of it."

"No," said Rico, "I got business to look after and I'm getting sick of this beefing. See, I'm getting sick. Any more of this kind of stuff and I'm gonna get another woman. I might as well talk to Fisherty as you."

Bloody got to her feet without speaking. Rico never kidded; he meant what he said. Bloody was not used to men like Rico. She often wondered why it was she couldn't seem to get any hold on him.

Silently they walked around the roped-off dance floor. Rico told one of the waiters to get him a cab, then, to pass the time, he started putting nickels in a slot machine. After the third nickel, the bell rang and Rico won 50 cents; on the sixth nickel he won again.

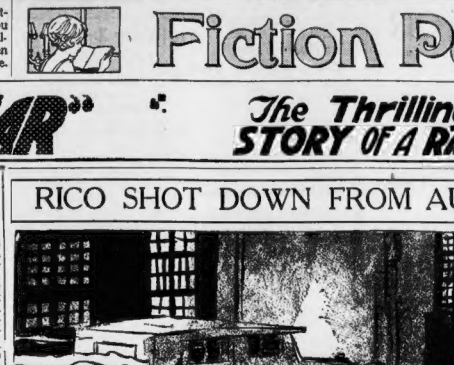
"Ain't that good!" said Rico.

He called the man behind the counter.

"Say," he said, "have you seen anybody fooling with this machine?"

The man nodded.

"Yes, sir," he said, "I seen Ottavio doing something to it."



He felt a searing pain in his shoulder as a fusilade of bullets swept past.

RICO SHOT DOWN FROM AUTO

Sam Vettori Allowed His Lethargy and Trickery to Overcome Him

Rico laughed.

"Can you beat that petty crook! He'll be robbing blind men next. Say, tell Sam to get all the machines over here. Maybe we might as well hand out nickels over the counter."

Blondie laughed, glad of this opportunity to put on a change of front.

"Boy, you don't miss anything," she said.

"Well," said Rico, seriously, "what's the use of letting somebody gyp you?"

The waiter they had sent for the cab came to tell them that it was outside.

Blondy put her hand on Rico's arm.

"Listen, wise boy," she said, "you got the right dope about that Little Arnie business. Run him out, that's O. K., but do it up brown."

"You watch," said Rico.

He put her on the cab.

"Gonna give me a ring tonight, Rico?" she asked.

"Can't say."

"Can that!" said Rico.

Blondy slammed the cab door. Rico stood and watched the cab till it disappeared. Blondy was just like any other woman. Now she had got to the grand rush stage. Always beefing about something. Rico stood looking down the street. It was hot and the city sweltered, but now and then you could feel a breath of lake wind. He looked up at the sky. Stars everywhere.

"It's a swell night," said Rico.

CHAPTER 20

CONTRARY to custom, Rico decided to walk down to the news-stand and get a paper. Since his rise, he seldom went out unaccompanied; never alone. Otero, Killer Pepi and Bat Carillo had constituted themselves his bodyguard and one of them was always within calling distance.

They were jealous of this privilege and sometimes quarreled among themselves. But the night tempted Rico; the atmosphere of The Palermo was vile, and the lake breeze was fresh and cool.

He had gone scarcely half a block when a large touring car with the curtains closed passed him. He saw the car, noticing especially the closed curtains and the fact that the driver was hugging the curb, and, fearing the worst, he looked about for a shelter, but the car passed him and went on, he paid no further attention to it.

Stopping in front of a lighted drugstore, he looked at the paper and looked at it. One o'clock! Suddenly he looked up. The big touring car was coming back at full speed with its exhaust roaring. Rico cursed himself for his carelessness and reached under his armpit for his gun.

But the car was abreast of him and three guns blazed. Rico felt a searing pain in his shoulder and fell to the ground. His gun was stuck in its holster and he couldn't get it out. One of the men leaned out of the car and emptied his gun at Rico, who, helpless on the ground, heard the bullets sing.

"A fatal line shot you are!" said Rico.

The big touring car turned a corner and disappeared. Rico got to his feet and walked into the drug store. The screen door banged behind him and the clerk, who had been lying down behind the counter, got unsteadily to his feet.

"My God," he stammered, "what was all the popping for?"

Then he noticed that there was a torn place on the shoulder of Rico's coat.

"Was they after you, mister?" he asked.

"Yeah," said Rico, "I got brushed. Give me a roll of bandages."

The clerk stood there with his mouth open. People began to come into the store. Some of them knew who Rico was and stood staring at him.

"They put a bullet through my window," said the clerk.

"Listen," said Rico, "go get me a package of bandages."

The clerk finally came to himself and went for the bandages. A crowd had gathered in the street and now there were so many people in the drugstore that the people on the outside couldn't get in. Rico stood with his back to the counter, watching. Blood had begun to drip from his coat sleeve. Before the clerk returned with the bandages, Jastrow, the cop, pushed his way through the crowd, followed almost immediately by Joe Massara.

"Well," said Jastrow," somebody finally put one in you, did they, Rico?"

"Yeah," said Rico.

Joe Massara came over and put his hand on Rico's arm. Joe's face was white.

"Hurt you much, boss?"

"No," said Rico; "what the hell you doing way over here?"

"I got tipped off," said Joe. "I couldn't get you on the phone and I began to get nervous. We'd've made it only my cab driver got hooked for speeding."

"Who gave you the tip?" Jastrow demanded.

"Go prove the bricks," said Rico, "this ain't your funeral.

Jastrow laughed.

"Rico," he said, "don't you know that the Old Man's taken an awful interest in you?"

"Well, tell him the cops couldn't get me no other way so they hired a couple of gunmen."

Jastrow laughed. Jastrow laughed also and taking out his notebook began to write in it. The clerk came with the bandages. Joe took them from him and paid him. Before they could get started, Killer Pepi and Otero came shoving their way through the crowd.

"Hello, boys," said Jastrow, looking up from his little book, "your boss got nudged by a bunk of lead."

"So they tell me," said the Killer.

Rico said:

"Let's get to hell out of here."

Jastrow went in front, clearing the way, followed by Otero and Killer Pepi, who had Rico between them. Joe brought up the rear. People were lined to the car tracks; lights blazed in all the houses along the street, and men hung from the lamp-posts. When they came out of the store, the crowd was so thick that they were unable to get any further. Jastrow took out his night-stick and flourished it, but the sight of it was enough, the crowd made a path.

As they walked along Joe came up close to Rico and whispered:

"Little Arnie."

Rico nodded. Pepi heard Joe.

"Yeah," he said, "and I'm gonna plug him tonight."

"There won't be no plugging," said Rico.

"Aw, hell," said Pepi.

Otero was excited.

"Yes, yes, Rico," he cried.

"Shut up, you birds," said Rico; "who the hell's running this show?"

A crowd was waiting for them in front of The Palmyra. But Carillo and Ottavio Vettori began to yell as soon as they saw that Rico was on his feet.

Jastrow turned around.

"Well, I guess I done my duty," he said. "Sure," said Rico, "come in and have a drink."

"Nothing doing," said Jastrow, then he shouted: "You birds quit your yelling and get in off the sidewalk."

Everybody laughed. They all liked Jastrow, who had the reputation of being on the square. Rico went in escorted by a mob. In the club people were standing on the tables; the orchestra was playing loudly, and Sam Vettori, in the middle of the deserted dance-floor, was waving his arms wildly and bellowing.

When they saw Rico there was a tumult.

"Rico! Rico! Rico!"

Killer Pepi and Otero, intoxicated by the excitement, grabbed each other and began to dance. Joe waved the bandages, Rico took off his hat and smiled.

On the way up the stairs Rico turned to Joe and said:

"Go get the Doc."

Killer Pepi took Rico by the arm.

"He's upstairs now, boss," he said; "the Kid got plugged."

"How'd you make out?" Rico inquired.

"O. K.," said Killer Pepi; "we was making a get-away on the third grand when one of the guys plugged the Kid. He ain't hurt much. Just skinned him."

Killer Pepi and Kid Bean had robbed 22 filling stations in the last two weeks.

"All right," said Rico, "you guys have been on the up and up. Split the money two ways."

"That's the talk, boss," said the Killer.

Otero knocked at the door. Joe Sansone's face appeared at the grating, then the door swung open. The Doc was working on Kid Bean. The Kid was lying on the card table, smoking a cigarete. His shirt was off and there was a smear of blood on his hairy chest. When he saw Rico he said:

"They damn near hit the target, boss."

He pointed to a pierced heart tattooed on his chest. He was as proud of his tattooing as a Maori chief.

"The boss got plugged," said Pepi.

"What!" yelled the Kid, sitting up; "go fix him up, Doc."

He gave The Doc a push. But Rico said:

"Finish up the Kid first. I can wait."

"Only jist got to bandage him yet," said The Doc with his ingratiating smile.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Ann Marie Macy is the type of girl who is continually imposed upon. Young and pretty, she dreams of a future as an actress. Her selfish, flapper sisters, Alice and Jeanie, use her dresses for their own ends, her brother, Howard, borrows her savings. The art course plan is shelved when Ann Marie uses the money in extricating Howard from an alliance with Leota Ingram, the town's bad girl. Even her mother's pendant is pawned to pay Howard's fare to the West when he loses his bank job. Neal Forsythe, dashing Don Juan, visiting the wealthy Lawlers, wins Ann Marie's heart. Alice is engaged to John Lawler. Neal proposes to Ann Marie, Ann goes on a Dutch-treat party with Neal, who forgets to return her change. Instead he steals a coffee pot for her from the roadhouse. "e returns to New York and Ann Marie begins to save to join him there. Late at night she is aroused by a noise outside her door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 23

FOR a second Ann Marie was cold with fear.

Then a voice that she knew came out of the inky darkness of the staircase.

"Don't shoot. It's just me," it said.

It was Howdy's voice and his laugh!

He came up the stairs into the light that streamed out from her bedroom.

The first thing she noticed about him was that he had grown a little mustache that was like a smudge on his upper lip.

He looked very smart and dapper in a new suit and a wide-striped tie. Evidently he had been doing well during the weeks since he left home.

"How did you get in, for heaven's sake?" Ann Marie asked him.

He held up the front door key for answer, pushed her back into her room and came in himself, closing the door carefully behind him.

"Listen," he said softly, "I'm married." And he laughed in a half-hearted way as if he were springing a poor joke on her.

"You're not!"

"Yes, I am." The laughter all died out of his voice. "My wife arrived here in town, down at the Planters' Hotel this minute—getting our bags unpacked."

Ann Marie gazed at him, wideeyed. "Why didn't you bring her home with you? Who is she?" she asked. She was just beginning to take all this in, and to think clearly.

"Her name was Stella Smith," answered Howdy as if that explained everything.

He sat down on the edge of the dressing-table and lighted a cigarette.

"Wait until you see her! She's a pip!" His infatuation for her showed itself in his face as he talked about her. "I met her on the train on the way West. . . We got married in Kansas City."

"But—but you had a lot of money?" Ann Marie echoed. She knew how very little Howdy had when he left town six weeks before.

"Yep. I'd been playing cards all the way with three rich old bozos who were goin' out to California to play golf for a month," he said, "I cleaned a hundred bucks from them—They didn't need it and I did. For once I got a break."

He went on with his story.

He had never gone as far as Oklahoma. In Kansas City Stella had given up her job—she was traveling saleswoman for a cold cream company—and Howdy had hunted for work.

"I couldn't get the sort of thing I wanted," he said, running his hand over his smoth-shaven cheek, "and our money was getting low, so we came back here."

He paused, cleared his throat and opened his lips again.

Then he closed them. He seemed to be trying to make up his mind to say something that he didn't know how to put into words.

Ann Marie waited.

"I took Stella down to the hotel when we got in tonight," the boy went on after a minute or two. "I—I—sort of wanted you to get ready for her."

Ann Marie looked relieved. "There's nothing much to get ready. The house is in order and your room is as clean as a button —just as you left it."

He shook his head and the look of worry in his face deepened.

"That isn't what I mean," he said, nervously lighting another cigarette.

"You see, when I met Stella I had a lot of money and I told her my folks had a big house back here and owned a book store. . . You know, a fellow usually does tell a little more than he ought to when he's crazy about her."

Ann Marie nodded. She began to understand now why Howdy had left his bride at the hotel, and a lump came into her throat. . . .

She had always felt like a mother to Howdy and that was the way she felt now. Poor little boy! Boasting to his bride of riches that were not his, and of high position that his family certainly did not have!

"And now I've got to make good on what I said—as far as I can," he was saying, "and good Lord, I haven't even an automobile to bring her home in!—I wish I hadn't pulled such a lot of hooey on her, but I did. Gosh, I even told her about the wonderful old servant we had—and when she sees Mrs Leezy living here like one of the family, eating with us and everything—" He groaned and put his head down into his hands.

"When she finds out what a liar and four-flusher I am she'll probably walk out on me," his voice became muffled and full of misery.

"Not if she's the right kind of girl," Ann Marie said stoutly. "The right kind of girl would love on crusts and in a garret with the man she loved—if she had to."

Her voice became tender and dreamy for a moment. She was thinking of a top-floor room somewhere among the roofs of New York. A room that was home to Neal Forsythe. . . How gladly she would share it when the time came!

"You bring your girl home tomorrow morning, Howdy, and everything will be all right," she said. "We'll get a lot of flowers and fix up the house—and Mrs. Leezy always has her breakfast early so she won't eat with us for the first meal. And, after all, we DO own a bookstore and our house IS big even if it's shabby. Don't you worry, old boy!"

She sent him back to his waiting bride, and she heard him go whistling down the halls, empty street. "I can't give you anything but love, Ba-a-a-by.

"That's the only thing I've plenty of—Ba-a-aby—"

It was Neal Forsythe's tune, too, she remembered.

By 10 the next morning Ann Marie had done a great many things.

She had broken the news of Howdy's home-coming with his bride to the family.

She had taken thirty of her hard-earned dollars out of the bank.

She had bought flowers for the house, new dresser-scarf and reading lamp for Howdy's old room, some new water goblets for the dining room table, and a pint of coffee cream.

It was morning was cold and bright. Sunshine flooded the shabby old dining room, burnishing the battered silver on the coffee tray and making the new water goblets sparkle like diamonds.

There were wood fires in the two front rooms, and another one in Howdy's bedroom upstairs. Ann Marie's clove carnations made the whole house fragrant with their perfume, and Mrs. Leezy, crying and sniffing with happiness because Howdy was coming home, had on a black dress and a white apron that crackled as she moved about.

At half-past ten a yellow taxicab—the same one that had taken Howdy to the station weeks ago—came up the street, bringing him and his wife home.

The minute that Ann Marie saw Stella she began to like her.

She was a tiny, slender thing with enormous brown eyes and a mop of red-gold hair that covered her head with shiny little curls like a baby's ringlets. She had a wide, friendly smile.

She was smiling as she came up the steps of the house.

"Hello, Popsy!" she said to Mr. Macy, and hugged him.

There was not a trace of shyness about her. She was almost too bold, but she was so pretty and so small that her boldness was cute, somehow.

She kissed Ann Marie, and she kissed Jeanie and Alice as if they were her long-lost sisters.

"Oh, you don't know what it means to have a family!" she bubbled, "if you'd been hanging around the country alone the way I have for years, making your own living you'd know what a home like this means!"

She warmed her little hands at the wood fire in the Front Parlor, beamed at the old-fashioned rooms, and squealed excitedly over the little hot Parker House rolls that Mrs. Leezy had made for breakfast.

"She seems such a tiny thing to have been working and running around on trains by herself," Mrs. Leezy talked her over later with Ann Marie, while they did the dishes. "And she must have made plenty of money, too. Look at the clothes of hers!"

Stella's clothes were beautiful and expensive-looking. She had two trunks, and Ann Marie gasped when she helped her unpack them. Thin chiffon underthings with heavy satin ribbons drawn through them. Straight little silk day-time dresses. Two heavily-beaded evening gowns with beaded slippers to match. A velvet evening cape with a fluffy white-fox collar. Three dozen pairs of silk stockings in every color of the rainbow. Handembroidered handkerchiefs in a flowered-silk case. Three bottles of perfume in a big leather box.

"She must have spent every cent she had on her back," Mrs. Alice remarked tartly to Ann Marie when they were alone.

"I'm glad of it," said Ann Marie loyally. "She's a darling and I'm sure Howdy's very glad to get back to her."

If a lie about a car would have helped Howdy out, Ann Marie would have told it then, although she was far from being a liar.

But she knew that Stella would have to know the truth about the family sooner or later, and so she told Howdy's wife.

"Because we can't afford one, Stella," she said shortly.

A shadow crossed Stella's little heart-shaped face.

She had been sitting in front of the grate in the parlor, smoking a cigarette. She snubbed it out on the blue and gray that lay on the couch beside her and walked over to the window.

"Your brother's quite a bluffer, isn't he?" she asked bitterly. "Telling me all about the wonderful parties you girls would give for me when I got here! Telling me all about his father's big store and the gorgeous grand piano you lived in, and—"

Her voice broke and she turned from the window, her face streaming with tears.

"I didn't care whether he had any money or not—so why did he lie to me?" she sobbed. "I loved him and I wanted to be married to him and belong to a nice family! And then when he said he was so rich, I thought a lot of new clothes so he wouldn't be ashamed of me—I bought them in Kansas City, and charged them—wait!"

She flew upstairs and came flying back with three envelopes in her hand.

"Here are the bills for them!" she wept, flopping them in Ann Marie's face, "and I haven't ten cents to pay them with!—Nine hundred dollars worth of bills! That's what's he done to me with his old stories!"

Ann Marie felt as if she had been thrown from the top of a sky-scraper and landed on her head. Dazed and dizzy, she put out her hand for the bills. The figures danced before her eyes like gnats in the air.

"I had a hunch for making some money the other day, Stella," she said. "Go upstairs and put on that pretty dress and hat of yours."

ABANDON HOPE FOR LAKE SHIP

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP)—Hope was all but abandoned today for the missing gravel ship Andaste and its crew of 28. Coast guardsmen returning from a search for the vessel, three days overdue in Chicago from Grand Haven, Mich., said neither Lake Michigan nor the Michigan shore had given a clue to the ship's fate.

The Andaste, loaded with gravel for the Construction Materials Company, would have sunk quickly if its steel plates sprang a leak in midlake, members of the South Chicago coast guard said today.

The coast guardsmen had just returned from a search which extended along the shore between Grand Haven and Chicago. No sign of wreckage was found.

Capt. Anderson has sailed the lakes for 45 years and during 30 years of that time has held a master's license.

Other officers aboard the Andaste besides Capt. Anderson were: Charles Brown of Grand Haven, first mate; Frank Kasperson of Grand Haven, second mate; C. J. Kibbey, chief engineer; Ralph Wiley of Benton Harbor, second engineer, and Harry F. Lutz of Benton Harbor, third engineer.

Among members of the crew were: H. Ramond, Joe Collins, Darwin Smith, H. Schultema, J. Bayles of Benton Harbor; W. Lorenz of Grand Rapids; George Watt, H. Whitaker, Theodore Torgeson of Owen, Wis.; Orville Johnson, C. Gould of Asheville, N. C.; G. Ratcliff, T. Godas, J. J. McCaslie of Cleveland, E. Bluebell, John Anderson, M. Green, George Evans, F. 20,000 MILE SUPER TIRE

Everything is bustle and hustle here this week. When it came to the choice—"Sell the tires" or "Move" thousands of tires to the warehouse—we decided sizable price sacrifice to sell. Also, take a temporary lot on the tire question—and build us more and more good will for our two Radio Depts.

TUBE GIVEN WITH EACH TIRE

1st QUALITY—HEAVY DUTY—FULL OVERSIZE

GUARANTEED 20,000 MILES

These Federal Super Defender all first quality tires are guaranteed against all defects in material and workmanship for the life of the tire. REMEMBER, WHEN YOU BUY FEDERAL TIRES YOU KNOW YOU ARE BUYING A FIMELY BUILT, OLD ESTABLISHED TIRE. WHY TAKE COSTLY CHANCES WITH UNKNOWN BRANDS THAT YOU NEVER HEARD OF BEFORE?

A Bad Mess

The Automobile Insurance Scandal

Automobile owners of Boston, Chelsea and Revere should insist upon the fullest investigation of the 30 cases of alleged fraud in connection with the settlement of accident cases which the Chamber of Commerce of Chelsea has brought to the attention of the Insurance Commissioner.

Among these complaints are allegations that:

1—Some automobile owners whose names appear upon the records as claimants know nothing about the claims which are said to have been settled in their names.

2—Addresses given by some who have collected on accident claims are fictitious.

3—Hospitals where alleged victims of reported accidents are described on the records as having been treated have NO RECORD AND NO KNOWLEDGE OF SUCH PATIENTS.

We have no means of knowing whether the facts are as they have been set forth in the daily press, but it can be fairly assumed, we suppose, that an organization like the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce would not be making such charges without material foundation. Insurance Commissioner Brown apparently felt the same way about them.

If the Chelsea Chamber HAS unearthed 30 cases of the character outlined, how many more cases have been fraudulently arranged in Chelsea?

If 30 in Chelsea, how many times 30 in Boston? How many times 300 in the State?

As it fortunately transpires, this new angle on the peculiarities of compulsory automobile insurance develops while the Special Commission on Compulsory Insurance is in session.

On Thursday and Friday of next week, announcement is made, the Commission will hold public hearings, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, on the proposed establishment of a STATE fund with which to carry on this form of insurance.

The offensive soning system, the excessive rates slated to go into effect in Boston, Revere and Chelsea, the payment of "commissions" on insurance the motorist MUST have, and the widespread belief that rates are high because claims are paid without proper investigation—backed up in the case of Chelsea by complaints that many settlements reek with graft and fraud—all these things together create a situation which calls for the searchlight.

Two things, it seems to us, are clear.

The first is that the proposed new schedule of rates should be held in abeyance until the Special Commission has completed its investigation—including an inquiry into STATE insurance—and filed its report to the Legislature.

It also seems clear, we suggest, that what is fast approaching a scandalous condition in the administration of a State function of importance to thousands of citizens calls for the attention of the Governor and his advisers.

We again call attention to next Thursday and Friday's hearings on the subject of STATE insurance.

Not State life insurance, not State fire insurance—no one wants to "put the State in the insurance business"—but a State FUND, for the SOLE purpose of handling COMPULSORY automobile insurance.

It may be the only way out of a bad mess.

The Mayoralty Race

May Be Smart and Vigorous, After All

The appearance of President Frederick W. Mansfield of the State Bar Association as a candidate for mayor of Boston means that what two or three days ago looked like a walk-over for former Mayor Curley is to take on at least the semblance of a contest.

Mr. Mansfield was State Treasurer in 1914, having been elected on the Walsh ticket, and was twice the Democratic candidate for governor, against McCall. He is a veteran of the Spanish War. He was for many years the State House representative of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor.

The new candidate is a native of East Boston, a fact which may be not without political value. He is 52 years of age. Mr. Curley is 57 and has some other advantages.

Both candidates are men of courage. Neither has ever run away from a fight. The campaign is not to be the dull, tame, lifeless thing that had been anticipated.

The Afghan Gentlemen

They Believe in Thoroughness

(Copyright, 1929)

Life in Afghanistan is at least not DULL. Those Afghans are the gentlemen who said that, if Great Britain would not interfere, they would kill half the Hindus in India, and make slaves of the other half.

Their King Amanullah came back from England with new ideas. The people drove them out. After he left railroad rails, telephones, radios that he ordered began to arrive. That money was wasted—Mohammed said nothing about radio. Amanullah's brother took his place for awhile. Then a Persian water carrier, calling himself "Habibullah," "The Darling of Gods," mounted the throne. He was driven out, came back again. One of his generals caught by rebels is boiled alive in oil.

Gulp—For the Moment

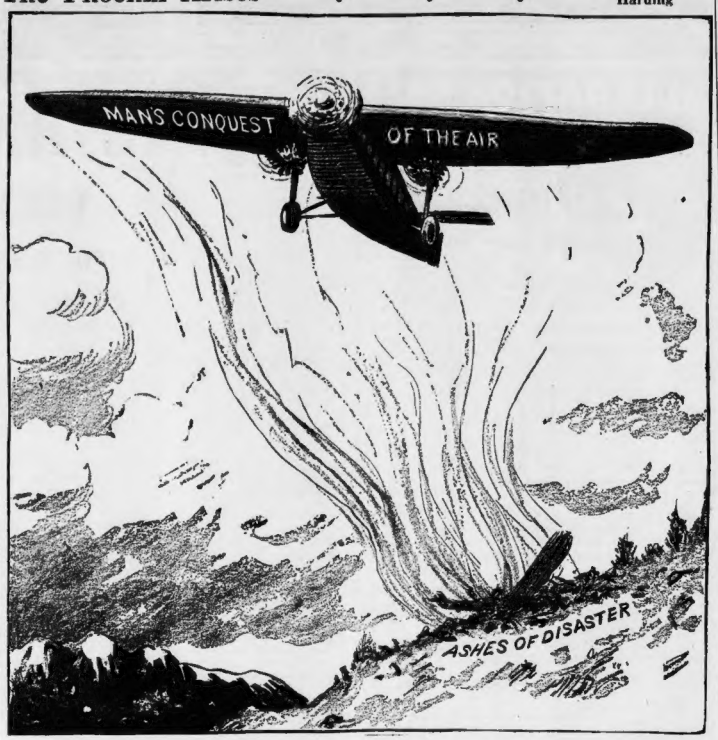
If your health permits you to wait, the scientists, sooner or later, come along with a new conclusion to justify your shortcomings.

For example, do you recall the endless warnings to Fletcherize your food? You resolved, time and time again, to take more time with your eating. You suffered sudden pangs of humiliation for not Fletcherizing. Perhaps you had a wife who warned you too often for your comfort. She made you eat fad foods—"predigested."

Well—have patience. Several very authoritative dietitians are hinting that the human family had better gulp its food. The intestines, it seems, shouldn't have such an easy time of it. They get lazy, inefficient. But just about the time we all go back to bolting food like puppies, the dietitians will reverse the decision. And we'll discover that we are wrong again.

The Phoenix Arises

By Nelson Harding



As that fabled bird, the Phoenix,
That arose through flame and fire,
Winging upward from the embers,
Rising unbowed and undaunted,

So indomitable mankind
Rises from each loss and failure
From the ashes of disaster
To fresh conquests of the ether.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE summer meeting of the Physiological Congress is over. It was held in Massachusetts where the humidity is not quite so intelligent and the thinking is cooler.

The scientists meet once every August and push theories at each other.

This congress is a vacation for scientists. It also benefits their patients very much.

We went up to Massachusetts to discover what the boys were talking about. They were talking about two weeks.

In between speeches they played golf.

Which, peculiarly enough, is a game played in between speeches.

These precocious adults certainly bob up with some startling information.

Last year their principal grief was Einstein. The German technicians had them all puzzled. His theory of relativity was perfect. Nature grows a shell on a turtle for protection.

But man has to grow his own paper hats. When we got to Massachusetts this summer the scientists were talking about beetles.

They bestled each other to a frizzle. One expert had been chirping about this suburban insect so long that he grew two extra sets of legs before being voted down.

President Hoover could advise scientists and other more human citizens how to spend a vacation. Mr. Herbert goes fishing and allows there is no vacation so totally blank as dropping a hook in a puddle and wondering what it's all about.

Mr. Hoover admitted that he never caught any trout. A statement made in perfect safety now.

But it would have defeated him in 1928.

Here's some information we inhaled at the recent congress of revolving intellects. Dr. Hawks told the boys that six cups of coffee a day were no more harmful than two cups during the same period of time.

Dr Hawks is right. Coffee ain't dangerous. It's the spoon in your eye that is liable to hurt you.

One thing we did learn up there. And this is it. A scientist is a thinker who makes a speech, hoping that somebody will understand it and explain it to him.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SIMON EDWARDS has been telling me how Modern Girls get his goat.

Simon is a serious young man who works in one of our big insurance offices. Young ladies work there also. Sassy young ladies who giggle at Simon and give him the razz when he tries to act the Lordly Male Which makes him mad. Bright young ladies who frequently get bigger pay checks than he does. Which makes him even madder. So Simon is all of a seethe. And he has written me an indignant letter about the Modern Working Woman. What a smarty she is, how rude and independent and lacking in proper womanly attributes. Why can't she be sweet and docile like her mother and grandmother were? Why doesn't she show a fitting respect for Men? And so, on and on, through many peevish pages.

In short, Simon wants the Modern Girl to treat him as Gramma treated Gramp. But his reasoning is all wrong. Simon thinks that Gramma stood in awe of Gramp because God made Man to be head of the house and woman to be the heel. And he is sure that Gramma appreciated this fact and was duly respectful and grateful for any little attentions. A lovely picture—but the reality was quite otherwise.

Gramma WAS docile—but not for the reason Simon thinks. Gramma was docile because she had to be. If she wasn't docile she didn't eat. Gramp's superiority wasn't God made—it was PURSE made. Gramp had the money, held the jobs, got the education and made the laws. Because of this he could tell Gramma where to head in—and did. Generally speaking, Gramma had no more legal rights than a cockroach. She had no job. Marriage was practically her only form of respectable livelihood. After marriage she was literally the property of her husband

How come? Simply because Gramp held the aces.

But machines arrived—feminine education arrived—jobs for women arrived—and women found themselves in industry.

Woman entered industry at first with her knees shaking. BUT HER KNEES STOPPED SHAKING WHEN HER PURSE BEGAN TO FILL. The old fear dropped from her. She saw that jobs, not Jehovah, were the key to the situation. The realization dawned that she could be herself even if some male didn't like it—PROVIDED SHE COULD PAY HER OWN WAY. And it was speedily apparent that she COULD pay her own way as well as any man. That was the beginning of what Simon doesn't like now—the beginning of FEMININE INDEPENDENCE.

Simon, in common with many males believes that feminine independence is a sick abnormal condition—that "something has happened to women." Something HAS happened to women. THEIR LIVES AT LAST HAVE BECOME HEALTHY.

Dependence and weakness are no more natural for women than they are for men. Females are normally as spunky as males. In fact, they're frequently spunkier! And now that they have a chance at jobs, the Simons have to hustle to keep their place in line. Which is really the secret of Simon's peeve.

MEN MUST QUALIFY TODAY. They can no longer get by on the mere fact that they're males. The male myth exploded the day Gramma got a job.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Thoughts while strolling: Paul Whiteman's auto with the zebra-sized door. Snarling, unmuzzled police dogs. Wonder if all the old Waldorf employes got jobs. Who invented the blue plate dinner? And what for? A knife and scissors shop. Damon Runyon's cap.

R. M. Brinkerhoff, a Toledo, O., boy, who made good in the city. What's become of alpaca? Don Dickerman, an uptown night club king, who came out of the village. Childe Hassam, the artist. Captain Churchill is still as straight as an arrow. The Bowery swagger of Hope Williams, a society actress.

Wish someone would present an old time minstrel show. A yapping dog catches up with a speeding auto—poor little fellow. Eleanor Shaler, a Vassar graduate and clever stage comedienne. What became of the Russian Eagle Cafe? Moles with ostrich feathers the easy going ladies wear.

The religious feel about Gothic churches. Jim Thornton and Barney Fagin, veteran actors and pals. A Salvation Army Band and its thin trail of derelicts. Nothing so tempting as fruit store window displays. Those foul cigars taxi drivers puff in your face.

John N. Wheeler's expression of perpetual surprise. East Side Italian flower sellers with their carts and belled horses. Al Woods' wildly rumpled hair. Edith Gould Wainwright has grown stout. Time for "Daddy Browning" to break out in another rash of publicity.

Clare Gould and Henry still bear a striking resemblance. Not a shudery murder in Jersey lately. Rarely hear the Belmont name in society any more. Young Chinese sports with gum-chewing blondes. Wish someone would teach New York cooks to put cinnamon in apple pie.

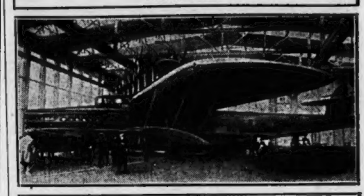
Upstairs private detective agencies—run by former police officials. Don't see many customers in those health food cafes. Ed C Hill, the Brummel of Park Row. Foreigners drifting to night schools. Native New Yorkers drifting to movies. And the contrast offers a sermon theme for someone.

It is rumored the lovely Maxine Elliott is to end her long self exile in England and return to America for the winter. Indeed, there is talk she may appear in a revival of one of her popular plays. Of all the wives who crossed Nat Goodwin's life, she is reported the one who commanded his admiration and respect to the last. She was the Big Episode—the others were incidents.

Real Flying Promised

While America Looks On, Germany Makes Progress

(Copyright, 1929)



THE DORNIER X, A REAL AIRPLANE

Here you see the largest airplane in the world. It isn't talk by some American manufacturer about what he is GOING to do some time or other, if he FEELS just like it. And engineers say it is POSSIBLE.

This shows what Dr. Dornier, a great German engineer of aeronautics, has ACTUALLY ACCOMPLISHED. The Germans DO things.

This giant ship, biggest airplane on earth, has twelve powerful engines, of 6000-horsepower, and three decks, and is actually flying in Germany now.

DORNIER X IN FLIGHT AND SEEN FROM ABOVE

One picture in this column shows you the gigantic German ship at rest in the hangar. Human beings near it, by comparison, give an idea of its enormous size.

The second picture shows the machine in flight, with one side cut away, revealing three decks, one for fuel and baggage, the middle deck for passenger cabins and dining-room, the top deck for pilot and radio rooms.

The inset shows the plane as it would look from above, very much like a mosquito.

Everybody expects to fly and WANTS TO FLY.

So this great German achievement, following upon the magnificent Round-the-World Flight of the Zeppelin, interests us all.

Incidentally, it compels us to pay tribute to the Germans, their courage after complete defeat, their energy in the face of overwhelming taxation.

A nation with such qualities can never be beaten PERMANENTLY.

And now that the German nation is really managed by the genius of its own people, not ruled and drilled by irresponsible Hohenzollerns, there is no limit to the great things that may be accomplished.

This magnificent plane, as Dr. Dornier tells you, is managed like a great ocean ship, with responsibility and work divided. In the ordinary airplane, the pilot is almost the entire crew, doing all the work and having the responsibility.

Concerning this plane, soon expected to begin regular passenger and mail-carrying service across the Atlantic, Dr. Dornier said in an interview:

"Pilots," he declared, "are not only occupied in steering their planes, but they are also forced to observe many instruments and navigate at the same time. In most cases," he said, "they are unprotected against bad weather.

"Motors are constantly driven at full capacity, and making repairs in the air is impossible.

"Fuel conduits and control units are only incompletely accessible, and hundreds of forced landings are due to breakage in the gasoline pipe, which could not be repaired.

"Destruction through fire is a sad chapter in the history of flying, and most fires are caused by leaking tanks, from which the benzine runs over the heated motors."

Innovations in his new giant flying-ship, Dr. Dornier believes, will overcome these difficulties. His pilots are able to concentrate on flying, and need not simultaneously be pilot, engineer and navigator. An engineer is assisted by four mechanicians responsible for technical work. The commander, with a first officer, directs the course and gives the orders to the crew. Nobody is overburdened.

The motors in the Do. X have plenty of reserve and can be throttled about forty per cent after the start.

Another important factor is the subdivision of the motors into twelve independent units. Formerly, if one of three motors, with which some planes were fitted, ceased to work, an immediate forced landing or the loss of one-third of power was the result. With the Do. X the loss would be only one-twelfth.

This "Giant Airplane" will seem an amusing toy to our descendants, perhaps to this living generation.

At present, it represents man's greatest accomplishment in the air. Dr. Dornier and the German nation are to be congratulated on their wonderful achievement.
